The SEDS program supports the principle that social and economic development are interrelated and essential for the development of thriving Native communities. The Administration for Native Americans (ANA) is interested in supporting community-driven projects designed to grow local economies, increase the capacity of tribal governments, strengthen families, preserve Native cultures, and increase self-sufficiency and community well-being. ASSISTANCE LISTINGS DESCRIPTIONS

Each application will be screened to determine whether it meets any of the disqualifying factors in the NOFO. Disqualified applications are considered to be "non-responsive" and are excluded from the competitive review process. Applications competing for financial assistance will be reviewed and evaluated by objective review panels composed of experts with knowledge and experience in the area under review. Generally, review panels include three reviewers and one chairperson. Results of the competitive objective review are taken into consideration by ACF in the selection of projects for funding; however, objective review scores and rankings are not binding. Scores and ranking are only one element used in the award decision-making process. ACF reserves the right to evaluate applications in the larger context of the overall portfolio by considering geographic distribution of federal funds (e.g., ensuring coverage of states, counties, or service areas) in its pre-award decisions. ANAs staff will perform an internal review and analysis of the applications ranked highest as a result of the panels review and scoring. This internal review is used to determine the applications consistency with the purposes of the Native American Programs Act (NAPA), all relevant statutory and regulatory requirements, and the requirements of the relevant NOFO. ANAs Commissioner has discretion to make all final funding and award decisions.

2020 The Nottawaseppi Huron Band of the Potawatomi (NHBP) will increase tribal members' access to, knowledge of, and inclusion of traditionally and locally grown/sourced foods and culturally significant plants and animals in daily diets by streamlining and enhancing NHBP's food sovereignty initiatives and policies. The tribe, which is located near Grand Rapids, Michigan, will develop Phase 1 of the interdepartmental Bodewadmi Food & Lifeways Restoration Project to sustain a food sovereignty initiative to provide healthy, local food to community members year round. Community health assessments found that its members suffer from high rates of obesity and chronic diseases with declining access to traditional and traditionally grown foods. Only 10% of the community incorporates these foods into their daily diets while the majority of the NHBP members need further assistance and education to harvest, preserve, and prepare traditional foods in order to incorporate them into their daily diets.

ASSISTANCE LISTINGS DESCRIPTIONS

Runaway and Homeless Youth Act, Title III, Part A, Section 311, 34 USC Code 11211.

OBJECTIVES:

The purpose of the Basic Center Program is to establish or strengthen the capacity of community-based public and private agencies to address the immediate needs of runaway and homeless youth under the age of 18 and their families. Emergency shelter and supportive services must be delivered outside of the law enforcement, child welfare, mental health, and juvenile justice systems. The goals and objectives of the Basic Center Program are to: 1) provide outreach, crisis intervention and aftercare; 2) reunite youth with their families, if deemed safe, and encourage the resolution of intra-family problems through counseling and other services; 3) strengthen family relationships and encourage stable living conditions for youth; and 4) help youth decide on constructive courses of action.

TYPES OF ASSISTANCE:

Project Grants, Project Grants (Discretionary)

USES AND USE RESTRICTIONS:

Each Basic Center Program is required to provide outreach to runaway and homeless youth; street-based services to youth victims of trafficking; temporary shelter for up to 21 days; food; clothing; individual, group and family counseling; aftercare and referrals, as appropriate. Basic Center Programs shelters must accommodate no fewer than 4 and no more than 20 youth unless a state or local law or regulation requires a higher maximum to comply with licensure requirements for facilities serving child and youth. Some programs also provide part or all of their shelter services through host homes (usually private homes under contract to the centers), with counseling and referrals being provided from a central location. Basic Center Programs offer shelter to youth who are less than 18 years of age and who are at risk of separation from their family. Costs of organized fund raising, including financial campaigns, endowment drives, solicitation of gifts and bequests, and similar expenses incurred to raise capital or obtain contributions are unallowable. Fund raising costs for the purposes of meeting the Federal program objectives are allowable with prior written approval from the Federal awarding agency. (45 CFR 75.442) Proposal costs are the costs of preparing bids, proposals, or applications on potential Federal and non-Federal awards or projects, including the development of data necessary to support the non-Federal entity's bids or proposals. Proposal costs of the current accounting period of both successful and unsuccessful bids and proposals normally should be treated as indirect (F&A) costs and allocated currently to all activities of the non-Federal entity. No proposal costs of past accounting periods will be allocable to the current period. (45 CFR 75.460) Grant awards will not allow reimbursement of pre-award costs. Construction is not an allowable activity or expenditure under this grant award. Costs for renovation of existing structures are authorized but may not exceed 15 percent of the grant amount awarded. Costs for acquisition is not allowable by statute. Applicants are advised that no grant funds may be used for any program of distributing sterile needles or syringes for the hypodermic injection of any illegal drug. Prospective grantees are advised that entities receiving BCP grant funds and operating a program to distribute sterile needles or syringes for hypodermic injections of illegal drugs must account for all funds used for such programs separately from any expenditure of BCP grant funds. HHS funds may not be spent for an abortion. The prohibition on using HHS funds for abortion has an exception for cases of rape, incest, or danger of death to the pregnant woman. See section 507(a) of title V, div. H of the Consolidated Appropriations Act, 2021 (Public Law 116-260).

FEDERAL AGENCY:

CENTERS FOR MEDICARE AND MEDICAID SERVICES, HEALTH AND HUMAN SERVICES, DEPARTMENT OF AUTHORIZATION:

Section 1115A of the Social Security Act (Added by Section 3021 of the Affordable Care Act).

OBJECTIVES:

The Community Health Access and Rural Transformation (CHART) Model is a voluntary payment Model. CHART will test whether aligned financial incentives across payers and robust technical support enable rural providers to transform care on a broad scale and increase uptake of Alternative Payment Models (APMs) in ways that improve access to high quality care and reduce Medicare and Medicaid costs. CHART will equip Award Recipients with funding and a framework to assess their Community's health needs, create a care delivery and redesign strategy, and select an Alternative Payment Model (APM) to offer providers in their area. Communities participation in CHART will begin with a year-plus pre-implementation period, during which they will develop a care delivery redesign strategy and recruit participants. Following the pre-implementation period, Award Recipients will have 6 performance years (PYs) SIMThe State Innovation Model (SIM) is based on the premise that state innovation with broad stakeholder input and engagement will align delivery system transformation across multiple payers and populations to provide better care at lower costs. SIM is focused on public and private sector collaboration to transform the states delivery system. SIM provides financial and technical support to states to test the ability of state governments to use their regulatory and policy levers to accelerate health transformation efforts. In Round 1, CMS partnered with 6 Model Test states to implement state-wide health transformation strategies and 19 Model Design states to develop and refine State Healthcare Innovation Plans (SHIPs) to guide future implementation efforts. In Round 2, CMS partnered with an additional 11 Model Test states to implement their SHIPs and 17 states, 3 territories, and the District of Columbia to develop and/or refine their SHIPs. All of the Design states from both rounds of SIM have completed their project period 2 of the 6 Round 1 Test states have completed their tests and the other 4 are in their final year. The 11 Round 2 Test states are currently in the active testing phase. There are no current opportunities for additional rounds of SIM.

SIM funding may not supplant existing federal or state funding. States may propose the use of SIM test funds to support additional costs associated with or created by testing a SIM model. Indirect Costs If requesting indirect costs, an Indirect Cost Rate Agreement will be required. For this Cooperative Agreement funding opportunity indirect costs are limited to 10%. The provisions of 2 CFR Part 225 (previously OMB Circular A-87) govern reimbursement of indirect costs under this solicitation. For example, if the state receives a Strong Start for Mothers and Newborns cooperative agreement, SIM funding will only be used in a coordinated manner and not to supplant funding for Strong Start for Mothers and Newborns. States may propose the use of SIM testing funds to support additional costs associated with or created by testing a SIM model.

SIMCMS invites the 50 state Governors Offices, United States Territories Governors Offices (American Samoa, Guam, Northern Mariana Islands, Puerto Rico, and the Virgin Islands), and the Mayors Office of the District of Columbia to apply. Only one application from a Governor per state is permitted for either a Model Design or a Model Test award (assuming the state applied and was not selected for funding under the first round of Model Test awards). A state cannot receive multiple Round 2 Model Design or Model Test awards. A state cannot receive both a Round 2 Model Design award and a Round 2 Model Test award. Each application must include a letter from the Governor (or the Mayor, if from the District of Columbia) officially endorsing the application for a Model Design award or for a Model Test award. States currently engaged in a Model Test award with CMS are NOT eligible to apply for funding under Round 2. A state may propose that an outside organization focused on quality and state delivery system transformation, such as a non-profit affiliated with the State Department of Health or a public-private partnership supported by the Governors Office, receive and administer funds through a Model Design or Model Test award. The Governors Office must submit such requests in writing to CMS with its Letter of Intent and include a justification for the request and an attestation that the state will actively participate in all activities described in its proposal. Approval of such requests will be at the sole discretion of CMS. Only one such request supported by the Governor will be allowed per state. A state pursuing this approach will still be expected to address all of the required areas described in this FOA. Eligibility Threshold Criteria: All applicants must have submitted a required letter of intent to the programmatic point of contact in Section VI. Agency Contacts by June 6, 2014. If a letter of intent has not been submitted by the required due date, any subsequent application submitted by the entity will be ineligible. See Section IV.2.A, Letter of Intent to Apply, for more information. Application deadline: Applications not received by the application deadline (TBD) through www.grants.gov will not be reviewed. Application requirements: Applications will be considered for funding only if the application meets the requirements outlined in Section III, Eligibility Information and Section IV, Application and Submission Information. Page limits: Model Test applications shall not be more than 55 pages in length. Model Design applications shall not be more than 27 pages in length. Both types of applications must be limited to the page maximums, sequence of sections, and section content specified in Section IV.2 Content and Form of Application Submission, parts C & D. In addition, applications should include attestations of support from key stakeholders. The letters of support will not be included in the page limits for applications. The letters should attest to stakeholders active engagement in the model and must contain specific information about how the stakeholders will contribute to the SIM process. The standard forms, project abstract, Governors endorsement, and curriculum vitae are also not included in these page limits. States are strongly encouraged to review the criteria information provided in Section V of the FOA, Application Review Information, to help ensure that the proposal adequately addresses all the criteria that will be used in evaluating applications and determining appropriate funding levels for each award.

Beneficiary Eligibility:

The Grants Management Specialist assigned to monitor the subaward and executive compensation reporting requirements is Iris Grady, who can be reached at divisionofgrantsmanagement@cms.hhs.gov. 2 CFR 200, Subpart E - Cost Principles applies to this program. 2 CFR 200, Sub-part E - Cost Principles applies to this program.

Preapplication Coordination:

Pre-application coordination is not applicable. Environmental impact information is not required for this program. This program is excluded from coverage under E.O. 12372.

Application Procedures:

2 CFR 200, Uniform Administrative Requirements, Cost Principles, and Audit Requirements for Federal Awards applies to this program. 2 CFR 200, Uniform Administrative Requirements, Cost Principles, and Audit Requirements for Federal Awards applies to this program. Project Abstract (Required for all applicants) Applicants should submit a one-page, single-spaced abstract to serve as a succinct description of the proposed project. The abstract should include the proposed Model geographic service area, the goals of the project, the total budget, and a description of how the cooperative agreement funds will be used. The abstract is often distributed to provide information to the public and Congress, applicants should write the abstract so that it is clear, accurate, concise, and without reference to other parts of the application. Personal identifying information should be excluded from the abstract. Applicants should upload the abstract in the Grants Application Package which can be found at <http://www.grants.gov>; select the Project Abstract Summary, and complete the form. Project Narrative Review criteria for the Project Narrative are described below. All elements of the Project Narrative are required and will be used to assess an applicants ability to design and implement a Model intervention that lowers costs and improves quality of care for rural communities. Incomplete, unclear, and confusing proposals will receive point deductions. Project Narratives with significant content deficiencies may receive a score of zero. Proposals that merely restate the content of the Notice of Funding Opportunity, without responding to the Program Requirements and Application Review Criteria, will receive a score of zero. Each component of the Project Narrative will be weighted as indicated below. The Project Narrative must be double-spaced and should not exceed 60 pages in length. This page limit does not include the Letters of Intent (LOIs), organizational charts, job descriptions, or resumes that should be attached as appendices. The LOIs requested in the Project Narrative section of the CHART application are distinct from the general LOI that awardees may submit within 30 days of NOFO release.

Model Context Characteristics of Proposed Community Applicants must provide a high-level summary of their chosen community's health status, including key information on residents and existent health delivery infrastructure. Applicants should highlight the characteristics of the community that will be most influential to their care delivery redesign and value-based payment reform strategy. Within their rationale, applicants should justify their community's geographic parameters.
 - b) Provide a Gap Analysis, a survey of the key issues existent in their community that they want to address in their care delivery redesign and value-based payment reform strategies (e.g. hospitals at risk of closure).

f) If applicable, describe the anticipated role of any contractors

The Lead Organization may engage to help implement CHART

Advisory Council Although award recipients are expected to finalize their care delivery redesign and value-based payment strategies during the pre-implementation year of the CHART Model, applicants must establish their Advisory Council before submitting their application. In this section applicants must verify that they have established their Advisory Council and describe the proposed council's capacity to implement CHART. CMS will evaluate the extent to which the Advisory Council is responsive to the Community's needs. In this section applicants must:

- a) For each Advisory Council member, provide the following information:
 - i) Members name
 - ii) Organization they represent and their position title within that organization
 - iii) Anticipated role and responsibilities of that specific member within the Advisory Council
- b) Attach members resume as an appendix to this application
- c) Provide a description of the Lead Organization's key objectives for the Advisory Council during the pre-implementation period, including a strategy for creating a transformation plan
- d) Include a beneficiary or caregiver representative
- e) Provide a LOI (attached as an appendix), signed by all members of the Advisory Council, that includes a description of Advisory Council member responsibilities and anticipated time commitment

Care Delivery Redesign A key element of CHART is that Lead Organizations will finalize their care delivery redesign strategy with Advisory Council and CMS input, during the pre-implementation period of the Model through the development of their Transformation Plans. However, applicants must:

- a) Provide a summary of preliminary care delivery redesign concepts and, if possible, describe how many beneficiaries they expect their interventions to touch

Concepts presented in this section are non-binding. Applicants are encouraged to note areas that are not finalized, highlight where they plan to seek stakeholder input, and outline key options. CMS will evaluate concept efficacy, responsiveness to the issues identified in the applicants' gap analysis, and the extent to which applicants identify opportunities to collaborate with stakeholders. Applicants are encouraged to refer to Appendix VII. Care Transformation Examples for inspiration.

Value-Based Payment Reform A key element of CHART is that awardees will finalize their value-based payment reform strategy, with stakeholder and CMS input, during the pre-implementation period of the Model through the development of their Transformation Plan. However, in this section applicants must:

- c) Applicants must submit a non-binding LOI from their state Medicaid agency that includes the following information (NOTE: Information included in a CHART Model application will be used solely for the purpose of application review and does not represent a formal request for a State Plan Amendment, waiver, or demonstration approval on the part of the state; nor a commitment of approval on the part of CMS):
 - i) Confirmation that they understand the Medicaid Program Requirements of the CHART Model
 - ii) A populated Medicaid Changes Needs Assessment Table

Applicants must submit the following LOIs, expressing a non-binding intent to participate in both the transformation planning process and the APM:

- i) They must submit at least one LOI from a hospital Sustainability Plan

Applicants must describe their strategy for sustaining care delivery and value-based payment reform after the Model performance period ends. It is recommended that applicants secure supplemental funding either prior to or during the CHART Model. If applicable, applicants should describe whether they have secured any other supplemental sources of funding, are in the process of securing other funding, or have any plans to explore other funding sources. Securing supplemental funding is not a program requirement for the CHART Model. CMS will utilize this section to assess the likelihood that an award would lead to sustained change.

Reporting Plan Applicants must submit a plan for gathering and reporting data to CMS, including periodic progress reports

Data Sharing and Evaluation

Evaluation Applicants should use this section to describe their strategy for ensuring participation in the CMS mandatory Model evaluation from all Model partners and participants, including the APM participants, patients and any other individuals or entities. Applicants must indicate their willingness and ability to share program documents, training materials, and any other program related materials with CMS and its contractors and to assist in arranging other data gathering activities. Specifically, the awardee should demonstrate its capacity to participate in patient- and program-level data provision and qualitative evaluation tasks, which may include arranging site visits, observations, interviews and focus groups with providers and patients as well as program staff; screening patients for health-related social needs; submitting patient medical information through a system that complies with privacy standards including HIPAA and 42 C.F.R. Part 2; gathering required consent; and other activities as needed. All applicants must provide personal identifiers that will allow all participants to be identified in Medicaid FFS and managed care claims. If applicants desire to use data for purposes beyond those that are covered under section 1115A of the Act, then applicants should indicate their ability to gain Institutional Review Board (IRB) approval (if needed) and/or describe any other necessary permissions for evaluation activities, data collection, and data sharing and submission. T-MSIS Additionally, applicants must describe the T-MSIS data submission status of their state Medicaid agency. If the applicants state Medicaid agency is not submitting production data monthly to T-MSIS and/or their catch-up data files are not current, then the applicant must coordinate with them to submit a timeline for achieving timely, monthly production data submission. If the state believes they may be unable to submit T-MSIS data for a portion of the CHART performance period, the applicant must provide CMS with a data submission plan for Medicaid data. Model Impact Analysis Applicants should describe specific impact goals and the strategies they plan to implement to achieve them. Applicants should quantify effects as much as possible. Specifically, applicants must: a) Identify how their proposed interventions will impact quality of care and access to care (especially for primary, behavioral, and preventative care); b) Describe how their care delivery redesign and value-based payment strategies will yield savings in community-wide healthcare spending. Applicants should consider whether proposed changes could lead to cost increases; c) Describe the impact of their proposed program on beneficiaries health outcomes. SIM 2 CFR 200, Uniform Administrative Requirements, Cost Principles, and Audit Requirements for Federal Awards applies to this program. This Funding Announcement offers two separate funding opportunities: (1) Model Test awards and (2) Model Design awards. Model Test: Proposal Requirements The Innovation Center will award up to 12 Model Test awards to states through this Funding Announcement. Model Test awards will provide financial and technical support to implement fully developed proposals for successful state-wide transformation. Awards will range from $20-100 million per state totaling $700 million over a four-year period, based on the size of the states population and the scope of the proposal. If a Model Test applicant is not selected for a Model Test award, CMS may select the state/entity for a Model Design award if (1) after all possible states/entities which applied for Model Design awards are selected and funding is still available to issue additional Model Design awards (not to exceed overall maximum of 15 Model Design awards); and (2) CMS determines the state/entity is not ready for a Model Test award and would benefit from Model Design funding. States currently engaged in a Model Test award with CMS will not be eligible to apply for funding in Round 2. The selection criteria for the Round 2 Model Test application will be based on a states ability to successfully apply policy and regulatory levers over the award performance period to address three focus areas: (1) improving population health; (2) transforming health care delivery systems; and (3) decreasing per capita total health care spending. During the selection process, CMS will require additional discussions with applicants regarding their proposals. Selection for a Round 2 Model Test will not constitute nor guarantee approval of a request for a Medicaid State Plan Amendment (SPA) or a Medicaid 1115 Waiver. States seeking a Medicaid SPA or Medicaid 1115 waiver may do so under established processes. In addition to an expert panel review, selected applicants for Model Test cooperative agreements will be required to present their Round 2 proposals. Selected applicants will be invited and strongly encouraged to present their proposal in person, or conversely can present virtually to a panel comprised of external experts as well as HHS leadership. The states presentation must be led by a cabinet-level health official, such as the Secretary of Health, and include providers and commercial payers who have committed to actively participate in the model. In the case of public-private partnership entities applying for a state innovation model test, senior leaders from the private and public sector, including senior leaders of the applicant entity, shall be present. All travel expenses incurred by applicants will not be reimbursed by CMS nor can they be reimbursed by any funding awarded under this FOA. In addition, if a state does not participate in the required presentation, it will not be eligible for funding. Model Test applications must address the following required areas: A. Model Test Project Narrative. The state must produce a detailed and fully developed proposal capable of creating state-wide health transformation for the preponderance of care within the state. For each individual element and/or program in the test proposal, the state must highlight how the element or program will (1) improve population health; (2) transform the health care delivery system; and/or (3) decrease per capita health care spending, drawing on a supporting evidence base. B. While Round 2 provides states with significant flexibility to design contextually-specific plans for state-wide health transformation, each proposal must also include the following core elements: (1) Plan for improving Population Health. The state must develop a state-wide plan to improve population health during the project period. The state will be offered the opportunity to obtain technical support from the Centers for Disease Control in developing the plans. The plans should include integration of population health strategies with public health officials and health care delivery systems for all populations. At a minimum, plans should address the core measures identified in the population health metrics document, namely: tobacco use and the incidence of obesity, and diabetes. (See Appendix 1.) In addition, states should consider integrating state strategies to address child wellness and prevention priorities, as applicable, including such factors as reducing childhood obesity, preventing early childhood dental caries, and addressing maternal depression to foster healthy child development. (2) Health Care Delivery System Transformation Plan. CMS has identified the following characteristics to be closely associated with transformed health care delivery systems: a. Providers across the state and across the care continuum participate in integrated or virtually integrated delivery models; b. Over 80% of payments to providers from all payers are in fee-for-service alternatives that link payment to value; c. Every resident of the state has a primary care provider who is accountable both for the quality and for the total cost of their health care; d. Care is coordinated across all providers and settings; e. There is a high-level of patient engagement and quantifiable results on patient experience; f. Providers leverage the use of health information technology to improve quality; g. There is an adequate health care workforce to meet state residents needs; h. Providers perform at the top of their license and board certification; i. Performance in quality and cost measures is consistently high; j. Population health measures are integrated into the delivery system; and k. Data is used to drive health system processes. The state must describe in detail how it will engage providers in health care delivery system transformation across the state, working towards the goals described above. CMS recognizes that individual state proposals will vary considerably. However, in reviewing the Health Care Delivery Transformation Plan, and the proposed cost and quality targets, CMS will consider state, regional, and national demographics, proposal parameters, alignment/overlap of existing CMS programs, and other factors that impact health. One or more specific payment and/or service delivery models that include, but are not limited to, the states Medicaid population, state employee population, and/or commercial payers populations. The payment and/or service delivery models must identify the targeted populations, the number of beneficiaries served, the number of participating providers, and the services to be delivered. CMS encourages applicants to propose payment models that directly align with one or more existing Medicare programs, demonstrations, and/or models, such as accountable care organizations (ACOs), primary care medical homes, and bundled payment programs. Medicare participation is not guaranteed and will be assessed on a case-by-case basis after thorough review of the proposed model. As SIM aims to reach a preponderance of a states population and Medicaid can serve as an important lever for driving health care delivery system transformation, the state should describe any Medicaid expansion activities and the percentage of the states population that is covered by Medicaid. The state must commit to using multiple regulatory authorities to influence the structure and performance of the states health care system. Regulatory authorities whose uses are envisioned under SIM include, but are not limited to the following: a. Aligning certificate of need processes and criteria (if applicable) to reinforce accountable care and delivery system transformation or developing alternative approaches to certificate of need programs, such as community-based approaches that could include voluntary participation by all providers and payers; b. Developing regulatory approaches to improve the effectiveness, efficiency and appropriate mix of the health care work force, such as through professional licensure/accreditation of providers and/or expanding scope of practice statutes; c. Creating opportunities to align state regulations and requirements for health insurers with the broader goals of multi-payer delivery system and payment reform; d. Integrating value-based principles into health insurance exchange Qualified Health Plan (QHP) certification processes, state employee plans, or Medicaid managed care plans including through selective contracting with carriers to provide health care coverage plans that provide the most competitive combination of value, quality, and choice; and e. Requiring academic medical centers and professional schools to integrate transformation-based teachings into medical education programs. f. This list is not intended to be exhaustive. States may propose alternative regulatory authorities that support delivery system transformation to satisfy this requirement in consultation with CMS. CMS recognizes that health information technology and data analytics will be important to achieving optimal efficiency and improved outcomes in state-wide health care delivery. States may propose to use SIM funds for the implementation of specific technology, software, applications, or other analytical tools as part of state infrastructure development to support the Model Test as long as the state provides a clear strategy for how, if applicable, the technological approach will be financed in addition to SIM, how it will not supplant other funding sources, and how it will be sustained after the cooperative agreement period has ended. Proposals must document the current state of health information technology adoption and utilization in the state, including current EHR adoption levels, percentage of providers meeting Meaningful Use requirements in the EHR Incentive Programs, and use of technology to support HIE activities. The Model Test proposals must also provide detailed descriptions for health information technology plans in the following domains:

a. Governance: Describe how state leadership will direct the planning and oversight of implementation; supply a comprehensive plan to implement infrastructure to support the Model Test that leverages existing assets and aligns with federally-funded programs and state enterprise IT systems; and explain how the governance structure will incorporate and expand existing public/private health information exchanges, including those operated by ACOs.

b. Policy: Describe policy and regulatory levers that will be used to accelerate standards based health information technology adoption to improve care in the state Model Test; describe methods to improve transparency and encourage innovative uses of data; offer a plan for promotion of patient engagement and shared-decision making; and propose multi-payer strategies to enable and expand the use of health information technology.

c. Infrastructure: Describe how the state will implement analytical tools and use data driven evidence based approach to coordinate and improve care across the state Model Test; offer plans to utilize telehealth and perform remote patient monitoring to increase access to care and the timeliness of care; articulate plans to use standards based health IT to enable electronic quality reporting; explain how public health IT systems (such as clinical registry systems) will be integrated; and describe how support of electronic data will drive quality improvement at the point of care.

d. Technical Assistance: Define how the state will provide technical assistance to providers; identify targeted provider groups that will receive assistance and what services will be delivered; and identify how the state intends to extend resources to providers ineligible for Meaningful Use incentive payments, if applicable. This list is not intended to be exhaustive. States may propose alternative approaches to data analytics and health information technology that support delivery system transformation. States will be offered the opportunity to obtain technical support from the Office of the National Coordinator for Health IT in developing the plans. In addition to explaining the individual components of the test, the State must address its rationale for how the specified elements and/or programs, in combination, will achieve state-wide health transformation. States may elect to focus on select areas of the state and/or to sequence elements or programs in the test geographically or temporally. The state should identify the tests geographic scope in this section and address any sequencing of individual elements and/or programs in its response to Section I.4.A.iv., Operational Plan, below. The state must demonstrate how it will use its unique role as a stakeholder convener to accelerate state-wide health transformation. The state must (1) demonstrate that there are a significant number of key stakeholders representative of the entire state population engaged and actively committed to the implementation of the state Model Test proposal and (2) present a clear and pragmatic strategy for maintaining stakeholder commitment throughout implementation of the proposed test. Stakeholders must include health care providers/systems, commercial payers/purchasers, state hospital and medical associations, community-based and long term support providers, consumer advocacy organizations, and, as applicable, tribal communities. The state must submit attestations of support from each identified stakeholder as part of its application (template provided in Appendix 3). Notwithstanding the above, representatives from stakeholder organizations must be prepared to travel to CMS or participate in a virtual teleconference during the selection process to discuss their commitment to the state proposal. The state must provide plans to develop a state-wide plan to align quality measures across all payers in the state. If the state and key stakeholders have not yet reached consensus on such a plan at the time of submission, the proposal must describe in detail any progress to date on quality measure alignment, including the successes and challenges faced, and must articulate a path for developing a realizable plan by the conclusion of the up to 12 month pre-implementation period. The plan should also demonstrate the payers commitment to reducing the administrative and/or non-clinical burden to providers in the state. The state must provide quantifiable measures for regularly monitoring the impact of its proposed model, including the effectiveness of the policy and regulatory levers applied under the Model Test, on the three key outcomes of (1) strengthening population health; (2) transforming the health care delivery system; and (3) decreasing per capita health care spending. Measures should be selected with a focus on the particularized state health demographics and health needs the Model Test proposal aims to address. All quality and cost measures must use the state's entire population in the denominator. Examples of measure domains that may apply include: Population health: percentage of state residents using tobacco; Health care delivery system transformation: percentage of state residents attributed to a primary care doctor; Per capita cost spending: per capita Medicare inpatient costs. Final measures will be refined in conjunction with CMS during the up to 12 month pre-implementation period. The state also will be responsible for monitoring and reporting to CMS on the progress and impact of its Model Test at regular intervals. In addition, CMS will conduct an independent evaluation of funded proposals in accordance with the requirements set forth in Section 1115A of the Social Security Act (added by Section 3021 of the Affordable Care Act). The state must identify all existing health care innovation initiatives occurring within the state, including CMS, HHS, federal, and external initiatives (e.g., the Robert Wood Johnson Foundation Aligning Forces for Quality program), and demonstrate how the proposal aligns with these health care innovation efforts. The state must describe how the proposal will (1) coordinate with and build upon existing initiatives and (2) ensure that federal funding will not be used for duplicative activities, or to supplant current federal or state funding. For example, if a state is participating in the State Financial Alignment Model, the state should describe how the State Financial Alignment Model complements the state's proposed SIM model. As part of its application, the state must submit a SF-424A and a budget narrative. The budget narrative must be consistent with the SF-424A and Model Test requirements as well as limit overhead and administrative costs to no more than 10% of direct costs. States should indicate other resources that will aid in implementing the Model Test plan. See Section IV. 2. Content and Form of Application Submission for more information. As part of its application, the state must submit a Financial Analysis. The Financial Analysis must estimate the proposals return on investment for the Model, and specifically for Medicare, Medicaid, and/or CHIP populations, over the performance period of the award as well as on a projected annualized basis after the term of the award is finished. The state must explain how its interventions will reduce total cost of care for the beneficiaries its model serves. The Financial Analysis also must provide financial models explaining the logic driving their forecasted cost of care savings. The state must obtain and submit an external actuarial certification of their Financial Analysis with their application. A qualified actuary who is a member of the American Academy of Actuaries must complete the external certification. The CMS Office of the Actuary will assist in reviewing the reasonableness of the estimated cost to the government, and will review the potential for federal savings. The external actuarial certification, as well as the review of the CMS Actuary, will be considered in final selection of Model Test awards. The state must submit a detailed Operational Plan that describes the activities and budgets for each year of the model and provide a detailed timeline for implementation and major milestones for successfully executing the Plan. The Operational Plan must show how the applicant plans to scale implementation activities to ramp up to an operational start within twelve months of receiving funding. The applicant must also establish accountability targets for the project, including specific quarterly milestones and metrics associated with each investment or activity that would be financed in whole or in part by this award. Projected quarterly targets for the test period should indicate the number and/or proportion of health care providers, hospitals, and beneficiaries that will be engaged by each Model Test component. The Operational Plan must also address any assumptions made and risks to the operational timeline, probability and impact of identified risks actually occurring, and projected strategies for mitigating identified risks. In addition, the application should show that the applicant has the resources and track record needed to operate the model and report on the progress it is making during the operation. Applicants shall include a list of key personnel; and for each person on this list, applicants should describe their relevant background, their roles, and overall responsibility. Applicants should address the Governors existing and future involvement in the models design and implementation, and the state agencies and/or departments that will be actively involved in executing the model. Applicants may also propose an operational plan that implements their State Health System Innovation Plan through a public-private partnership. Under such an approach, the state must demonstrate active engagement and participation in the public-private partnership. Model Design: Proposal Requirements The Innovation Center will award up to 15 Model Design states through this Funding Announcement. Model Design awards will provide financial and technical support to design proposals for successful state-wide transformation. Awards will range from $1-3 million over a one-year project period. Eligible states include both those that did not participate in Round 1, as well as Round 1 Model Design states that met the terms and condition of the Round 1 project but require additional design work in order to implement the plan (i.e. increased stakeholder engagement, measurable public health value, cost and quality targets). Round 1 Model Design state proposals shall include the extent to which the state will develop a design that enhances the existing state plan for delivery transformation. To the extent feasible, Round 2 Model Design awardees will be required to implement and test the plans they develop. Model Design applications must address the following required areas: The state must demonstrate a clear process for designing or refining a plan with the engagement of multiple components of state government. The state should address the elements detailed in Section I.4.A.i, Model Test Project Narrative, and listed by name below, including specifically identifying the levers the state will aim to incorporate into a comprehensive state plan, such as the states Medicaid program, state employee health plans, and state-owned academic medical centers. In their design plans, states must explain the unique features of their design efforts and their strategies for designing a plan that aligns with existing CMS efforts. Further, state plans must include multiple payers. This narrative must include a modified stakeholder engagement strategy, as outlined in Section I.4.B.i.6 below. o Plan for Improving Population Health o Health Care Delivery System Transformation Plano Payment and/or Service Delivery Modelo Leveraging Regulatory Authorityo Health Information Technologyo Stakeholder Engagement. The application must identify the proposed stakeholders that will actively participate in the Model Design process and present a clear and pragmatic strategy for engaging and maintaining their commitment to developing a State Health System Innovation Plan. States are expected to work with a broad group of stakeholders representative of the entire state population in their Model Design process, including, but not limited to, a significant number of health care providers/systems, long term service and supports providers, commercial payers, state hospital and medical associations, tribal communities and consumer advocacy organizations. The state must describe the strategy for designing a state health plan that includes multi-payer payment innovation and measure alignment. o Quality Measure Alignmento Monitoring and Evaluation Plano Alignment with State and Federal InnovationAs part of its application, the state must submit a SF-424A and a budget narrative. The budget narrative must be consistent with the SF-424A and Model Design requirements as well as limit overhead and administrative costs to no more than 10% of direct costs. States should indicate other resources that will aid in designing the State Health System Innovation Plan. See Section IV. 2. Content and Form of Application Submission for more information.As part of its application, the state must submit a Financial Analysis. The Financial Analysis must, at minimum, describe the populations being addressed and their respective total medical and other services costs as per member per month and population total. If known, the Financial Analysis should also describe (1) anticipated cost savings resulting from specified interventions, including the types of costs that will be affected by the model and the anticipated level of improvement by target population and (2) expected total cost savings and return on investment for the overall state model and basis for expected savings (previous studies, experience, etc.). The state must submit a detailed Operational Plan that describes the activities and budgets for the performance period of the award and a detailed timeline for the design process with major milestones. The plan should also include roles and responsibilities of key partners and payer participants (if applicable) and major milestones and dates for successfully executing the Operational Plan. Applicants also should include a list of key personnel; for each person on this list, applicants should describe their relevant background, their roles, and overall responsibility. Applicants should address the Governors existing and future involvement in the models design and implementation, and the state agencies and/or departments that will be actively involved in designing the model.Applicants may also propose an operational plan that seeks to design the State Health System Innovation Plan through a public-private partnership. Under such an approach, the state must demonstrate active engagement and participation in the public-private partnership. The operational plan must also address any assumptions made and risks to the operational timeline, and projected strategies for mitigating identified risks.The Funding Opportunity Announcement serves as the application package for this cooperative agreement and contains all the instructions to enable a potential applicant to apply. The application should be written primarily as a narrative with the standard forms required by the Federal government for all cooperative agreements. A separate and complete application must be submitted for each type of submission and for each round of submission. A non-binding letter of intent to apply must be submitted to the CMS programmatic contact listed in Section VI. Agency Contacts by June 6, 2014. Entities which do not submit a letter of intent by this deadline will be ineligible to apply. As explained in Section III. Eligibility Information, a Governor must submit an official request, along with its letter of intent, if it plans to propose that an outside organization focused on quality and state delivery transformation, such as a non-profit affiliated with the State Department of Health or a public-private partnership supported by the Governors Office, receives and administers funds through a Model Design or Model Test award. A justification must be included with the request as well as an attestation that the state will actively participate in all activities described in the proposal. Approval of such requests will be at the sole discretion of CMS. Only one application supported by the Governor will be allowed per state. Application materials will be available for download at <http://www.grants.gov>. Please note that HHS requires applications for all announcements to be submitted electronically through <http://www.grants.gov>. For assistance with Grants.gov, contact support@grants.gov or call 1-800-518-4726. Specific instructions for applications submitted via <http://www.grants.gov>: You can access the electronic application for this project at <http://www.grants.gov>. You must search the downloadable application page by the CFDA number shown on the cover page of this announcement. At the <http://www.grants.gov> website, you will find information about submitting an application electronically through the site, including the hours of operation. HHS strongly recommends that you do not wait until the application due date to begin the application process through <http://www.grants.gov>, because of the time needed to complete the required registration steps. All applicants under this announcement must have an Employer Identification Number (EIN) to apply. Please note, the time needed to complete the EIN registration process can be substantial, and applicants should therefore begin the process of obtaining an EIN immediately upon posting of this FOA to ensure the EIN is received in advance of application deadlines. All applicants, as well as sub-recipients, must have a Dun and Bradstreet (D&B) Data Universal Numbering System (DUNS) number at the time of application in order to be considered for a grant or cooperative agreement. A DUNS number is required for using the Government-wide electronic portal, www.grants.gov. The DUNS number is a nine-digit identification number that uniquely identifies business entities. To obtain a DUNS number, access the following website: www.dunandbradstreet.com or call 1-866-705-5711. This number should be entered in the block with the applicant's name and address on the cover page of the application (Item 8c on the Form SF 424, Application for Federal Assistance). The name and address in the application should be exactly as given for the DUNS number. Applicants should obtain this DUNS number as soon as possible after the announcement is posted to ensure all registration steps are completed in time. Authorized Organizational Representative: The Authorized Organizational Representative (AOR) who will officially submit an application on behalf of the organization must register with Grants.gov for a username and password. AORs must complete a profile with Grants.gov using their organizations DUNS Number to obtain their username and password, at http://grants.gov/applicants/get_registered.jsp. AORs must wait one business day after registration in SAM before entering their profiles in Grants.gov. Applicants should complete this process as soon as possible after successful registration in SAM to ensure this step is completed in time to apply before application deadlines. When an AOR registers with Grants.gov to submit applications on behalf of an organization, that organizations E-Biz point-of-contact will receive an e-mail notification. The e-mail address provided in the profile will be the e-mail used to send the notification from Grants.gov to the E-Biz POC with the AOR copied on the correspondence. The E-Biz POC must then login to Grants.gov (using the organizations DUNS number for the username and the special password called M-PIN) and approve the AOR, thereby providing permission to submit applications. Any files uploaded or attached to the Grants.Gov application must be PDF file format and must contain a valid file format extension in the filename. Even though Grants.gov allows applicants to attach any file format as part of their application, CMS restricts this practice and only accepts PDF file formats. Any file submitted as part of the Grants.gov application that is not in a PDF file format, or contains password protection, will not be accepted for processing and will be excluded from the application during the review process. In addition, the use of compressed file formats such as ZIP, RAR, or Adobe Portfolio will not be accepted. The application must be submitted in a file format that can easily be copied and read by reviewers. It is recommended that scanned copies not be submitted through Grants.gov unless the applicant confirms the clarity of the documents. Pages cannot be reduced in size, resulting in multiple pages on a single sheet, to avoid exceeding the page limitation. All documents that do not conform to the above constraints will be excluded from the application materials during the review process. After you electronically submit your application, you will receive an automatic email from <http://www.grants.gov> that contains a Grants.gov tracking number. Please be aware that this notice does not guarantee that the application will be accepted by Grants.gov. Rather, this email is only an acknowledgement of receipt of the application by Grants.gov. All applications must be validated by Grants.gov before they will be accepted. Please note, applicants may incur a time delay before they receive acknowledgement that the application has been validated and accepted by the Grants.gov system. In some cases, the validation process could take up to 48 hours. If for some reason the application is not accepted, then the applicant will receive a subsequent notice from Grants.gov indicating that the application submission has been rejected. Applicants should not wait until the application deadline to apply because notification by Grants.gov that the application is incomplete may not be received until close to or after the application deadline, eliminating the opportunity to correct errors and resubmit the application. Applications submitted after the deadline because the original submission failed validation and is therefore rejected by Grants.gov, as a result of errors on the part of the applicant, will not be accepted by CMS and/or granted a waiver. For this reason, CMS recommends that applicants apply in advance of the application due date and time. After HHS retrieves your application package from Grants.gov, a return receipt will be e-mailed to the applicant contact. This will be in addition to the validation number provided by <http://www.grants.gov>. Each year organizations and entities registered to apply for Federal grants and cooperative agreements through <http://www.grants.gov> will need to renew their registration with the System for Award Management (SAM). You can register with SAM online; registration will take about 30 minutes to complete (<https://www.sam.gov/portal/public/SAM/>). Failure to renew SAM registration prior to application submission will prevent an applicant from successfully applying via Grants.gov. Similarly, failure to maintain an active SAM registration during the application review process can prevent HHS from issuing your agency an award under this program. Applications cannot be accepted through any email address. Full applications can only be accepted through <http://www.grants.gov>. Full applications cannot be received via paper mail, courier, or delivery service. All applications for the awards must be submitted electronically and be received through <http://www.grants.gov> by the deadlines listed below. All applications will receive an automatic time stamp upon submission and state applicants will receive an e-mail reply acknowledging the applications receipt. Please be aware of the following: 1) Search for the application package in Grants.gov by entering the CFDA number. This number is shown on the cover page of this announcement. 2) If you experience technical challenges while submitting your application electronically, please contact Grants.gov Support directly at: www.grants.gov/customersupport or (800) 518-4726. Customer Support is available to address questions 24 hours a day, 7 days a week (except on Federal holidays). 3) Upon contacting Grants.gov, obtain a tracking number as proof of contact. The tracking number is helpful if there are technical issues that cannot be resolved. To be considered timely, applications must be received by the published deadline date. However, a general extension of a published application deadline that affects all state applicants or only those in a defined geographical area may be authorized by circumstances that affect the public at large, such as natural disasters (e.g., floods or hurricanes) or disruptions of electronic (e.g., application receipt services) or other services, such as a prolonged blackout. Grants.gov complies with Section 508 of the Rehabilitation Act of 1973. If an individual uses assistive technology and is unable to access any material on the site, including forms contained with an application package, he or she can e-mail the Grants.gov contact center at support@grants.gov for help, or call 1-800-518-4726. Each application must include all contents described below, in the order indicated, and in conformance with the following specifications: Use 8.5 x 11 letter-size pages with 1 margins (top, bottom, and sides). Other paper sizes will not be accepted. This is particularly important because it is often not possible to reproduce copies in a size other than 8.5 x 11. All pages of the project narrative must be paginated in a single sequence. Font size must be 12-point with an average character density no greater than 14 characters per inch. The budget and project narrative portions of the application must be double-spaced. The project abstract is restricted to a one-page summary, which can be single-spaced. Applications and attached proposals must not be more than 55 pages in length for Model Test awards, and no more than 27 pages for Model Design awards. For Model Test applications this total includes the project narrative, budget narrative, financial analysis, and operational plan. For Model Design, this total includes the project narrative, budget narrative, financial analysis, and operational plan. The maximum page limit includes all supporting materials, including documentation related to financial projections, profiles of participating organizations, etc. In addition, states should submit letters of support from other payers and stakeholders. The standard forms, project abstract, Governors letter of endorsement, and attestations of support from other payers and stakeholders are NOT included in the page limits. The state must ensure that its submission meets the technical requirements outlined above. Failure to adhere to these technical requirements may exclude an application from consideration for a cooperative award. The following standard forms must be completed with an electronic signature and enclosed as part of the proposal. Failure to submit these forms will result in the application not being reviewed: a. SF 424: Official Application for Federal Assistance (see note below) b. SF 424A: Budget Information Non-Construction c. SF 424B: Assurances-Non-Construction Programs d. SF LLL: Disclosure of Lobbying Activities All applicants must submit this document. If your agency does not engage in lobbying, please insert Non-Applicable on the document and include the required Authorized Organizational Representative (AOR) name, contact information, and signature. On Item 11 Descriptive Title of Applicants Project, state the specific cooperative agreement opportunity for which you are applying: State Innovation Models. b. For Item 15 please provide a succinct descriptive title of the applicants project. Please do not add attachments in Item 15.c. Check No to item 16b, as Review by State Executive Order 12372 does not apply to these cooperative agreements. A letter from the Governor (or Mayor, if from the District of Columbia) endorsing the project and identifying the title of the project, the principal contact person and the major partners, departments, and organizations collaborating on the project. The letter (addressed as below) must be uploaded in the application. The original signed letter must be sent to the following address: Gabriel NahGrants Management Specialist Office of Acquisition and Grants Management Centers for Medicare and Medicaid Services U.S. Department of Health and Human Services Mailstop # 7700 Bethesda 5600 Fishers Lane Rockville, MD 20857 The one-page abstract (single-spaced) must succinctly describe the proposal and should include the goals of the proposal; the total budget; the number of included beneficiaries, providers, and payer participants; the projected total cost of care savings; and a description of how the funds will be used. The abstract is often distributed to provide information to the public and Congress, so it must be written in a manner that it is clear, accurate, concise, and without reference to other parts of the application. Personal identifying information should be excluded from the abstract.

Award Procedure:

CHART/SIM Successful applicants will receive a Notice of Award (NoA) signed and dated by the CMS Grants Management Officer. The NoA is the document authorizing the cooperative agreement award and will be sent through electronic mail to the applicant organization as listed on the SF424. Any communication between CMS and applicants prior to issuance of the NoA is not an authorization to begin performance of a project. Unsuccessful applicants are notified within 30 days of the final funding decision for each cooperative agreement and will receive a disapproval letter via the U.S. Postal Service and/or electronic mail.

Length and Time Phasing of Assistance:

Initial funding of Model Test and Model Design awards is contingent upon the states acceptance of the awards terms and conditions through the initial drawdown of funds and, in the case of Model Test awards, explicit CMS approval of an operational plan submitted by the state. States that received Model Design awards had twelve months from the award start date to complete their State Health System Innovation Plans and Model Designs. The project period and budget period for Model Design was one year, anticipated to be until December 31, 2015. See the following for information on how assistance is awarded/released: The 48-month project period for Round 2 Model Test is divided into four budget periods, with an initial budget period of twelve months for pre-implementation work followed by three budget periods of 12 months each. Following the initial twelve-month budget period, non-competing continuation awards have been/will be granted for each additional year of the cooperative agreement contingent upon availability of funding, state performance, and demonstrated progress towards the goals and objectives of this FOA. The anticipated test completion date for states receiving Model Test Round 2 awards is January 31, 2019. The specific period of performance for each state model will be included in the cooperative agreement and be executed upon the initial drawdown of funds by the recipient. Reports:

SIM The Innovation Center takes an active and substantial role in the evaluation and monitoring of the SIM Model Test awards. The activities funded under the cooperative agreement and their resulting State responsibilities are part of performance tracking, measuring, and evaluation responsibilities of CMS and the Innovation Center. For Model Test states CMMI will examine the extent to which states plans are being implemented, whether health care spending in those states changed over time, and the impact on health care quality. Performance assessment, monitoring, and evaluation for Model Test awards focus on: impact on quality of care, patient experience, and health status Impact on health care costs Implementation and test performance, including: o Meeting proposed design and planning or implementation and test milestones. o Demonstrating readiness to carry out design and planning work or implementation activities required to test the proposed model. o Producing timely and accurate reports showing clear progress on design and planning activities or providing the required data, and/or reports on health care cost, quality, and population health performance, as delineated in the cooperative agreement. o Community integration of health care Awardees must agree to cooperate with any federal evaluation of the model and performance results and provide required quarterly, semi-annual (every six months), annual and final (at the end of the cooperative agreement period) reports in a form prescribed by CMS. Reports are submitted electronically and include information on how cooperative agreement funds were used, describe project or model progress, and describe any barriers, delays, and measurable outcomes. CMS provides the format for project and model reporting and technical assistance necessary to complete required report forms. States must also agree to respond to requests that are necessary for the evaluation of their Model Test efforts and provide data on key elements of model performance and on results from the cooperative agreement activities. CMS will continue to make requests for data related to its evaluation beyond the end of the states performance period. The period for which CMS may continue to make such requests is further clarified in the terms and conditions of award. CMS has enlisted a third party entity to assist in evaluating the model implementation and testing performance results and outcomes. All awardees are required to cooperate in providing the necessary data elements to CMS or CMS contractor. The contractor assists CMS in developing cost, quality, beneficiary experience, and population health monitoring and review model performance to ensure model requirements are met; tracking performance across awardees and providing for monitoring and early detection of model performance issues; developing a system to collect, store, and analyze data to assess health care cost and utilization, quality performance, beneficiary experience, and population health improvements and assisting with state implementation, including coordination between states and CMS and its other contractors. Data for monitoring includes process, safety, and performance measures including beneficiary experience. It includes, but is not limited to, data on the background characteristics of the target population and target area, data characterizing the activities of the Model Test and a battery of follow-up data describing relevant characteristics of the target population or target area and metrics at selected intervals after commencement of the delivery system and/or payment model. This will include detailed information on participant characteristics and outcomes reported in a standard format. Data for monitoring is collected from awardees and/or CMS claims data, electronic health record, public health or other sources. The model monitoring aspect of this initiative balances the examination of the extent to which awardees demonstrate fidelity to their proposed delivery system and payment models and the potential need to make mid-course corrections that improve or optimize performance of the delivery system or payment models based on feedback from the monitoring and rapid cycle evaluation findings. The evaluation also assess whether there is evidence of harm or unintended consequences as a result of the models or testing methods. The evaluation strategy for this initiative includes an overall design and data collection phase and an impact evaluation. Broadly, CMS evaluates each state model and then compares all models to identify themes related to improved care and health outcomes and reduced costs. CMS has ultimate responsibility for the evaluation process and reports. An external evaluation contractor supports the Innovation Center during the Implementation and Test process. This Innovation Center evaluator works with each state to develop standards for data collection and use and for data reporting, as well as requirements for those data elements that will be collected by the states and reported to CMS. The Innovation Center evaluator also defines the measures to be used and evaluation methods to be employed. Data collection is central to the success of the evaluation. Adhering to the data collection requirements is a condition of participating in this initiative. States are expected to cooperate in the evaluation process and provide the necessary data to evaluate state models. This data is shared with the state evaluator team and with Innovation Center evaluation contractors. The evaluation relies on multi-pronged data collection in order to understand the context of the model and to capture the nuances occurring at the model sites. Data for the analyses is collected collaboratively between the Innovation Center evaluation contractor and the states themselves, and comes from sources including, but not limited to: provider surveys; Medicare administrative claims; state Medicaid and CHIP programs; beneficiary experience surveys; site visits with practices; and focus groups with beneficiaries and their families and caregivers, practice staff, direct support workers and others (e.g., payers). Additional data requirements may include states providing Medicaid encounter data (baseline and during the model test period) if relevant to program evaluation. The Innovation Center evaluation will assess the impact of the models on the quality of care, health outcomes, community health, and net saving in total costs. Towards the end of the Model Test, the Innovation Center evaluation contractor will conduct impact evaluations of the effectiveness of each state model on key outcomes for target Medicare, Medicaid, and CHIP beneficiaries. This Innovation Centers impact evaluation should provide key messages about what types of state strategies are associated with success. Ultimately, the evaluation results will identify and characterize the most effective models to inform future policy making around improving beneficiary care, improving beneficiary health, and reducing costs. The State self-evaluation contractor creates State-specific evaluations relevant to all populations and payers involved in their SIM initiative; data collection, storage, cleaning and creation of analytic datasets; continuous quality improvement and analysis of evaluation metrics on a quarterly basis; and working with the Innovation Center evaluator to supply necessary data. The State self-evaluation contractor needs to be an independent entity. The goal is for states to continue these evaluations once the SIM initiative is complete. The States agreement with their evaluation contractor will be reviewed by CMS to ensure the evaluators capabilities. This State self-evaluation contractor will provide data to both CMS evaluators and the Innovation Center external evaluation contractor(s). The Federal Financial Report (FFR or Standard Form 425) has replaced the SF-269, SF-269A, SF-272, and SF-272A financial reporting forms. All grantees must utilize the FFR to report cash transaction data, expenditures, and any program income generated. States must report on a quarterly basis cash transaction data via the Payment Management System (PMS) using the FFR in lieu of completing a SF-272/SF272A. The FFR, containing cash transaction data, is due within 30 days after the end of each quarter. The quarterly reporting due dates are as follows: 4/30, 7/30, 10/30, 1/30. A Quick Reference Guide for completing the FFR in PMS is at: www.dpm.psc.gov/grant_recipient/guides_forms/ffr_quick_reference.aspx. In addition to submitting the quarterly FFR to PMS, states must also provide, on an annual basis, a FFR to CMS which includes their expenditures and any program income generated in lieu of completing a Financial Status Report (FSR) (SF269/269A). Expenditures and any program income generated should only be included on the annually submitted FFR, as well as the final FFR. Annual FFRs must be submitted within 90 calendar days of the applicable year end date. The final FFR must be submitted within 90 calendar days of the project period end date. More details are outlined in the Notice of Award. Awards issued under this FOA are subject to the reporting requirements of the Federal Funding Accountability and Transparency Act of 2006 (Pub. L. 109282), as amended by section 6202 of Public Law 110252 and implemented by 2 CFR Part 170. Grant and cooperative agreement recipients must report information for each first-tier sub-award of $25,000 or more in Federal funds and executive total compensation for the recipients and sub-recipients five most highly compensated executives as outlined in Appendix A to 2 CFR Part 170 (available online at www.fhrs.gov).

Non-Competing Continuation awardees may be subject to this requirement and will be so notified in the Notice of Award. States must submit a quarterly electronic SF-425 via the Payment Management System. The report identifies cash expenditures against the authorized funds for the cooperative agreement. Failure to submit the report may result in the inability to access funds. The Federal Financial Report (FFR or Standard Form 425) has replaced the SF-269, SF-269A, SF-272, and SF-272A financial reporting forms. The FFR, containing cash transaction data, is due within 30 days after the end of each quarter. In addition to submitting the quarterly FFR to PMS, states must also provide, on an annual basis, a hard copy FFR to CMS which includes their expenditures and any program income generated in lieu of completing a Financial Status Report (FSR) (SF269/269A). Expenditures and any program income generated should only be included on the annually submitted FFR, as well as the final FFR. Annual hard-copy FFRs should be mailed and received within 30 calendar days of the applicable year end date. The final FFR should be mailed and received within 90 calendar days of the project period end date. More details are outlined in the Notice of Award. States must submit a quarterly electronic SF-425 via the Payment Management System. The report identifies cash expenditures against the authorized funds for the cooperative agreement. Failure to submit the report may result in the inability to access funds. Each awardee will be required to submit quarterly and annual progress reports. CMS will provide awardees with guidance and a template for progress report submissions. These reports will include narrative updates on Model activities as well as information on operational and performance milestones in accordance with the CHART Model cooperative agreement. The Innovation Center will use the periodic reports to track progress on Model goals, identify technical assistance needs, and inform learning activities for all awardees. The operations and performance milestones will support Innovation Center efforts to confirm that each awardee is able to meet program requirements and deliver high quality care to beneficiaries. The Innovation Center will also share these findings with awardees individually on an ongoing basis for quality improvement purposes. Awardees must maintain records of all source data used to calculate program milestone measures and make such data available to the Innovation Center for periodic audits. CMS will consider awardees for corrective action, funding restrictions, or termination if they do not meet the Model reporting requirements outlined in their cooperative agreement Notice of Award and Terms and Conditions. Financial Reports: Quarterly Cash Transaction Financial Reporting Recipient must report, on a quarterly basis, cash transaction data via the Payment Management System (PMS) using the Federal Financial Report (SF-425 or FFR) form. The FFR combines the information that recipients previously provided using two forms: the Federal Cash Transactions Report (PSC-272) and the Financial Status Report (SF-269). Cash transactions data is reflected through completion of lines 10a-10c on the FFR. Recipient must include information on indirect costs if approved as part of grant (or cooperative agreement) award. The quarterly FFR is due within (30) days after the end of each quarter. Semi-Annual, Annual, and Final Expenditure Reporting Recipient must also report on Federal expenditures, Recipient Share (if applicable), and Program Income (if applicable and/or allowable) at least annually. Frequency of expenditure reporting, whether semi-annually or annually, is stipulated in the Program Terms and Conditions of award. This information is reflected through completion of lines 10d through 10o of the FFR. Recipient must include information on indirect costs if approved as part of grant (or cooperative agreement) award. Additional information on financial reporting will be provided in the terms and conditions of award. Federal Funding Accountability and Transparency Act Reporting Requirements New awards issued under this NOFO are subject to the reporting requirements of the Federal Funding Accountability and Transparency Act of 2006 (Pub. L. 109 282), as amended by section 6202 of Public Law 110252 and implemented by 2 CFR Part 170. Grant and cooperative agreement recipients must report information for each first-tier sub-award of $25,000 or more in Federal funds and executive total compensation for the recipients and sub-recipients five most highly compensated executives as outlined in Appendix A to 2 CFR Part 170 (available online at https://www.fhrs.gov/Payment Management System Reporting Requirements). Once an award is made, the funds are posted in recipient accounts established in the Payment Management System (PMS). Recipients may then access their funds by using the PMS funds request process. Recipients must submit a quarterly SF-425 via PMS. The report identifies cash transactions against the authorized funds for the award. Failure to submit the report may result in the ability to access funds. The PMS funds request process enables recipients to request funds using a Personal Computer with an Internet connection. The funds are then delivered to the recipient via Electronic Funds Transfer (EFT). If you are a new recipient, please go to PMS Access Procedures to find information to register in PMS. If you need further help with that process, please contact the One-DHHS Help Desk via email at pmssupport@psc.gov or call (877) 614-5533 for assistance. Ultimately, the evaluation results will identify and characterize the most effective models to inform future policy making around improving beneficiary care, improving beneficiary health, and reducing costs. The State self-evaluation contractor creates State-specific evaluations relevant to all populations and payers involved in their SIM initiative; data collection, storage, cleaning and creation of analytic datasets; continuous quality improvement and analysis of evaluation metrics on a quarterly basis; and working with the Innovation Center evaluator to supply necessary data. The State self-evaluation contractor needs to be an independent entity. The goal is for states to continue these evaluations once the SIM initiative is complete. The States agreement with their evaluation contractor will be reviewed by CMS to ensure the evaluators capabilities. This State self-evaluation contractor will provide data to both CMS evaluators and the Innovation Center external evaluation contractor(s). The Federal Financial Report (FFR or Standard Form 425) has replaced the SF-269, SF-269A, SF-272, and SF-272A financial reporting forms. All grantees must utilize the FFR to report cash transaction data, expenditures, and any program income generated. States must report on a quarterly basis cash transaction data via the Payment Management System (PMS) using the FFR in lieu of completing a SF-272/SF272A. The FFR, containing cash transaction data, is due within 30 days after the end of each quarter. The quarterly reporting due dates are as follows: 4/30, 7/30, 10/30, 1/30. A Quick Reference Guide for completing the FFR in PMS is at: www.dpm.psc.gov/grant_recipient/guides_forms/ffr_quick_reference.aspx. In addition to submitting the quarterly FFR to PMS, states must also provide, on an annual basis, a FFR to CMS which includes their expenditures and any program income generated in lieu of completing a Financial Status Report (FSR) (SF269/269A). Expenditures and any program income generated should only be included on the annually submitted FFR, as well as the final FFR. Annual FFRs must be submitted within 90 calendar days of the applicable year end date. The final FFR must be submitted within 90 calendar days of the project period end date. More details are outlined in the Notice of Award. Awards issued under this FOA are subject to the reporting requirements of the Federal Funding Accountability and Transparency Act of 2006 (Pub. L. 109282), as amended by section 6202 of Public Law 110252 and implemented by 2 CFR Part 170. Grant and cooperative agreement recipients must report information for each first-tier sub-award of $25,000 or more in Federal funds and executive total compensation for the recipients and sub-recipients five most highly compensated executives as outlined in Appendix A to 2 CFR Part 170 (available online at www.fhrs.gov). Non-Competing Continuation awardees may be subject to this requirement and will be so notified in the Notice of Award. States must submit a quarterly electronic SF-425 via the Payment Management System. The report identifies cash expenditures against the authorized funds for the cooperative agreement. Failure to submit the report may result in the inability to access funds. performance results and outcomes. CMS plans to collect data elements to be part of monitoring for all of the different state models, and these monitoring and surveillance elements will feed into the evaluation. All awardees will be required to cooperate in providing the necessary data elements to CMS or a CMS contractor. The contractor would assist CMS in developing a cost, quality, beneficiary experience, and population health monitoring and review model performance to ensure model design requirements are met; tracking performance across awardees and providing for rapid cycle evaluation and early detection of model performance issues; developing a system to collect, store, and analyze data to assess health care cost and utilization, quality performance, beneficiary experience, and population health improvements and assisting with state implementation, including coordination between states and CMS and its other contractors. Data for monitoring will include process, safety, and performance measures including beneficiary experience. It will include, but will not be limited to, data on the background characteristics of the target population and target area, data characterizing the activities of the model testing and a battery of follow-up data describing relevant characteristics of the target population or target area and metrics at selected intervals after commencement of the delivery system and/or payment model. This will include detailed information on participant characteristics and outcomes reported in a standard format. Data for monitoring will be collected from awardees and/or CMS claims data, electronic health record, public health or other sources. The model monitoring aspect of this initiative will balance the examination of the extent to which awardees demonstrate fidelity to their proposed delivery system and payment models and the potential need to make mid-course corrections that improve or optimize performance of the delivery system or payment models based on feedback from the monitoring and rapid cycle evaluation findings. The evaluation will also assess whether there is evidence of harm or unintended consequences as a result of the models or testing methods.

CMS will award up to 15 cooperative agreements of $5 million per Community. SIMModel Test: 11 Model Test cooperative agreements were awarded under this State Innovation Models initiative. Awards for Model Test states range from $20-100 million per state, based on the size of the state population and the scope of the proposal. The amount awarded will include any state cost of testing the model and meeting state and federal evaluation requirements as specified in Section V.3 below. While the Innovation Center is responsible for the evaluation of each Model Test, states must also develop their own model evaluation process, under the guidance of the Innovation Center. The state evaluations should include an examination of the models impact on the entire state population. In general, CMS expects that Model Test awards will cover only costs that are not normally part of a states operational cost, data collection cost, or administrative cost.

CRITERIA FOR SELECTING PROPOSALS:

Model Test applications will be reviewed by an expert review panel and scored based on the quality of the proposals. The SIM Round 2 Model Test criteria for selection are as follows: Model Test Plan (50 points) a. Model Test applicant must demonstrate the ability to test innovative payment reforms that have the potential to accelerate transformation. The elements of the Model Test plans will be evaluated on the following criteria: Well developed, detailed and clear annual cost and quality targets, which the state commits to review and report at least annually;Use of policy and regulatory state levers to support successful health care transformation in the state;Alignment with existing CMS programs and other state programs;Number of residents directly affected by the Model Test;Number of providers and payers participating in the Model Test;Likelihood of accelerating delivery system transformation;Development and use of health IT infrastructure (See Appendix 2: Health Information Technology Plan). b. As this initiative is intended to reach a preponderance of a states population, a states decision to expand

Medicaid will be an important factor in assessing the states readiness to implement a state-wide plan for improving population health. Additionally, because Medicaid can serve as an important lever for driving delivery transformation, states should describe Medicaid expansion activities and the percentage of a states population covered by Medicaid. c. The Model Test must offer and clearly demonstrate a pathway to a high potential for success in producing better health, better care and lower costs through improvement for Medicare, Medicaid/CHIP, and Medicare-Medicaid enrollee populations as well as other health care consumers within the state. d. The model must describe in detail the target populations, geographic areas, or communities that will be the focus of Model Testing, the current quality and beneficiary experience outcomes including current health population status, and the specific improvement targets expected from the Model. e. The state must identify specific implementable plans to collaborate with the CDC to develop a state-wide plan for improving population health. The plans will include developing collaborative approaches to improving population health that engage public health officials and provider organizations. (See Appendix 1: Plan for Improving Population Health). f. The state must demonstrate engagement in HHS initiatives to improve health and health care delivery. g. Integrated data is used not only to directly support the implementation of health care interventions but also to inform and improve the model throughout the period of the award. The state must include a clear feedback loop and strategies for continuous monitoring and improvement of the model through collection and analysis of data across payers and partners. h. The state must identify strategies they will employ to leverage State Marketplace Exchanges to further advance value-based payment methodologies. Provider Engagement Strategy (10 Points) The state must demonstrate a clear, sustained commitment to participation and implementation of the health transformation model of major stakeholders including but not limited to advocacy groups, local governments, social service providers, and providers of acute health care, behavioral/mental health care, long term care (including home and community services as well as long term care facility services) in the state, including but not limited to state-owned entities, providers of acute health care, behavioral/mental health care, long term care (including home and community services as well as long-term care facility services). Payer and Other Stakeholder Strategy (10 Points) The state must also demonstrate participation on the part of commercial payers with respect to both financial and quality measurement alignment. The state should identify a broad group of stakeholders involved in the execution of the Model Test, including but not limited to advocacy groups, local governments and social service providers. Operational Plan (20 points) States must demonstrate the organizational and operational capacity, organizational structure, leadership and expertise to successfully implement Model Test processes. The detailed project plan and timeline should be well described and clearly demonstrate how the state will successfully lead health transformation in the state with resources provided. The project leadership must clearly demonstrate the required knowledge, skills, abilities and experience to ensure efficient, smooth and effective implementation. States must also include a sustainability plan for the next 4 years beyond the period of the award that includes changes in personnel or administration as well as a clearly detailed plan for continued financing to support sustained health reform/transformation after CMMI award funding is exhausted. Model Test Budget Narrative and Financial Analysis (10 points) The proposed budget is carefully developed, is consistent with the Model Test requirements, and is clearly linked to support of a successful implementation plan. Overhead and administrative costs are limited to 10% of direct costs with funding focused on direct support of the Model Test. States must indicate other specific resources that will aid in implementing the Model Test plan, including descriptions of how these resources directly support health transformation in the state. The proposal must document how the overall Financial Analysis, including population and intervention specific savings, will be developed, how return on investment will be calculated, and how the state will incorporate non-CMMI funding (particularly commitments from the multi-payer collaborators, including but not limited to other state and local government resources) into the overall health transformation plan. Based on scores from the Expert Panel Review, selected applicants will be invited to present in person (in the Baltimore/Washington Metropolitan area) to an HHS Leadership Panel (see Section I.4.A. Model Test: Proposal Requirements for more information). The HHS Leadership Panel members are individuals who possess knowledge or expertise in innovative health care payment and service delivery models. They will review the applications prior to the presentations, consult during the presentations, and subsequently provide advice to the approving official. The presentations will help to ensure that only those applications that offer the greatest potential for furthering program purposes are selected for funding. The presentations will include the information from the FOA but will also be expected to highlight the following: State and Stakeholder Commitment States must demonstrate a commitment by a broad coalition of stakeholders, including state leadership, during the in-person presentation. The role and contribution of each stakeholder will be considered. Likelihood of Success States must demonstrate that their specific approach, through the joint efforts of stakeholders, will be likely to result in achieve success by reducing costs, improving quality and promoting delivery system transformation. Novelty of Payment Model State should demonstrate how their payment model presents a unique approach to delivery reform that would accelerate delivery transformation in a manner that has not been test on a state-wide scale. Ability to Align with Medicare Programs States should articulate how their proposal would align with existing CMS programs. For example, a multi-payer ACO approach could complement and align with the Medicare Share Savings program. State could also demonstrate how this alignment will further delivery transformation and reduces costs and improve care for all-payers, including Medicare. Model Design applications will be reviewed and scored based on the quality of the proposals. In-person presentations are not required for the Model Design applicants. The criteria for Round 2 Model Design selection as follows: Model Design Strategy (30 points) States must demonstrate a clear process for designing a plan with the engagement of multiple components of state government and with key stakeholders. The design strategy should specifically identify the levers the state would seek to develop and incorporate into a comprehensive state plan, such as the states Medicaid program, state employee health plans, stated-owned academic medical centers, etc. States must explain the unique features of their design efforts and their strategy for designing a plan that aligns with existing CMS efforts and can be implemented on a multi-payer basis. States should demonstrate efforts to improve access to care to vulnerable populations. States should also include strategies that leverage State Marketplace Exchanges in expanding value-based payment methodologies. As this initiative is intended to reach a preponderance of a states population, a states decision to expand Medicaid will be an important factor in assessing its potential impact. Continuing Round 1 Model Design states must demonstrate progress in developing their design plans and clearly articulate how proposed strategies will enhance their Round 1 efforts. Provider Engagement Strategy (15 Points) States must demonstrate the commitment of major providers of health care in the state, including behavioral/mental health care, long term care providers and state-owned entities, behavioral/mental health care, long-term care, and long-term services and supports, to participate in the design of the State Health System Innovation Plan. Continuing Round 1 Model Design states must demonstrate appreciable progress to date in engaging providers. Payer and other Stakeholder Engagement Strategy (15 points) The state must describe its strategy for designing a State Health System Innovation Plan that includes multi-payer payment innovation and measure alignment. The design of these aspects of the plan must include the participation of commercial payers and purchasers as well as various stakeholders, including state health associations and advocacy groups. States are expected to identify a broad group of stakeholders and create a mechanism for their effective participation in planning of the State Health System Innovation Plan and document the development of a multi-payer Model Design with stakeholder input. Round 1 Model Design states must demonstrate results in engaging payers and other stakeholders. Operational Plan (10 points) The state must demonstrate the organizational capacity, organizational structure, leadership, and expertise to successfully complete the Model Design process. The project plan and timeline should be detailed and well described. The staff or consultants proposed to lead the planning effort should have the skills and experience needed to ensure smooth and effective implementation. Model Design Budget Narrative and Financial Analysis (30 points) The proposed budget is carefully developed and consistent with the Model Design requirements. Overhead and administrative costs are reasonable (limited to 10% of direct costs) with funding focused on supporting the Model Design effort. States should indicate other resources that will aid in designing the State Health System Innovation Plan. The proposal should document how the overall Financial Analysis, including population and intervention specific savings, will be developed. Part of the review process will include an analysis of the readiness of the state to complete the design process within one year after approval of a cooperative agreement award.

93.638 ACA-Transforming Clinical Practice Initiative: Practice Transformation Networks (PTNs)

TCPI,

FEDERAL AGENCY:

CENTERS FOR MEDICARE AND MEDICAID SERVICES, HEALTH AND HUMAN SERVICES, DEPARTMENT OF

AUTHORIZATION:

Section 1115A of the Social Security Act (the Act), as added by 3021 of the Affordable Care Act, which authorizes the Center for Medicare & Medicaid Innovation (CMMI or the Innovation Center) to test innovative payment and service delivery models to reduce spending under Medicare, Medicaid, or CHIP, while preserving or enhancing the quality of care furnished to beneficiaries under those programs. The TCPI is a service delivery model that tests whether providing technical assistance in a specific complex adaptive manner will enable clinicians and their practices to rapidly transform the way they deliver care to patients, resulting in improved health outcomes and reduced costs. The authority for the TCPI model is section 1115A of the Social Security Act (the Act). Under section 1115A(d)(1) of the Act, the Secretary of Health and Human Services may waive such requirements of Titles XI and XVIII and of sections 1902(a)(1), 1902(a)(13), and 1903(m)(2)(A)(iii) as may be necessary solely for purposes of carrying out section 1115A with respect to testing models described in section 1115A(b). For this model and consistent with this standard, the Secretary may consider issuing waivers of certain fraud and abuse provisions in sections 1128A, 1128B, and 1877 of the Act. Waivers are not being issued in this document; waivers, if any, would be set forth in separately issued documentation. Thus, notwithstanding any other provision of this Funding Opportunity Announcement, awardees and subawardees must comply with all applicable laws and regulations, except as explicitly provided in any such separately documented waiver issued pursuant to section 1115A(d)(1) specifically for the TCPI model. Any such waiver would apply solely to the TCPI model and could differ in scope or design from waivers granted for other programs or models.,

OBJECTIVES:

The Transforming Clinical Practice Initiative (TCPI) model will test whether a three-pronged approach to national technical assistance will enable large scale transformation of thousands of clinician practices to deliver better care and result in better health outcomes at lower costs. Practice Transformation Networks (PTN) formed by group practices, health care systems, and others that join together to serve as trusted partners to provide clinician practices with quality improvement (QI) expertise, best practices, coaching and help as they prepare and begin clinical and operational practice transformation. These organizations will collaboratively lead clinicians and practices through the TCPI phases of transformation, achieve the TCPI goals, and through adaptive redesign position these clinicians and their practices to be sustainable components of the changing care delivery system.

N/A Method of awarding/releasing assistance: quarterly

Reports:

CMS plans to continuously monitor PTN awardees for this model test through monthly, quarterly and annual reporting requirements in order to ensure that milestones that they are responsible for achieving are met, and to ensure that technical assistance and recruitment activities are being conducted in a manner that is effective, as well as equitable toward and inclusive of CMS beneficiaries and the medically underserved. This will include quarterly monitoring trends in a PTNs recruited clinicians and their practices characteristics, as well as utilization patterns for populations served by PTN participants. We will be requiring regular aggregate reporting of practice population characteristics, attrition and accretion, and utilization stratified by the payer categories: Medicare, Medicaid, CHIP, commercial, and other, in order to monitor equity in both composition and impact of services. Doing so will also allow us to estimate cost savings by payer category. These data would be reported by the PTN on a monthly basis, and will also be used to assess savings impacts for the model over time. In addition, we will use existing CMS data (Medicare fee for service claims data) and reporting systems (physician quality reporting and meaningful use program data) as part of our monitoring efforts, in order to minimize the reporting burden on practices participating in PTNs. The Federal Financial Report (FFR or Standard Form 425) has replaced the SF-269, SF-269A, SF-272, and SF-272A financial reporting forms. All grantees must utilize the FFR to report cash transaction data, expenditures, and any program income generated. Grantees must report on a quarterly basis cash transaction data via the Payment Management System (PMS) using the FFR in lieu of completing a SF-272/SF272A. The FFR, containing cash transaction data, is due within 30 days after the end of each quarter. The quarterly reporting due dates are as follows: 4/30, 7/30, 10/30, 1/30. A Quick Reference Guide for completing the FFR in PMS is at: www.dpm.psc.gov/grant_recipient/guides_forms/ffr_quick_reference.aspx. In addition to submitting the quarterly FFR to PMS, Grantees must also provide, on an annual basis, a report to be uploaded into GrantSolutions which includes their expenditures and any program income generated in lieu of completing a Financial Status Report (FSR) (SF269/269A). Expenditures and any program income generated should only be included on the annually submitted FFR, as well as the final FFR. Annual hard-copy FFRs should be mailed and received within 30 calendar days of the applicable year end date. The final FFR should be uploaded in GrantSolutions within 90 calendar days of the project period end date. More details will be outlined in the Notice of Award. Awardees must agree to cooperate with any Federal evaluation of the model and performance results and provide required quarterly, semi-annual (every six months), annual and final (at the end of the cooperative agreement period) reports in a form prescribed by CMS. In the implementation of TCPI, applicants will receive qualitative and quantitative data from their recruited practices. Applicants selected as PTNs will submit reports electronically. These reports will include how cooperative agreement funds were used, describe project or model progress, and describe any barriers, delays, and measurable outcomes. CMS will provide the format for project and model reporting and technical assistance necessary to complete required report forms. Awardees must also agree to respond to requests that are necessary for the evaluation of the TCPI model and provide data on key elements of model performance and on results from the cooperative agreement activities. CMS will enlist a third party entity to assist CMS in monitoring the model implementation and testing performance results and outcomes. CMS plans to continuously monitor SANs awardees for this model test through monthly, quarterly and annual reporting requirements in order to ensure that milestones that they are responsible for achieving are met, and to ensure that technical assistance and recruitment activities are being conducted in a manner that is effective, as well as equitable toward and inclusive of CMS beneficiaries and the medically underserved. This will include quarterly monitoring trends in a SANs recruited clinicians and their practices characteristics, as well as utilization patterns for populations served by SANs participants. We will be requiring regular aggregate reporting of practice population characteristics, attrition and accretion, and utilization stratified by the payer categories: Medicare, Medicaid, CHIP, commercial, and other, in order to monitor equity in both composition and impact of services. Doing so will also allow us to estimate cost savings by payer category. These data would be reported by the SANs on a monthly basis, and will also be used to assess savings impacts for the model over time. In addition, we will use existing CMS data (Medicare fee for service claims data) and reporting systems (physician quality reporting and meaningful use program data) as part of our monitoring efforts, in order to minimize the reporting burden on practices participating in SANs. The Federal Financial Report (FFR or Standard Form 425) has replaced the SF-269, SF-269A, SF-272, and SF-272A financial reporting forms. All grantees must utilize the FFR to report cash transaction data, expenditures, and any program income generated. Grantees must report on a quarterly basis cash transaction data via the Payment Management System (PMS) using the FFR in addition to completing a SF-272/SF272A. The FFR, containing cash transaction data, is due within 30 days after the end of each quarter. The quarterly reporting due dates are as follows: 4/30, 7/30, 10/30, 1/30. The PMS User Guide for completing the FFR in PMS is at: <https://pms.psc.gov/pms-user-guide/federal-cash-transaction-report.html>. In addition to submitting the quarterly FFR to PMS, Grantees must also provide, on a semi-annual basis, a financial report to be uploaded into PMS which includes their award subaccount expenditures and any program income generated in addition to completing a Federal Financial Report (FFR) (SF 425). Expenditures and any program income generated should only be included on the semi-annual FFR, as well as the final FFR. Electronic FFRs should be submitted in PMS within 30 calendar days of the performance period end date. The final FFR should be uploaded in PMS within 90 calendar days of the project period end date. More details will be outlined in the Notice of Award. Awardees must agree to submit quarterly programmatic progress reports and a final progress report. These reports should include narrative updates on planning grant activities as well as information on each recipients approved work plan as specified in each recipients approved application in accordance with the Section 9813 State Planning Grants for Mobile Crisis Intervention Services Cooperative Agreement. CMS will enlist a third party entity to assist CMS in monitoring the model implementation and testing performance results and outcomes. Length and Time Phasing of Assistance:

Project periods are for 1 to 5 years with 12-month budget periods based on individual funding opportunities. Method of awarding/releasing assistance: lump sum.

Reports:

Semi-annual reports from each entity awarded a grant, cooperative agreement, or contract, summarizing the activities undertaken and identifying any sub-grants or sub-contracts awarded (including the purpose of the award and the identity of the recipient), to be posted not later than 30 days after the end of each 6-month period. Reporting provides continuous program monitoring and identifies successes and challenges that awardees encounter throughout the project period. Also, reporting is a requirement for awardees who want to apply for yearly continuation of funding. Awardees must submit an Annual Performance Report via www.grants.gov 120 days before the end of each budget period. The report must not exceed 45 pages excluding administrative reporting; attachments are not allowed, but Web links are allowed. This report must include the following: performance measures, evaluation results, work plan, successes, challenges, CDC program support needs, and administrative reporting. The annual FFR form (SF-425) is required and must be submitted through eRA Commons within 90 days after each budget period ends. The report must include only those funds authorized and disbursed during the timeframe covered by the report. The final report must indicate the exact balance of unobligated funds, and may not reflect any unliquidated obligations. The final FFR expenditure data and the Payment Management Systems (PMS) cash transaction data must correspond; no discrepancies between the data sets are permitted. Failure to submit the required information by the due date may affect adversely the future funding of the project. If the information cannot be provided by the due date, awardees are required to submit a letter of explanation and include the date by which the information will be provided. Awardees must provide a more detailed evaluation and performance measurement plan within the first six months of the project. This more detailed plan must be developed by awardees as part of first-year project activities, with support from CDC. This more detailed plan must build on the elements stated in the initial plan, and must be no more than 25 pages. Awardees are required to submit performance measures annually as a minimum, and may require reporting more frequently. Performance measure reporting is limited to data collection. When funding is awarded initially, CDC programs will specify required reporting frequency, data fields, and format.

Audits:

In accordance with the provisions of 2 CFR 200, Subpart F - Audit Requirements, nonfederal entities that expend financial assistance of $750,000 or more in Federal awards will have a single or a program-specific audit conducted for that year. Non-Federal entities that expend less than $750,000 a year in Federal awards are exempt from Federal audit requirements for that year, except as noted in 2 CFR 200.503

Records:

Financial records, supporting documents, statistical records, and all other records pertinent to the project must be kept readily available for review by personnel authorized to examine PHS grant accounts. Records must be maintained for a minimum of 3 years after the end of a budget period. If questions still remain, such as those raised as a result of an audit, records must be retained until completion or resolution of any audit in process or pending resolution. 93.650 Accountable Health Communities

AHC,

FEDERAL AGENCY:

CENTERS FOR MEDICARE AND MEDICAID SERVICES, HEALTH AND HUMAN SERVICES, DEPARTMENT OF

AUTHORIZATION:

Section 1115A of the Social Security Act (the Act), as amended by section 3021 of the Affordable Care Act (ACA), authorizes the Innovation Center to test innovative payment and service delivery models to reduce Medicare, Medicaid, or CHIP expenditures, while preserving or enhancing the quality of beneficiaries care. The AHC is a service delivery model under section 1115A that tests whether systematic screening for health-related social needs in clinical settings, along with referral to community resources and navigation services, impacts overall health care cost and utilization.

OBJECTIVES:

The Centers for Medicare & Medicaid Services (CMS), Center for Medicare and Medicaid Innovation (the Innovation Center), will assess whether systematically identifying and addressing the health-related social needs of community-dwelling Medicare and Medicaid beneficiaries, including those who are dually eligible, impacts those beneficiaries total health care costs and their inpatient and outpatient utilization. Section 3021 of the ACA authorizes the Innovation Center to design, implement and evaluate innovative payment and service delivery models to improve quality and reduce costs. Rigorous evaluation requirements of the models impact influence model design parameters. The Accountable Health Communities (AHC) Model is based on emerging evidence that addressing health-related social needs through enhanced clinical-community linkages can improve health outcomes and reduce costs. This model will support community collaboration to systematically: (1) screen beneficiaries to identify unmet health-related social needs; (2) refer beneficiaries to increase awareness of community services; (3) provide person-centered navigation services to assist beneficiaries with accessing community services to resolve health related social needs; and (4) align clinical and community services to ensure that community services are available and responsive to the needs of beneficiaries. The expectation is that these efforts will lead to a reduction in health care utilization and costs. The funding opportunity announcement (FOA) initially offered three interventions of varying intensity (each referred to as a track) to better link beneficiaries to community services: the Assistance Track Intervention, the Alignment Track Intervention or a third opportunity called the Awareness Track. The Awareness Track opportunity has subsequently been withdrawn. The Assistance Track Intervention will test whether assisting beneficiaries with accessing services through community service navigation impacts total health care cost and inpatient and outpatient health care utilization. This intervention offers universal screening of health-related social needs, use of a community resource inventory to connect beneficiaries to available community services, identification of high-risk beneficiaries as part of a smarter spending strategy to target additional resources where they are needed the most, and community service navigation to assist high risk beneficiaries with resolving health-related social needs. The Alignment Track Intervention builds on the intervention of the Assistance Track and tests whether a combination of navigation services at the individual beneficiary level and partner alignment at the community level impacts total health care costs and ED visits and inpatient hospital admissions. This approach recognizes that there are significant barriers to effective integration of the health care delivery systems, governmental public health systems, and the community-based service system due to different cultures, funding streams and data systems. Effective and responsive infrastructures are needed to ensure that community services are available and address the health-related social needs of beneficiaries. The Alignment intervention incorporates innovations included in the Assistance Track and adds structural and financial support designed to foster community-wide realignment of resources to more effectively address beneficiaries health-related social needs. Successful applicants were selected to participate in a single track for a five-year period. Although tracks share common design elements, each tracks intervention pathway and underlying hypothesis is distinct.

USES AND USE RESTRICTIONS:

The FOA provided three different funding opportunities; eligible entities applied for awards in the Assistance Track, Alignment Track, or a third opportunity called the Awareness Track. The Awareness Track opportunity has subsequently been withdrawn. The Assistance Track Intervention, through a randomized design, is testing whether assisting beneficiaries with accessing community services through community service navigation impacts total health care costs and inpatient and outpatient health care utilization. These cooperative agreements support systematic screening and referral and community service navigation. Funding for the Assistance Track supports the required work to implement this intervention. CMMI expects awardees to: (1) Offer to systematically screen all community-dwelling Medicare and Medicaid beneficiaries for health-related social needs; (2) Prepare a community referral summary for each beneficiary with a health-related social need that addresses the health-related social needs identified through the screening tool; (3) Review the community referral summary with each beneficiary with an identified health-related social need; (4) Distribute a copy of the community referral summary to each beneficiary with an identified health-related social need; (5) Identify high-risk beneficiaries with health-related social needs based on ED utilization history; and (6) Provide community service navigation services to high-risk beneficiaries in the intervention group, including an in-depth personal interview, development of a person-centered action plan and follow-up to address health-related social needs. The Alignment Track Intervention will determine whether a combination of referrals to community service providers and community service navigation at the individual beneficiary level and partner alignment at the community level impacts total health care costs and inpatient and outpatient health care utilization. These cooperative agreements support: systematic screening and referral; community service navigation; and partner alignment. Funding for the Alignment Track supports the required work to implement this intervention. CMMI expects awardees to: (1) Offer to systematically screen all community-dwelling Medicare and Medicaid beneficiaries for health-related social needs; (2) Prepare a community referral summary for each beneficiary that addresses the health-related social needs identified through the screening tool; (3) Review the community referral summary with each beneficiary with an identified health-related social need; (4) Distribute a copy of the community referral summary to each beneficiary with an identified health-related social need; (5) Identify high-risk beneficiaries with health-related social needs based on ED utilization history; (6) Provide community service navigation services to high-risk beneficiaries in the intervention group, including an in-depth personal interview, development of a person-centered action plan and follow-up to address health-related social needs; and (7) Implement a community-level quality improvement approach whereby the award recipient delineates a geographic target area and assumes certain integrator functions, including: convening and working with an Advisory Board; collecting data and using those data to conduct gap analyses; and developing quality improvement plans to inform community decision-making and coordination between clinical delivery sites, community service providers, local government and other partners such as MA plans and MCOs that cover community-dwelling beneficiaries in the geographic target area. Allowable costs associated with the AHC intervention include: Data collection (including at the clinical delivery sites), analysis, and reporting cost associated with program performance and continuous quality improvement; Coordination with CMS rapid cycle evaluation, and costs for collecting and preparing data for CMS evaluator; Staff resources associated with model management and project management, including travel to AHC workshops and conferences; Intervention service delivery costs; Tracking system for collecting and reporting metrics required by CMS; Infrastructure costs related to providing: systematic screening and referrals, community service navigation, and partner alignment (Alignment track only); Model beneficiary assignment or reconciliation costs; Web and internet collaborative learning and communication costs; Project management and reporting costs; Business operations associated with the model; and Model management and administration for consortia and clinical delivery site relationships. CMS did not fund proposals that duplicated models for populations that are already being funded and tested as part of another CMS or federal government initiative. CMS is not paying directly for community service provision (e.g., housing, food, violence intervention programs, and transportation) through the AHC Model. Rather, award money will fund systems change interventions to connect beneficiaries with available community services. Costs that were not over and above financing provided for existing Medicaid State plans or waivers series were not considered. No cooperative agreement funds awarded under this solicitation can be used to reimburse pre-award costs. Prohibited Uses of Cooperative Agreement funds also include the use of funds to: match any other federal funds; provide services, equipment, or support that are the legal responsibility of another party under federal or state law or under any civil rights laws; supplant existing federal, state, local, or private funding of infrastructure or services; pay for the use of specific components, devices, equipment, or personnel that are not integrated into the proposed AHC intervention; and Lobby or advocate for changes in federal and/or state law. Terms and Conditions: Cooperative agreements issued under this FOA are subject to the Department of Health and Human Services Grants Policy Statement (HHS GPS) at <http://www.hhs.gov/asfr/ogapa/about/hhsgps107.pdf>. The standard terms and conditions in the HHS GPS will apply as indicated unless there are statutory, regulatory, or award-specific requirements to the contrary. Standard and program specific terms of award accompany the Notice of Award. Potential applicants should be aware that special requirements could apply to cooperative agreement awards based on the particular circumstances of the effort to be supported and/or deficiencies identified in the application by the CMS review panel. The recently released Uniform Guidance (2 CFR Part 200) and HHS regulations (45 CFR Part 75) supersede information on administrative requirements, cost principles, and audit requirements for grants and cooperative agreements included in the current HHS Grants Policy Statement where differences are identified. Awardees must also agree to respond to requests, from CMS that are necessary for the evaluation of national efforts and provide data on core elements of their own cooperative agreement activities. Cooperative Agreement (Special) Terms and Conditions of Award: The following categories of special terms of award are in addition to, and not in lieu of, otherwise applicable HHS grant administration policies. CMS reserves the right to include any of these in the cooperative agreement with an appropriate level of specific details, some of which are provided below: Reporting (financial, quality, progress); Learning and Diffusion (training); Stakeholders (public notice, tribal consultation); Beneficiaries (related to AHC services); Providers (training related to AHC); Project monitoring; Data collection; Evaluation; Termination; Funding; Financial arrangements; Operations; and Program Integrity.

Applicant Eligibility:

Federal; State (includes District of Columbia, public institutions of higher education and hospitals); Federally Recognized Indian Tribal Governments; U.S. Territories and possessions; Private nonprofit institution/organization (includes institutions of higher education and hospitals); State; Community-based organizations, individual and group healthcare practices, hospitals and health systems, institutions of higher education (IHE), local government entities, tribal organizations and for-profit and not-for-profit local and national entities with the capacity to develop and maintain relationships with clinical delivery sites and community service providers. Applicants from all 50 states, United States territories (American Samoa, Guam, Northern Mariana Islands, Puerto Rico, and the Virgin Islands), and the District of Columbia were eligible to become bridge organizations. Eligible IHEs were limited to college and university health care affiliates delivering clinical services, such as community-based clinics, hospital networks, and health systems. Local government entities included, but were not limited to, local units of state and regional agencies where such classifications exist, local and tribal health departments, local public housing authorities, Indian housing authorities, and local community service agencies. Local government entities excluded state Medicaid agencies.

Beneficiary Eligibility:

Federal; U.S. Territories; State; Federally Recognized Indian Tribal Governments; Potential applicants were limited to the eligible entities described in the sections above. Successful applicants provide intervention services to community-dwelling Medicare and Medicaid beneficiaries, including dually eligible beneficiaries. Community-dwelling beneficiaries include beneficiaries not residing in a correctional facility or long-term care institution (e.g., long-stay nursing homes) when accessing clinical care at a participating clinical delivery site. Awardee applications described the target populations, geographic areas, and communities that are the focus of the AHC intervention, the current quality and beneficiary experience outcomes, including current needs assessments of health-related social needs, and specific targets to be impacted by the AHC intervention.

Credentials/Documentation:

Employer Identification Number: All applicants needed a valid Employer Identification Number (EIN) assigned by the Internal Revenue Service. Dun and Bradstreet (D&B) Data Universal Numbering System (DUNS number): All applicants needed a Dun and Bradstreet (D&B) Data Universal Numbering System (DUNS) number in order to apply. The DUNS number is a nine-digit identification number that uniquely identifies business entities. Obtaining a DUNS number is free. To obtain a DUNS number, access the following website: www.dunandbradstreet.com or call 1-866-705-5711. See Section IV, Application and Submission Information, for more information on obtaining a DUNS number. System for Award Management (SAM): All applicants were required to register in the System for Award Management (SAM) database (<https://www.sam.gov/portal/public/SAM/>) in order to be able to submit their application at <http://www.grants.gov>. In order to register, applicants provided their DUNS and EIN numbers. Each year, organizations and entities that registered to apply for Federal grants through Grants.gov must renew their registration with SAM. Failure to renew SAM registration prior to submitting an application would have prevented an applicant from successfully applying via Grants.gov. Similarly, the failure to maintain an active SAM registration during the application review process would have prevented CMS from issuing an award under this program. Awardees must successfully register with SAM prior to registering in the Federal Funding Accountability and Transparency Act Sub-award Reporting System (FSRS) as a prime awardee user; awardees may make sub-awards only to entities that have DUNS numbers. Organizations reported executive compensation as part of the registration profile at <https://www.sam.gov/portal/public/SAM/> by the end of the month following the month when their awards were made, and annually thereafter (based on the reporting requirements of the Federal Funding Accountability and Transparency Act (FFATA) of 2006 (Pub. L. 109-282), as amended by Section 6202 of Public Law 110-252 and implemented by 2 Code of Federal Regulations (CFR) Part 170). The Grants Management Specialist assigned to monitor the sub-award and executive compensation reporting requirements is Iris Grady, who can be reached at divisionofgrantsmanagement@cms.hhs.gov. Awardees were previously required to register with the Central Contractor Registration (CCR). The CCR was a government-wide registry for organizations that sought to do business with the federal government. CCR collected, validated, stored, and disseminated data to support a variety of federal initiatives. This function is now fulfilled by SAM. SAM has integrated the CCR and will also incorporate seven other federal procurement systems into a new, streamlined system. If an awardee had an active record in CCR prior to the rollout of SAM, an active record would be available in SAM. Please consult the SAM website listed above for additional information. 2 CFR 200, Subpart E - Cost Principles applies to this program. 2 CFR 200, Sub-part E - Cost Principles applies to this program.

Reports:

All successful applicants under this announcement must comply with the following reporting and review activities: Progress Reports: Award recipients must agree to cooperate with any Federal evaluation of Accountable Health Communities and at a minimum provide quarterly and final (at the end of the performance period) reports, as required, in the format prescribed by CMS. To facilitate programmatic involvement of CMS, additional information on program progress may be requested in written or verbal formats during monthly progress meetings. Programs not meeting programmatic milestones may be required to provide progress updates as frequently as weekly. Reports will be submitted electronically. Programs should be prepared to report quarterly on each intervention element and their programs progress towards goals. The first quarterly report was due August 31, 2017. The program progress narrative report elements include but are not limited to: i. Program Name; ii. Program Leader Name; iii. Reporting Period; iv. Budget Status - include amounts for planned expenditure, actual expenditure, and deficit/surplus; v. Work Plan Chart/Timeline status; vi. Project description - short summary; vii. Milestones - Milestones are high-level goals that often define the phases of a project. Record milestones that have been reached at this point in the project here; viii. Accomplishments - Tasks that were accomplished during this reporting period; ix. Projected Goals - Goals projected to be completed during the next reporting period; and x. Issues - Issues that must be addressed for the project to be successful. The due date for the first year-end narrative reports was July 31, 2018. Annual project reports for future budget periods will be due within 45 days of each 12-month budget period. The due date for the final progress report is July 31, 2022, 90 days after the end of the project period. Model participants must submit electronic SF-425 quarterly via the Payment Management System. The report identifies cash expenditures against the authorized funds for the cooperative agreement. Failure to submit the report may result in the inability to access funds. Any additional financial reporting information required via the Federal Financial Report (FFR) will be stipulated in the terms and conditions of the award. Federal Funding Accountability and Transparency Act Reporting Requirements New awards issued under this FOA are subject to the reporting requirements of the Federal Funding Accountability and Transparency Act of 2006 (Pub. L. 109282), as amended by section 6202 of Public Law 110252 and implemented by 2 CFR Part 170. Grant and Cooperative Agreement recipients must report information for each first-tier sub-award of $25,000 or more in Federal funds and executive total compensation for the recipients and sub-recipients five most highly compensated executives as outlined in Appendix A to 2 CFR Part 170 (available online at <https://www.fhrs.gov/>). As detailed above, award recipients must agree to cooperate with any federal evaluation of the model and performance results and provide required quarterly, semi-annual (every six months), annual and final (at the end of the five-year performance period) reports in a form prescribed by CMS. Reports will be submitted electronically. These reports will include how cooperative agreement funds were used, describe project or model progress, and describe any barriers, delays, and measurable outcomes. CMS will provide the format for project or model reporting and technical assistance necessary to complete required report forms. Successful applicants must also agree to respond to requests that are necessary for the evaluation of the model design, pre-testing assistance, or model testing efforts and provide data on key elements of model performance and on results from the cooperative agreement activities. As detailed above, Successful applicants must submit Federal Financial Reports and meet Payment Management System reporting requirements. CMS enlisted Mathematic Policy Research (MPR) to assist CMS monitor model implementation and testing performance results and outcomes. CMS collects data elements to monitor all AHC cooperative agreement recipients, and these monitoring and surveillance elements are utilized in the models evaluation. All award recipients are required to cooperate in providing the necessary data elements to CMS or MPR. MPR assists CMS develop a cost-efficient and quality beneficiary experience; population health monitoring; model performance reviews to ensure model design requirements are met; awardee performance tracking; rapid cycle evaluation and early detection of model performance issues; develop a system to collect, store, and analyze data to assess health care cost and utilization, quality performance, beneficiary experience, and population health improvements; and assisting with state implementation, including coordination between states, CMS and any of its other contractors. Monitoring data also includes process, safety, and other performance measures including, but not limited to background characteristics data of the target population and for the geographic target area collected periodically and standardized over the course of the models implementation. Monitoring data is collected from awardees, Medicare and Medicaid claims data, electronic health records, public health data and other sources. The model monitoring aspect of this initiative will balance the examination of the extent to which awardees demonstrate fidelity to their proposed delivery system and payment models and the potential need to make mid-course corrections that improve or optimize performance of the delivery system or payment models based on feedback from the monitoring and rapid cycle evaluation findings. The evaluation will also assess whether there is evidence of harm or unintended consequences as a result of the models or testing methods. Payment Management Requirements States must submit a quarterly electronic SF-425 via the payment management system. The report identifies cash expenditures against the authorized funds for the cooperative agreement. Failure to submit the report may result in the inability to access funds. Federal Financial Report (FFR) Additional information on financial reporting will be provided in the terms and conditions of award. Federal Funding Accountability and Transparency Act Reporting Requirements New awards issued under this funding opportunity announcement are subject to the reporting requirements of the Federal Funding Accountability and Transparency Act of 2006 (Pub. L. 109282), as amended by section 6202 of Public Law 110252 and implemented by 2 CFR Part 170. Grant and Cooperative Agreement recipients must report information for each first-tier sub-award of $25,000 or more in Federal funds and executive total compensation for the recipients and sub-recipients five most highly compensated executives as outlined in Appendix A to 2 CFR Part 170 (available online at <https://www.fhrs.gov/>). As detailed above, award recipients must agree to cooperate with any federal evaluation of the model and performance results and provide required quarterly, semi-annual (every 6 months), annual and final (at the end of the 5 year performance period) reports in a form prescribed by CMS. Reports will be submitted electronically. These reports will include how cooperative agreement funds were used, describe project or model progress, and describe any barriers, delays, and measurable outcomes. CMS will provide the format for project or model reporting and technical assistance necessary to complete required report forms. Successful applicants must also agree to respond to requests that are necessary for the evaluation of the Model Design, pre-testing assistance, or Model Testing efforts and provide data on key elements of model performance and on results from the cooperative agreement activities. As detailed above. Successful applicants must submit reports to Federal Funding Report and meet Payment Management System reporting requirements. CMS will enlist a third party entity to assist us in monitoring the model implementation and testing performance results and outcomes. CMS plans to collect data elements to be part of monitoring for all of the AHC cooperative agreement recipients, and these monitoring and surveillance elements will feed into the evaluation. All award recipients will be required to cooperate in providing the necessary data elements to CMS or a CMS contractor. The contractor would assist CMS in developing a cost, quality, beneficiary experience, population health monitoring, and review model performance to ensure model design requirements are met; tracking performance across awardees and providing for rapid cycle evaluation and early detection of model performance issues; developing a system to collect, store, and analyze data to assess health care cost and utilization, quality performance, beneficiary experience, and population health improvements and assisting with state implementation, including coordination between states and CMS and its other contractors. Data for monitoring will include process, safety, and performance measures. It will include, but will not be limited to, data on the background characteristics of the target population and target area, data characterizing the activities of the model testing and a battery of follow-up data describing relevant characteristics of the target population or target area and metrics at selected intervals after commencement of the delivery system and/or payment model. This will include detailed information on participant characteristics and outcomes reported in a standard format. Data for monitoring will be collected from awardees and/or CMS claims data, electronic health records, public health data or other sources. The model monitoring aspect of this initiative will balance the examination of the extent to which awardees demonstrate fidelity to their proposed delivery system and payment models and the potential need to make mid-course corrections that improve or optimize performance of the delivery system or payment models based on feedback from the monitoring and rapid cycle evaluation findings. The evaluation will also assess whether there is evidence of harm or unintended consequences as a result of the models or testing methods.

Audits:

In accordance with the provisions of 2 CFR 200, Subpart F - Audit Requirements, nonfederal entities that expend financial assistance of $750,000 or more in Federal awards will have a single or a program-specific audit conducted for that year. Non-Federal entities that expend less than $750,000 a year in Federal awards are exempt from Federal audit requirements for that year, except as noted in 2 CFR 200.503

93.653 Indian Health Service Domestic Violence Prevention Programs

FEDERAL AGENCY:

INDIAN HEALTH SERVICE, HEALTH AND HUMAN SERVICES, DEPARTMENT OF

AUTHORIZATION:

25 USC Code 1601-1683. 25 USC Code 13. Public Law 111-8, Statue 123-524, 735

OBJECTIVES:

The objective of the Domestic Violence Prevention (DVP) Program is to promote prevention efforts that address domestic and sexual violence including sexual exploitation/human trafficking, Missing and Murdered AI/AN, and child maltreatment.

TYPES OF ASSISTANCE:

Project Grants

USES AND USE RESTRICTIONS:

Domestic Violence Prevention (DVP) awards support the development and/or expansion of a DVP program by incorporating prevention efforts addressing social, spiritual, physical and emotional well-being of victims through the integration of culturally appropriate practices and trauma informed services for Tribes, Tribal organizations and Urban Indian organizations (UIO) serving the American Indian / Alaska Native (AI/AN) population. The DVP program aims to promote prevention efforts that address domestic and sexual violence including sexual exploitation/human trafficking, Missing and Murdered AI/AN, and child maltreatment. To create an effective DVP program, cross-system collaboration with other community sectors to address violence is key especially with law enforcement, emergency department, social service, legal service, education, coalitions, health care providers, behavioral health, shelters, and advocacy groups. A well-rounded program includes raising awareness of and mitigating the negative health effects and social burden of domestic violence, sexual abuse and assault, child maltreatment (physical, sexual, and psychological/emotional abuse, neglect), sexual exploitation/human trafficking, and Missing and Murdered AI/AN; providing victims advocacy services; integrating evidence-based practice or traditional and/or faith-based services; collecting and communicating data about prevalence, incidence, and risk factors; and establishing a plan to ensure the sustainability of the program beyond the life of this grant. Forensic Health Care (FHC) awards also support efforts to provide access to treatment for AI/AN victims of domestic and sexual violence by supporting the development of and/or expansion of FHC services that are culturally appropriate and trauma informed. This includes promoting treatment, intervention, and prevention efforts for the social, spiritual and emotional well-being of victims including child maltreatment. To address domestic and sexual violence, including victims of sexual exploitation/human trafficking, applicants are encouraged to use a Multidisciplinary Team (MDT) and Sexual Assault Response Team (SART) approaches. Using these types of team approaches is crucial especially among local, state, and Federal agencies that includes healthcare providers, law enforcement, child protective services, social service, legal service, coalitions, behavioral health, and victim advocacy. The MDT/SART are community-based approaches in responding to sexual assault, intimate partner violence, and sexual abuse victims. Without the advantage of a team approach method, a program is more likely to fail. Improving collaboration through agreements can improve the response time for sexual assault victims.

Applicant Eligibility:

OBJECTIVES:

The Indian Health Service Behavioral Health Programs consists of several funding programs designed to help Tribes, Tribal Organizations, and Urban Indian Organizations (UIO) assist American Indian and Alaska Native (AI/AN) populations achieve and realize the highest possible level of physical, mental, social and spiritual health through addressing health concerns and delivery systems with behavioral components. The Substance Abuse and Suicide Prevention (SASP) Programs objectives are to reduce the prevalence of suicide and substance use and decrease the overall use of addicting and illicit substances among AI/AN populations, by improving care coordination; expanding behavioral health care services through the use of culturally appropriate evidence-based and practice-based models to address these issues; develop or expand on activities for the Generation Indigenous Initiative (Gen-I) by implementing early intervention strategies for AI/AN youth at risk for suicidal behavior. The objective of the Behavioral Health Integration Initiative (BH2I) program is to improve the physical and mental health status of people with behavioral health issues by developing an integrative, coordinated system of care. Awardees of this program will increase capacity among Tribal and Urban Indian organization (UIO) health facilities to implement an integrative approach in the delivery of behavioral health services, including trauma-informed care, nutrition, exercise, social, spiritual, cultural, and primary care services to improve morbidity and mortality outcomes among the AI/AN population. In addition, this effort will support activities that address improving the quality of life for individuals suffering from mental illness, substance use disorders, and adverse childhood experiences. The objective of the Preventing Alcohol-Related Deaths (PARD) through Social Detoxification Program is to increase access to community-based prevention strategies to provide social detoxification, evaluation, stabilization, fostering patient readiness for and entry into treatment for alcohol use disorders and when appropriate, other substance use disorders. The objective of the Zero Suicide Initiative (ZSI) is a key concept of the National Strategy for Suicide Prevention (NSSP) and is a priority of the National Action Alliance for Suicide Prevention. The Zero Suicide model focuses on developing a system-wide approach to improving care for individuals at risk of suicide who are currently utilizing health and behavioral health systems. The objective of the Youth Regional Treatment Center (YRTC) Aftercare Program is to address gaps in services that occur when youth transition from an YRTC treatment program and return home or to their designated caregiver. There may be limited, if any, aftercare support services available in a youths home community. Limited access to an aftercare support system significantly decreases the likelihood of successful recovery and increases the probability of relapse and other poor outcomes.

93.658 Foster Care Title IV-E

Title IV-E Foster Care,

FEDERAL AGENCY:

ADMINISTRATION FOR CHILDREN AND FAMILIES, HEALTH AND HUMAN SERVICES, DEPARTMENT OF

AUTHORIZATION:

Social Security Act, Title IV-E, Section 470, et seq., as amended.,

OBJECTIVES:

The Title IV-E Foster Care program helps states, Indian tribes, tribal organizations and tribal consortia (tribes) to provide safe and stable out-of-home care for children under the jurisdiction of the state or tribal child welfare agency until the children are returned home safely, placed with adoptive families, or placed in other planned arrangements for permanency. The program provides funds to assist with the costs of foster care maintenance for eligible children; administrative costs to manage the program; and training for public agency staff, foster parents and eligible professional partner agency staff. In addition, $3 million is reserved for technical assistance and plan development/implementation grants to eligible tribes.

TYPES OF ASSISTANCE:

Formula Grants, Project Grants, Project Grants (Discretionary)

USES AND USE RESTRICTIONS:

Formula grant funds may be used by the state or local (under state supervision) child welfare agency or by the tribal child welfare agency for Federal Financial Participation (FFP) in foster care maintenance payments on behalf of eligible children; for administrative and training costs; and for costs related to design, implement and operate a statewide data collection system. Funds may not be used for costs of social services such as those that provide counseling or treatment to ameliorate or remedy personal problems, behaviors, or home conditions for a child, the child's family, or the child's foster family. Public Law 115-123 amended the program beginning in FY 2020, unless a state or tribe has elected a delayed effective date of up to two years to place limitations on Title IV-E foster care maintenance payments for placements that are not foster family homes. Title IV-E agencies must also develop policies and procedures to identify, document, and determine appropriate services for any child or youth in the placement, care or supervision of the Title IV-E agency who is at-risk of becoming a sex trafficking victim or who is a sex trafficking victim. Plan development/implementation grants to tribes are one-time grants for projects lasting up to 24 months that are to be used to develop a plan to operate a Title IV-E program for foster care, adoption assistance and kinship guardianship as specified under section 479B of Title IV-E.

Applicant Eligibility:

Federally Recognized Indian Tribal Governments; Native American Organizations (includes Indian groups, cooperatives, corporations, partnerships, associations); U.S. Territories and possessions; State; Funds are available to states (including the District of Columbia, Puerto Rico, the U.S. Virgin Islands, Guam, and American Samoa) and to tribes with approved Title IV-E plans. For Plan Development/Implementation Grants: Eligibility is limited to Indian tribes, tribal organizations, and tribal consortia. The terms "Indian tribe" and "tribal organization" have the meanings given those terms in section 4 of the Indian Self-Determination and Education Assistance Act, Pub. L. 93-638, 25 U.S.C. 450b. Also see sections 479B(a) and 476(c)(2)(A)(iii) of the Social Security Act.

Beneficiary Eligibility:

Specialized group (e.g. health professionals, students, veterans); Infant (0-5); Child (6-15); Youth (16-21); Children meeting eligibility criteria for the former Aid to Families with Dependent Children program (except for up to a 12-month period for those children placed with a parent residing in a licensed residential family-based treatment facility for substance abuse treatment) whose removal and placement in foster care are in accordance with a voluntary placement agreement or judicial determinations to the effect that continuation in the home would be contrary to the child's welfare and that reasonable efforts were made to prevent the removal (or that such efforts were not necessary), and whose placement and care are the responsibility of the state or tribal agency administering the Title IV-E program. Due to the COVID-19 public health emergency, a youth may not be required to leave foster care solely due to age or failure to meet the education and employment conditions from December 27, 2020 through September 30, 2021. Any youth who left or leaves foster care due to reaching the state/tribes maximum age or a failure to meet the education and employment conditions during the COVID-19 public health emergency (January 27, 2020 thru at least July 19, 2021 and subject to extension up to September 30, 2021) is also permitted to voluntarily re-enter foster care without regard to age or the education and employment conditions. See section 472 of the Social Security Act and the Code of Federal Regulations at 45 CFR 1356.71 for additional details on program eligibility requirements.

Formula Grants: Consultation is available to States and Tribes from Regional Administration for Children and Families (ACF) offices. Plan Development/Implementation Grants: Notice of Funding Opportunities (NOFO) for this listing will be posted on Grants.gov.

Application Procedures:

2 CFR 200, Uniform Administrative Requirements, Cost Principles, and Audit Requirements for Federal Awards applies to this program. Formula Grants: Applications are made in the form of an SF-424M and Title IV-E Plan, submitted through the Online Data Collection System (OLDC). Title IV-E plans and amendments must be reviewed by the ACF Regional Child Welfare Program Manager for approval. Plan Development/Implementation Grants: applicants may find funding opportunity announcements (FOAs) on <https://www.grants.gov> or on the ACF website at <https://ami.grantsolutions.gov/>. Applicants may apply on <https://grants.gov>. Eligible applicants must submit applications by specified deadlines.

Award Procedure:

Formula Grants: Quarterly awards are made on the basis of estimated expenditures that are later revised accordingly to include only actual allowable claimed expenditures. Next quarter estimates are due on July 30, October 30, January 30, and April 30 each year. Final decisions and awards are made by the headquarters office. Plan Development/Implementation Grants: Each application will be screened to determine whether it meets any of the disqualifying factors: missing the application deadline, required electronic submission or waiver requested and approved, or exceeding the Award Ceiling. Disqualified applications are considered to be non-responsive and are excluded from the competitive review process. Applications competing for financial assistance will be reviewed and evaluated by objective review panels using only the criteria described in FOA. Each panel is composed of experts with knowledge and experience in the area under review. Generally, review panels include three reviewers and one chairperson. Results of the competitive objective review are taken into consideration by ACF in the selection of projects for funding; however, objective review scores and rankings are not binding. Scores and rankings are only one element used in the award decision-making process. ACF reserves the right to evaluate applications in the larger context of the overall portfolio by considering geographic distribution of federal funds (e.g. ensuring coverage of states, counties, or service areas) in its pre-award decisions. ACF will complete a review of risk posed by applicants as described in 45 CFR 75.205. ACF may elect not to fund applicants with management or financial problems that would indicate an inability to successfully complete the proposed project. Applications may be funded in whole or in part. Successful applicants may be funded at an amount lower than requested.

Formula and Matching Requirements:

Statutory Formula: Title IV, Chapter NA, Part E, Subpart NA, Public Law Social Security Act, Pub. L. 74-271. Matching Requirements: Percent: 0%. Requirement: Matching requirements are mandatory. OBJECTIVES:

This program provides Federal Financial Participation (FFP) to states, Indian tribes, tribal organizations and tribal consortia (tribes) in adoption subsidy costs for the adoption of children with special needs who cannot be reunited with their families and who meet certain eligibility tests. This assistance is intended to prevent inappropriately long stays in foster care and to promote the healthy development of children through increased safety, permanency and well-being.

TYPES OF ASSISTANCE:

Formula Grants

USES AND USE RESTRICTIONS:

All parents adopting special needs children are eligible for the nonrecurring cost of adoption up to $2,000.

Applicant Eligibility:

Federally Recognized Indian Tribal Governments; Native American Organizations (includes Indian groups, cooperatives, corporations, partnerships, associations); State; U.S. Territories and possessions; Funds are available to states (including the District of Columbia, Puerto Rico, the U.S. Virgin Islands, Guam and American Samoa) and to tribes with approved Title IV-E plans.

Beneficiary Eligibility:

Specialized group (e.g. health professionals, students, veterans); Infant (0-5); Child (6-15); Youth (16-21); Eligible beneficiaries include certain children who are legally freed for adoption where an adoption assistance agreement has been entered into prior to the finalization of an adoption. These children must: (1) have been determined by the state or tribe to be special needs, e.g., a special factor or condition which makes it reasonable to conclude that they cannot be adopted without adoption assistance; a state or tribe determination that the child cannot or should not be returned home; and a reasonable effort has been made to place the child without providing financial or medical assistance and (2) meet one of the relevant statutory categorical eligibility criteria. These criteria differ during the phase-in period (federal fiscal years (FFYs) 2010 through June 30, 2024) based on the FFY in which the adoption assistance agreement was entered into and the child's circumstances at that time. See section 473 of the Act for additional details on program eligibility requirements. FFP is available from the time of placement for adoption in accordance with state, local or tribal law or final adoption decree to age 18 (21 if the state/tribe finds that a disability means aid should continue or where provided through an adoption assistance agreement that was entered for a child that had attained at least 16 years of age before the agreement became effective) as long as the parent supports the child. No child adopted prior to the approval of the state or tribal Title IV-E plan is eligible for FFP. No means test applies to adopting parents, but the amount of subsidy is agreed to by agency and parents and may be readjusted by joint agreement.

Reports:

All recipients are monitored at least once every two years by program monitors who review the care provider recipients on site for compliance with ORR policies and procedures, statutory requirements and licensing standards. Other program staff conduct regular site visits and make recommendations for non-compliance or improvements. ORR regularly requires program reports on a daily, weekly, monthly, semi-annual, and annual basis for a variety of functions. In the event deficiencies or needs for improvement are indicated, the items are documented through monitoring reports and corrective action plans are required from the recipient. PROGRAM ACCOMPLISHMENTS:

Fiscal Year 2021: The Unaccompanied Children's Program began the year experiencing lower-than-normal referral numbers due to the COVID-19 pandemic.

ASSISTANCE LISTINGS DESCRIPTIONS

Beginning in February 2021, referrals increased substantially. The program received a total of 52,206 referrals across all levels of care in FY 21 through July. During the same time frame, the program successfully discharged a grand total of 50,216 children. In FY 2021, the program will continue to assess the services it provides to Unaccompanied Children to ensure and maintain its service delivery model. In addition, the program awarded a total of 142 grants in the following categories: Shelter/TFC: A total of 99 awards were issued of which 7 were single-source and 93 non-competing continuations. LTFC: A total of 18 awards were issued of which 16 new awards and 2 non-competing continuations. Secure: A total of 1 new award was issued. Staff Secure: A total of 6 awards were issued of which 3 were new and 3 non-competing continuations. Therapeutic: A total of 9 awards were issued of which 7 were new and 2 non-competing continuations. Home Study and Post Release Services: A total of 9 new awards were issued. Fiscal Year 2022: In FY 2022, the Program expects referral levels to match FY 2019. Referral levels are inherently unpredictable, and changes from FY 2019 levels could affect funding amounts. The program is anticipating to post NOFOs in FY 2022. The FY 2022 level reflects expansion of PRS with three levels of PRS services, expanded to include intensive and safety and well-being virtual check ins.

The application procedure is as follows: Application materials will be available for download at <http://www.grants.gov>. Please note that HHS requires applications for all announcements to be submitted electronically through <http://www.grants.gov>. For assistance with <http://www.grants.gov>, contact support@grants.gov or 1-800-518-4726. At Grants.gov, applicants will be able to download a copy of the application packet, complete it off-line, and then upload and submit the application via the Grants.gov website. Specific instructions for applications submitted via <http://www.grants.gov>: You may access the electronic application for this project at <http://www.grants.gov>. You must search the downloadable application page by the CFDA number. At the <http://www.grants.gov> website, you will find information about submitting an application electronically through the site, including the hours of operation. The applicant must be registered in the System for Award Management (SAM) database in order to be able to submit the application. Applicants are encouraged to register early, and must have their DUNS and EIN/TIN numbers in order to do so. Authorized Organizational Representative: The Authorized Organizational Representative (AOR) who will officially submit an application on behalf of the organization must register with grants.gov for a username and password. AORs must complete a profile with Grants.gov using their organizations DUNS Number to obtain their username and password at http://grants.gov/applicants/get_registered.jsp. AORs must wait one business day after successful registration in SAM before entering their profiles in Grants.gov. Applicants should complete this process as soon as possible after successful registration in SAM to ensure this step is completed in time to apply before application deadlines. When an AOR registers with Grants.gov to submit applications on behalf of an organization, that organizations E-Biz POC will receive an email notification. The email address provided in the profile will be the email used to send the notification from Grants.gov to the E-Biz POC with the AOR copied on the correspondence. The E-Biz POC must then login to Grants.gov (using the organizations DUNS number for the username and the special password called M-PIN) and approve the AOR, thereby providing permission to submit applications. Any files uploaded or attached to the Grants.gov application must be PDF file format and must contain a valid file format extension in the filename. Even though Grants.gov allows applicants to attach any file formats as part of their application, CMS restricts this practice and only accepts PDF file formats. Any file submitted as part of the Grants.gov application that is not in a PDF file format, or contains password protection, will not be accepted for processing and will be excluded from the application during the review process. In addition, the use of compressed file formats such as ZIP, RAR, or Adobe Portfolio will not be accepted. The application must be submitted in a file format that can easily be copied and read by reviewers. It is recommended that scanned copies not be submitted through Grants.gov unless the applicant confirms the clarity of the documents. Pages cannot be reduced in size, resulting in multiple pages on a single sheet, to avoid exceeding the page limitation. All documents that do not conform to the above specifications will be excluded from the application materials during the review process. After you electronically submit your application, you will receive an acknowledgement from <http://www.grants.gov> that contains a Grants.gov tracking number. HHS will retrieve your application package from Grants.gov. Please note, applicants may incur a time delay before they receive acknowledgement that the application has been accepted by the Grants.gov system. Applicants should not wait until the application deadline to apply because notification by Grants.gov that the application is incomplete may not be received until close to or after the application deadline, eliminating the opportunity to correct errors and resubmit the application. Applications submitted after the deadline, as a result of errors on the part of the applicant, will not be reviewed. After HHS retrieves your application package from Grants.gov, a return receipt will be emailed to the applicant contact. This will be in addition to the validation number provided by Grants.gov. Applications cannot be accepted through any email address. Full applications can only be accepted through <http://www.grants.gov>. Full applications cannot be received via paper mail, courier, or delivery service. All grant applications must be submitted electronically and be received through <http://www.grants.gov> by 3:00 pm Eastern Daylight Time on the applicable due date. Applications not successfully submitted to Grants.gov by the due date and time will not be eligible for review. All applications will receive an automatic time stamp upon submission and applicants will receive an email reply acknowledging the applications receipt. Please be aware of the following: 1) Search for the application package in Grants.gov by entering the CFDA number. This number is shown on the cover page of this announcement. 2) If you experience technical challenges while submitting your application electronically, please contact Grants.gov Support directly at: www.grants.gov/customersupport or (800) 518-4726. Customer Support is available to address questions 24 hours a day, 7 days a week (except on Federal holidays). 3) Upon contacting Grants.gov, obtain a tracking number as proof of contact. The tracking number is helpful if there are technical issues that cannot be resolved. To be considered timely, applications must be received by the published deadline date. However, a general extension of a published application deadline that affects all State applicants or only those in a defined geographical area may be authorized by circumstances that affect the public at large, such as natural disasters (e.g., floods or hurricanes) or disruptions of electronic (e.g., application receipt services) or other services, such as a prolonged blackout. This statement does not apply to an individual entity having internet service problems. In order for there to be any consideration there must be an effect on the public at large. USES AND USE RESTRICTIONS:

Behavioral Health Workforce Education and Training (BHWET) Program develops and expands the behavioral health workforce serving populations across the lifespan, including in rural and medically underserved areas. The BHWET Program places special emphasis on establishing or expanding internships or field placement programs in behavioral health that include interdisciplinary training for: 1) students/interns, 2) faculty, and 3) field supervisors to provide quality behavioral health services to communities in need. There are two tracks for this program: 1) BHWET Professional Track and 2) BHWET Paraprofessional Certificate Track. Opioid Workforce Expansion Program (OWEP) - Professionals Program enhances community-based experiential training for students preparing to become behavioral health professionals with a focus on Opioid Use Disorder (OUD) and other Substance Use Disorders (SUD) prevention, treatment, and recovery services. Opioid Workforce Expansion Program (OWEP) Paraprofessionals Program enhances community-based experiential training for students preparing to become peer support specialists and other types of behavioral health-related paraprofessionals with a focus on Opioid Use Disorder (OUD) and other Substance Use Disorders (SUD) prevention, treatment and recovery services. Opioid-Impacted Family Support Program (OIFSP) Program supports training programs that enhance and expand paraprofessionals knowledge, skills and expertise, and to increase the number of peer support specialists and other behavioral health-related paraprofessionals who work on integrated, interprofessional teams in providing services to children whose parents are impacted by opioid use disorders (OUD) and other substance use disorders (SUD), and their family members who are in guardianship roles. Addiction Medicine Fellowship Program seeks to expand the number of fellows at accredited Addiction Medicine Fellowship (AMF) and Addiction Psychiatry Fellowship (APF) programs trained as addiction medicine specialists who work in underserved, community-based settings that integrate primary care with mental health disorders and substance use disorder (SUD) prevention and treatment services. The AMF Program encompasses both psychiatry and an addiction subspecialty for primary care doctors. Restricted Uses: Indirect costs under training awards to organizations other than State, local or American Indian tribal governments will be budgeted and reimbursed at 8 percent of modified total direct costs rather than on the basis of a negotiated rate agreement, and are not subject to upward or downward adjustment. The Integrated Substance Use Disorder Training Program (ISTP) expand the number of nurse practitioners, physician assistants, health service psychologists, and/or social workers trained to provide mental health and substance use disorder (SUD), including opioid use disorder (OUD) services in underserved community-based settings that integrate primary care, mental health, and SUD services. Restricted Uses: Indirect costs under training awards to organizations other than state, local or Indian tribal governments will be budgeted and reimbursed at 8 percent of modified total direct costs rather than on the basis of a negotiated rate agreement, and are not subject to upward or downward adjustment. The BHWD TAE Program aims to build an educational and interconnected behavioral and public health infrastructure prepared to respond and provide treatment to those impacted by opioid use disorders (OUD) and other substance use disorders (SUD). The PRMHW is to support health care, health care providers associations, and FQHCs to establish, enhance, or expand evidence informed or evidenced-based programs or protocols to promote resilience, mental health, and wellness among their providers, other personnel, and members. The HPSWRP is to reduce and address burnout, suicide, mental health conditions and substance use disorders and promote resiliency among health care students, residents, professionals, paraprofessionals, trainees, public safety officers, and employers of such individuals, particularly in rural and medically underserved communities. The WRTAC aims to Enhance HRSA's workforce resiliency grantee recipients framework by providing critically needed resources through technical assistance and training to promote mental and behavioral health, prevent suicide and reduce burnout and substance use occurrences.

upcoming federal initiatives such as the National Tobacco Education Campaign. <http://www.cdc.gov/tobacco>. This program addresses the Healthy People 2020 focus area of tobacco use and the goal of reducing illness, disability, and death related to tobacco use and secondhand smoke exposure. This FOA will be a new, 2-year cooperative agreement for all states and territories that currently have a quitline. Funds will be used for the following: Address the anticipated increase in calls Expand capacity and eligibility to ensure all callers receive some form of assistance Increase efficiencies of quitline operations, such as demonstrating how they will connect to or incorporate an interactive voice recording system (IVR) at the state or federal level Incorporate technological enhancements to provide additional forms of assistance to callers who want to quit Expand paid and earned media to promote the quitline and increase quit attempts Develop and/or implement private/public partnerships or other strategies to sustain quitline capacity.

REGULATIONS, GUIDELINES, AND LITERATURE:

Effective tobacco cessation treatments are available, including group, individual, and telephone counseling and FDA-approved cessation medications. However, less than one third of cigarette smokers use these treatments when trying to quit. Physician cessation interventions increase patient quit rates, but many physicians do not routinely intervene with their patients who use tobacco products. Population-based strategies that increase cessation include, but are not limited to, reducing out-of-pocket costs for evidence-based tobacco cessation treatments (i.e., ensuring that health insurance plans cover these treatments), provider reminder systems in health care settings (including reminders embedded in electronic health records) that prompt health care providers to screen for tobacco use and provide cessation advice, telephone quitlines, and mobile-phone based cessation texting interventions. CDC recommends that state tobacco control programs implement these effective population-based strategies for increasing cessation and put in place a comprehensive plan to address cessation. The Office on Smoking and Health has worked with several national organizations in providing information to state tobacco control programs and national and state partners on OSH's three major cessation priorities: enhancing state quitline capacity and sustainability, promoting comprehensive coverage of evidence-based tobacco cessation treatments in health insurance plans, and promoting health systems changes that improve the rates of tobacco use screening and cessation intervention in health care settings. CDC recommendations regarding cessation activities to be implemented by state tobacco control programs are described in greater depth in CDC's Best Practices for Comprehensive Tobacco Control Programs 2014 (see http://www.cdc.gov/tobacco/stateandcommunity/best_practices/pdfs/2014/sectionA-III.pdf).

Sections 301(a) and 317 (k) of the Public Health Service Act, {42 U.S.C. section 241(a) and 247 (k) and Title IV Section 4002 Prevention and Public Health Fund. Public Service Act,

OBJECTIVES:

This five-year funding opportunity offers support to prevent heart disease, diabetes and associated risk factors in American Indian and Alaska Native (AI/AN) communities through a holistic approach to population health and wellness. There will be two components to this funding opportunity announcement. Component One will fund 12 AI/AN tribes, one within each of the 12 Indian Health Service (IHS) areas, who will use a combination of community chosen and culturally adapted policies, systems, and environmental changes to increase access to fresh, healthy traditional foods, and offer alternatives to less healthy packaged and processed foods high in sodium and fat. Component One will also strive to promote programs to increase physical activity, health education, and team based strategies to strengthen community-clinical linkages promoting lifelong health and preventing chronic diseases such as diabetes, heart disease, and stroke. Awardees will customize environmental approaches for their communities to foster sustainability, broaden community and cross-sector partnerships, and demonstrate population change to promote health and reduce risk factors that lead to chronic disease. Component Two awardees will be Tribal organizations, as set forth in 25 U.S.C., Section 1603, and other Tribal-Serving Organizations. Twelve Tribal Organizations will receive funding (no more than one in each Area) to provide Technical Assistance, Training, and Resources to AI/AN tribes and villages within their IHS areas to promote community chosen and culturally adapted policies, systems, and environmental changes. These changes will lead to sustainable increased access to fresh, healthy traditional foods, decreased access to less healthy packaged and processed foods, increased physical activity, health education, as well as strengthened community-clinical linkages to promote lifelong health and prevent chronic diseases such as diabetes, heart disease, and stroke.

93.767 Children's Health Insurance Program

(CHIP),

FEDERAL AGENCY:

CENTERS FOR MEDICARE AND MEDICAID SERVICES, HEALTH AND HUMAN SERVICES, DEPARTMENT OF

AUTHORIZATION:

CHIP: Title XXI of the Social Security Act (the Act)CKC grants: Section 2113 of the Act,

OBJECTIVES:

ASSISTANCE LISTINGS DESCRIPTIONS

The objective of the Childrens Health Insurance Program (CHIP) is to provide funds to States to enable them to maintain and expand child health assistance to uninsured, low-income children, and at a state option, low-income pregnant women and legal immigrants, primarily by three methods: (1) operating a separate CHIP program; (2) expanding eligibility for children under the State's Medicaid program; and (3) or operating both a separate CHIP and a Medicaid expansion program. The objective of the Connecting Kids to Coverage (CKC) Outreach and Enrollment Grants is to reduce the number of uninsured children eligible for Medicaid, CHIP and insurance affordability programs who are not enrolled and improve retention of those who are already enrolled. The latest cohort of grants were authorized under Section 3004(a) of the Helping Ensure Access for Little Ones, Toddlers, and Hopeful Youth by Keeping Insurance Delivery Stable Act (referred to as the HEALTHY KIDS Act and included in Pub. L. 115-120). CMS awarded a total of $48 million to eligible entities, including states, local governments, schools, health care providers, community-based public or non-profit organizations, and Indian tribes or tribal consortiums, tribal organizations, urban Indian organizations receiving funds under Title V of the Indian Health Care Improvement Act (25 U.S.C. 1651 et seq.), and Indian Health Service providers. These grants support outreach strategies aimed at increasing enrollment of eligible, but not enrolled, children in Medicaid and CHIP, emphasizing outreach and enrollment activities tailored to communities where eligible children and families reside and enlisting community leaders and programs that serve eligible children and families. These grants also fund activities designed to help families understand application procedures and health coverage opportunities under Medicaid and CHIP. The Centers for Medicare & Medicaid Services (CMS) also made awards of $6 million exclusively for Indian health care providers and tribal entities to conduct outreach and enrollment activities aimed at American Indians and Alaska Natives. Indian health care providers and tribal entities were permitted to apply for either or both funding opportunities as long as the work described was different in each proposal.

TYPES OF ASSISTANCE:

Formula Grants, Formula Grants (Apportionments)

USES AND USE RESTRICTIONS:

CHIP: No State is eligible for payments for child health assistance for coverage provided prior to October 1, 1997. Standards used to determine eligibility may include those related to geographic areas to be served by the plan. Age, income and resources, residency, disability status (as long as the standard does not restrict eligibility), access to or coverage under other health coverage, and duration of eligibility are factors. Standards may not discriminate on the basis of diagnosis. Eligibility standards must not cover higher-income children without covering lower-income children, and must not deny eligibility based on a child having a pre-existing medical condition. The State must ensure that only targeted low-income children are furnished child health assistance under the plan. Children found through screening to be eligible for Medicaid are to be enrolled in Medicaid. The insurance provided using Federal funds under the State plan does may not substitute for coverage under group health plans. Coordination with other public and private programs providing creditable coverage for low-income children should occur. Child Health Assistance (other than Medicaid), must consist of any of the following: Benchmark coverage; benchmark equivalent coverage (which can be FEHBP-equivalent coverage); State employee coverage or coverage offered through the HMO with the largest insured commercial non-Medicaid enrollment in the State; existing comprehensive State-based coverage; or Secretary-approved coverage. A State child health plan must include a description of the amount (if any) of cost-sharing and must be in accordance with a public schedule. Cost-sharing may be varied in a way that does not favor higher-income children over lower-income children. No cost-sharing is permitted for well-baby and well-child care, including age-appropriate immunizations. Cost-sharing for children at 150 percent of poverty must be consistent with Medicaid; Cost-sharing for children at 150 percent of poverty and above must be based on an income-related sliding scale. The aggregate cost sharing for all children in a family cannot exceed 5 percent of the family's income. The State child health plan may not impose pre-existing condition exclusions for covered benefits. Funds provided to a State under this Title may only be used to carry out the purposes of this Title. Health insurance coverage provided may include coverage of abortion only if necessary to save the life of the mother or if the pregnancy is the result of an act of rape or incest. States may spend up to 10 percent of their total CHIP expenditures (Federal and State) on non-benefit activities, including: outreach conducted to identify and enroll eligible children in CHIP; administration costs; health services initiatives; and other child health assistance. These expenditures are matched at the enhanced CHIP matching rate and counted against both the 10 percent limit and the allotment. Monetary amounts provided by the Federal government or services assisted or subsidized to any extent by the Federal government, may not be included in determining the amount of nonfederal contributions required for State matching purposes. Statutory Formula: Title Chapter Part Subpart Public Law Matching Requirements: Percent: Other Statutory Formula: Title XXI of the the Act Matching Requirements: Percent: Section 2105(b), provides for an "enhanced Federal Matching Assistance Percentage (EFMAP)" for child health assistance provided under Title XXI that is equal to the current FMAP for the period under section 1905(b) of the Act, increased by 30 percent of the difference between 100 and the current FMAP for that fiscal year, not to exceed 85 percent. For the periods 10/1/2015 9/30/2019 and 10/1/2019 9/30/2020 states EFMAPs were increased by 23 percentage points and 11.5 percentage points, respectively, not to exceed 100 percent. Section 2104(a) of the Act provides appropriations through September 30, 2027 for the purpose of providing allotments to the states to fund their CHIP programs. Child Enrollment Contingency Fund payments may be available for states that meet the criteria provided in section 2104(n) of the Act through FY 2027. States may also qualify to receive an increase in their FY 2010, FY 2012, FY 2014, FY 2016, FY 2018, FY 2020, FY 2022, FY 2024, and FY 2026 allotments if they meet the criteria described in section 2104(m)(7) of the Act which includes submitting a request for such an increase by August 30 preceding the fiscal year involved. Matching requirements are voluntary. This program has MOE requirements, see funding agency for further details. AUTHORIZATION:

Executive Order 13175, , Public Health Service Act, , 42 USC Code 247(b)(k)(2).

tribal nations. Building tribal public health infrastructure enhances Indian Country's capacity to prevent disease, promote health, and prepare for and respond to emerging threats and chronic challenges. These entities are the best qualified to address AI/AN public health needs in an efficient, effective, and culturally-appropriate manner. AI/AN tribal public health infrastructure and capacity initiatives and quality improvements are more likely to be sustained when they begin as tribal initiatives rather than as external initiatives. This CoAg will further efforts in Indian Country by supporting a culturally-appropriate approach advocated for and by the CDC/ATSDR Tribal Advisory Committee, tribal public health practitioners and partners. Direct funding will support tribal governments and tribal-serving organizations in making sound and efficient public health planning and resource allocation. The funding method for this CoAg will allow for more programs in CDC to provide direct funding to Indian Country in order to improve tribal public health systems and reach the outcomes stated in the logic model.

Beneficiary Eligibility:

Native American Organizations; American Indian; Federally Recognized Indian Tribal Governments; Eligible applicants should be able to demonstrate tribal affiliation including (1) a record of effectively working with American Indian and Alaska Native populations (2) an ability to methodically and efficiently reach tribal members in American Indian and Alaska Native communities and (3), if recipient is a tribally owned and operated organization, it should provide a letter of approval from Tribal council for the proposed program.

OBJECTIVES:

The Centers for Medicare & Medicaid Services (CMS) conducts research, demonstrations, and evaluations in support of CMS' key role as a beneficiary-centered purchaser of high-quality health care at a reasonable cost. These grants are awarded are in the form of research grants and cooperative agreements; Hispanic health services grants; historically black colleges and university grants. For fiscal years 2010 and 2011, CMS research, demonstrations and evaluations will focus on expanding agency efforts to improve the efficiency of payment, delivery, access and quality of our health care programs that serve millions of beneficiaries.

TYPES OF ASSISTANCE:

Cooperative Agreements, Project Grants

USES AND USE RESTRICTIONS:

Under all authorizations, all applications must meet standards of excellence in research or evaluation design. Funds may not be used for construction or renovation of buildings. Funds authorized by Section 1115 of the Social Security Act are limited to State agencies administering the Medicaid program. The research issues and/or hypotheses identified by a project should be clearly stated and realistic and should reflect the issues of interest to CMS and, where appropriate, HHS, Federal Government, and the broader health services research community. The research design should clearly identify the measures that will be collected and analyzed to address the issues and/or hypotheses. These proposed measures should reflect concepts and variables that are consistent with the stated issues and hypotheses. The research design should also address the reliability of measures i.e., a measurement should not change when the concept being measured remains constant in value. A common reliability concern is the level of inter-rater reliability of an instrument, determined by the extent to which two or more persons measuring the same characteristic would assign the same score. The research design should address the validity of proposed measures i.e., the extent to which differences in scores on variable or the measuring instrument represent true differences in the characteristic we are trying to measure, rather than constant or random errors or the influence of other factors.

OBJECTIVES:

The Money Follows the Person (MFP) Rebalancing Demonstration, authorized by section 6071 of the Deficit Reduction Act of 2005 (P.L. 109-171), was designed to assist States to balance their long-term care systems and help Medicaid enrollees transition from institutions to the community. Congress initially authorized up to $1.75 billion in Federal funds through Fiscal Year (FFY) 2011. With the subsequent passage of the Patient Protection and Affordable Care Act (P.L. 111-148) in 2010, section 2403 extended the program through September 30, 2016. An additional $2.25 billion in Federal funds was appropriated through FFY 2016. Since then, section 2 of the Medicaid Extenders Act of 2019 (P.L. 116-3) added $112 million in Federal funds and changed the end date for the program from September 30, 2016 to September 30, 2021. Section 5 of the Medicaid Services Investment and Accountability Act of 2019 (P.L. 116-16) changed the additional funding appropriated through the Medicaid Extenders Act from $112 million to $132 million and section 4 of the Sustaining Excellence in Medicaid Act of 2019 (P.L. 116-39) changed the additional funding appropriated through the Medicaid Services Investment and Accountability Act from $132 million to $254.5 million. Section 205 of the Further Consolidated Appropriations Act, 2020 (P.L. 116-94) and section 3811 of the Coronavirus Aid, Relief, and Economic Security Act (P.L. 116-136) provided an additional $337.5 million. Section 2301 of the Continuing Appropriations Act, 2021 and Other Extensions Act (P.L. 116-159) added $66.4 million, section 1107 of the Further Continuing Appropriations Act, 2021, and other Extensions Act (P.L. 116-215) added $6.5 million. Section 204 of the Consolidated Appropriations Act, 2021 (P.L. 116-260) added $1.253 billion, extended and made changes to the program. Any funds remaining at the end of each fiscal year carry over to the next fiscal year, and can be used to make grant awards to current grantees through FY 2023. Any unused grant funds in 2023 can be used until 2027. No additional funding will be available after the final 2023 awards are made; however, grantees will submit documentation to identify projected costs and justify expenditures on an annual basis. Grantees can request to continue transitioning MFP participants until December 31, 2025 with services being provided and eligible for MFP-enhanced match through December 31, 2026. All claiming of services must be finalized by September 30, 2027. The MFP Demonstration supports State efforts to rebalance their long-term support system so that individuals have a choice of where they live and receive services. MFP program goals are (1) increase the use of home and community-based services (HCBS) and reduce the use of institutionally-based services; (2) eliminate barriers in State law, State Medicaid plans, and State budgets that restrict the use of Medicaid funds to let people get long-term care in the settings of their choice (3) strengthen the ability of Medicaid programs to provide HCBS to people who choose to transition out of institutions, and (4) put procedures in place to provide quality assurance and improvement of HCBS. The demonstration provides for enhanced Federal Medical Assistance Percentage (FMAP) for 12 months for qualified home and community-based services for each person transitioned from an institution to the community during the demonstration period. Eligibility for transition is dependent upon residence in a qualified institution for more than 60 consecutive days. The State must continue to provide community-based services after the 12-month period for as long as the person needs community services and is Medicaid eligible. Under the demonstration, the State must propose a system of Medicaid home and community-based care that will be sustained after the demonstration period and is deemed qualified by the Secretary. Specifically, the program must be conducted in conjunction with a "qualified HCBS program" which is a program that is in operation (or approved) in the State for such individuals in a manner that assures continuity of Medicaid coverage of services in the qualified HCBS program for eligible individuals. States may also propose to enhance the services they will provide during the demonstration period to achieve greater success with transition. States will be required to participate in a national qualitative and quantitative evaluation conducted by CMS. Data collected on a national level will help evaluate the core objectives of the statute.

CENTERS FOR DISEASE CONTROL AND PREVENTION, HEALTH AND HUMAN SERVICES, DEPARTMENT OF

AUTHORIZATION:

This program is authorized under Section 317 of the Public Health Services Act (PHS Act), 42 U.S.C. 247b(k)(2) as amended.,

OBJECTIVES:

The purpose of program is to support implementation of population-wide and priority population approaches to prevent and control high blood pressure, and reduce health disparities associated with high blood pressure, among adults in Mississippi's 18-county Delta Region, which is a high burden, underserved, rural area.

TYPES OF ASSISTANCE:

Cooperative Agreements

USES AND USE RESTRICTIONS:

Funds may be used to implement two components Component 1 and Component 2 across MS's 18-county Delta Region: Component 1 is to implement or strengthen policy, system, and environmental (PSE) strategies to: increase environments that promote, support, or reinforce physical activity and healthy foods and beverages, particularly those with low or no sodium; and to increase tobacco- and smoke-free environments. Component 2 is to implement or strengthen health systems strategies and community-clinical linkage strategies-- In their proposed budget, Mississippi Department of Health / Mississippi Delta Health Collaborative must allocate more funding (i.e., at least 60% of their proposed budget) towards Component 2 (health systems strategies and community-clinical linkage strategies) than Component 1 (policy, system, and environmental strategies).-- Mississippi Department of Health / Mississippi Delta Health Collaborative must sub-award 50% of award funds to local entities to contribute to the work, must provide leadership and technical assistance to selected MS Delta communities, and must ensure overall coordination.-- Mississippi Department of Health / Mississippi Delta Health Collaborative should allocate between 5% - 10% of their total funding award to evaluation and performance monitoring.-- In order to maximize the reach of federal funding, Mississippi Department of Health / Mississippi Delta Health Collaborative must ensure that efforts are complementary and not duplicative of other efforts in the 18-county MS Delta Region, such as State Public Health Actions (DP13-1305), Partnerships to Improve Community Health (PICH) (DP14-1417), and Racial and

Ethnic Approaches to Community Health (REACH) (DP14-1419).

Applicant Eligibility:

State; The Mississippi Department of Health / Mississippi Delta Health Collaborative is uniquely qualified positioned to carry out the activities outlined in this FOA because:-- To meet Congressional intent detailed in the FY 2015 Appropriations language, CDC needs to continue supporting the Mississippi Department of Health / Mississippi Delta Health Collaborative's work related to policy, systems, and environmental approaches, as well as community-clinical linkages for the prevention and control of chronic diseases, such as heart disease and stroke.-- The Mississippi Department of Health's mission is to promote and protect the health of the citizens of Mississippi. In addition, The Mississippi Department of Health is designated as the sole and official agency to administer and supervise all health planning responsibilities for the state, as established by Section 41-7-171 et seq., of the Mississippi Code 1972. Therefore they are uniquely qualified to identify those areas of greatest need in the state; develop strategies to reduce barriers and deficiencies in the state's public health care system; and establish policies to encourage the provision of appropriate and quality care in the public and private health care system. Through its program, the Mississippi Delta Health Collaborative, reach of the Mississippi Department of Health is further extended to address health issues of rural areas of the state (i.e., the 18-county MS Delta Region). The MS Delta Region bears a disproportionate burden of heart disease and stroke, and related conditions as compared to the rest of Mississippi and to the nation. -- Mississippi Delta Health Collaborative has provided leadership and coordination of heart disease and stroke prevention and control efforts in communities across the MS Delta Region. Also, by directly engaging, and providing funding and technical assistance to community organizations to promote coordination of public health efforts, the Mississippi Delta Health Collaborative is poised to expeditiously and successfully implement strategies related to policy, systems, and environmental approaches; health systems; and community-clinical linkages to prevent and control heart disease and stroke in the MS Delta Region

Beneficiary Eligibility:

Anyone/general public; Local; The ultimate benefits of this program will be received by the general and priority adult populations in a local, rural area of Mississippi (i.e., the MS Delta Region) who have high blood pressure, and experience health disparities associated with high blood pressure. Priority adult populations are those adult population subgroups in the MS Delta Region who experience racial/ethnic and socioeconomic disparities, including inadequate access to care and poor quality of care. Strategies related to the prevention and control of heart disease and stroke will be implemented and tailored to meet the unique local needs of the MS Delta Region and to achieve the greatest impact.

93.837 Cardiovascular Diseases Research

FEDERAL AGENCY:

NATIONAL INSTITUTES OF HEALTH, HEALTH AND HUMAN SERVICES, DEPARTMENT OF

AUTHORIZATION:

Public Health Service Act, Section 301, 422 and 487, as amended, Public Laws 78-410 and 99-158, 42 U.S.C. 241, 42 U.S.C. 285, and 42 U.S.C. 288, as amended; Small Business Reauthorization Act of 2000, Public Law 106-554.,

OBJECTIVES:

To foster heart and vascular research in the basic, translational, clinical and population sciences, and to foster training to build talented young investigators in these areas, funded through competitive research training grants. Small Business Innovation Research (SBIR) program: To stimulate technological innovation; use small business to meet Federal research and development needs; foster and encourage participation in innovation and entrepreneurship by socially and economically disadvantaged persons; and increase private-sector commercialization of innovations derived from Federal research and development funding. Small Business Technology Transfer (STTR) program: To stimulate technological innovation; foster technology transfer through cooperative R&D between small businesses and research institutions, and increase private sector commercialization of innovations derived from federal R&D.

TYPES OF ASSISTANCE:

Project Grants

USES AND USE RESTRICTIONS:

Grants may support stipends, research expenses, supplies, travel, and research training tuition as required to perform the research effort. Restrictions or limitations are imposed against the use of funds for entertainment, foreign travel, general-purpose equipment, alterations and renovations, and other items not regularly required for the performance of research. Individual predoctoral and postdoctoral national research service awards (NRSA) are made directly to individuals through their universities for research training in heart and vascular diseases. NRSA awards may be made to eligible institutions to enable them to appoint individuals selected by the institution for research training. Certain service and payback provisions may apply to postdoctoral individuals upon termination of the award or termination of the appointment. SBIR Phase I awards (of approximately 6 to 12 months in duration) are to establish the scientific and technical merit of the proposed research effort, and feasibility of ideas that appear to have commercial potential. Direct to Phase II SBIR awards are for projects that have been developed beyond the feasibility phase using resources other than NIH Phase I awards that meet program needs and exhibit potential for commercial application. SBIR Phase IIB awards are for promising projects that require additional time and funding to advance to commercialization. The Phase IIB program promotes partnerships between SBIR or STTR Phase II awardees and third-party investors and/or strategic partners by encouraging matching contributions. STTR Phase I awards (normally of 6 to 12 months in duration) are to establish the scientific and technical merit of the proposed cooperative research effort between a small business and non-profit research institution, and feasibility of ideas that appear to have commercial potential. Phase II awards are for the continuation of research initiated in Phase I that meets particular program needs and exhibits potential for commercial application. Fast-Track is an option whereby Phase I and Phase II SBIR or STTR projects are submitted and reviewed concurrently with the aim of reducing or eliminating the funding gap between Phase I and Phase II. The SBIR/STTR Commercialization Readiness Pilot Program awards facilitate the transition of previously or currently funded SBIR and STTR Phase II and Phase IIB projects to the commercialization phase by providing additional support for technical assistance and later stage research and development not typically supported through Phase II or Phase IIB grants or contracts including replication of key studies, Investigational New Drug (IND)-enabling studies, clinical studies, manufacturing costs, regulatory assistance or a combination of services. While the intent of the SBIR/STTR programs is commercialization (Phase III), only SBIR/STTR technical and business assistance (TABA) funds are allowed to be used for commercialization activities such as patents; market and sales; market research; business development/product development/market plans; legal fees, travel and other costs including labor relating to license agreements and partnerships. The remaining SBIR/STTR funds are for research and development purposes only and exclude these commercialization activities.

Applicant Eligibility:

Records:

Grantees generally must retain financial and programmatic records, supporting documents, statistical records, and all other records that are required by the terms of a grant, or may reasonably be considered pertinent to a grant, for a period of 3 years from the date the annual FSR is submitted. For awards under SNAP (other than those to foreign organizations and Federal institutions), the 3-year retention period will be calculated from the date the FSR for the entire competitive segment is submitted. Those grantees must retain the records pertinent to the entire competitive segment for 3 years from the date the FSR is submitted to NIH.

Foreign organizations and Federal institutions must retain records for 3 years from

See 45 CFR 74.53 and 92.42 for exceptions and qualifications to the 3-year retention requirement (e.g., if any litigation, claim, financial management review, or audit is started before the expiration of the 3-year period, the records must be retained until all litigation, claims, or audit findings involving the records have been resolved and final action taken). Those sections also specify the retention period for other types of grant-related records, including F&A cost proposals and property records. See 45 CFR 74.48 and 92.36 for record retention and access requirements for contracts under grants. Division of Blood Diseases and Resources (DBDR),

FEDERAL AGENCY:

NATIONAL INSTITUTES OF HEALTH, HEALTH AND HUMAN SERVICES,
DEPARTMENT OF
AUTHORIZATION:

Public Health Service Act, Section 301, 422, and 487, as amended, Public Laws 78-410 and 99-158, 42 U.S.C. 241, 42 U.S.C. 285 and 42 U.S.C. 288, as amended; Small Business Research and Development Enhancement Act of 1992, Public Law 102-564.,

OBJECTIVES:

The Division of Blood Diseases and Resources supports research and research training on the pathophysiology, diagnosis, treatment, and prevention of non-malignant blood diseases, including anemias, sickle cell disease, thalassemia; leukocyte biology, pre-malignant processes such as myelodysplasia and myeloproliferative disorders; hemophilia and other abnormalities of hemostasis and thrombosis; and immune dysfunction. Funding encompasses a broad spectrum of hematologic inquiry, ranging from stem cell biology to medical management of blood diseases and to assuring the adequacy and safety of the nation's blood supply. Programs also support the development of novel cell-based therapies to bring the expertise of transfusion medicine and stem cell technology to the repair and regeneration of human tissues and organs. Small Business Innovation Research (SBIR) program: To stimulate technological innovation; use small business to meet Federal research and development needs; foster and encourage participation in innovation and entrepreneurship by socially and economically disadvantaged persons; and increase private-sector commercialization of innovations derived from Federal research and development funding. Small Business Technology Transfer (STTR) program: To stimulate technological innovation; foster technology transfer through cooperative R&D between small businesses and research institutions, and increase private sector commercialization of innovations derived from federal R&D.

training tuition as required to perform the research effort. Restrictions or limitations are imposed against the use of funds for entertainment, foreign travel, general-purpose equipment, alterations and renovations, and other items not regularly required for the performance of research. Individual Predoctoral and Postdoctoral National Research Service Awards (NRSAs) are made directly to individuals for research training in specified biomedical shortage areas. Institutional NRSA awards may be made to eligible institutions to enable them to appoint individuals selected by the institution for research training. Certain service and payback provisions may apply to postdoctoral individuals upon termination of the award or termination of the appointment. SBIR Phase I awards (of approximately 6 to 12 months duration) are to establish the scientific and technical merit of the proposed research effort, and feasibility of ideas that appear to have commercial potential. Phase II awards are for the continuation of research initiated in Phase I that meets particular program needs and exhibits potential for commercial application. Direct to Phase II SBIR awards are for projects that have been developed beyond the feasibility phase using resources other than NIH Phase I awards that meet program needs and exhibit potential for commercial application. SBIR Phase IIB awards are for promising projects that require additional time and funding to advance to commercialization. The Phase IIB program promotes partnerships between SBIR or STTR Phase II awardees and third-party investors and/or strategic partners by encouraging matching contributions. STTR Phase I awards (normally of 6 to 12 months duration) are to establish the scientific and technical merit of the proposed cooperative research effort between a small business and non-profit research institution, and feasibility of ideas that appear to have commercial potential. Phase II awards are for the continuation of research initiated in Phase I that meets particular program needs and exhibits potential for commercial application. Fast-Track is an option whereby Phase I and Phase II SBIR or STTR projects are submitted and reviewed concurrently with the aim of reducing or eliminating the funding gap between Phase I and Phase II. The SBIR/STTR Commercialization Readiness Pilot Program awards facilitate the transition of previously or currently funded SBIR and STTR Phase II and Phase IIB projects to the commercialization phase by providing additional support for technical assistance and later stage research and development not typically supported through Phase II or Phase IIB grants or contracts including replication of key studies, Investigational New Drug (IND)-enabling studies, clinical studies, manufacturing costs, regulatory assistance or a combination of services. While the intent of the SBIR/STTR programs is commercialization (Phase III), only SBIR/STTR technical and business assistance (TABAs) funds are allowed to be used for commercialization activities such as patent fees; market and sales; market research; business development/product development/market plans; legal fees, travel and other costs including labor relating to license agreements and partnerships. The remaining SBIR/STTR funds are for research and development purposes only and exclude these commercialization activities.

Applicant Eligibility:

The principal investigator of an STTR award may be employed with either the small business concern or collaborating non-profit research institution as long as s/he has a formal appointment with or commitment to the applicant small business concern. At least 40% of the project is to be performed by the small business concern and at least 30% by the non-profit research institution. In both Phase I and Phase II, the research must be performed in the U.S. and its possessions.

Beneficiary Eligibility:

Only domestic for-profit small business firms may apply for SBIR and STTR programs.

Credentials/Documentation:

Individual NRSA awardees and Institutional NRSA trainees must be citizens or noncitizen nationals of the United States, or have been admitted for permanent residency. Two levels of training are available: graduate level predoctoral training and postdoctoral training. All potential trainees must possess a desire for training in one of the health or health-related areas specified by the National Institutes of Health. Each applicant must be sponsored by an accredited public or private nonprofit institution engaged in such training. Costs will be determined in accordance with OMB Circular No. A-87 for State and local governments. For-profit organization costs are determined in accordance with Subpart 31.2 of the Federal Acquisition Regulations. For other grantees, costs will be determined in accordance with DHHS Regulations 45 CFR, Part 74, Subpart Q. For SBIR and STTR grants, the applicant organization (small business concern) must present a research plan that has potential for commercialization and furnish evidence that scientific competence, experimental methods, facilities, equipment, and funds requested are appropriate to carry out the plan. SBIR and STTR applicants must use the SF424 Research and Related (R&R) application for electronic submission through grants.gov. Electronic submission of NIH Research Performance Progress Reports (RPPR) apply for non-competing continuations (e.g., second year of Phase II). OMB Circular No. A-87 applies to this program. 2 CFR 200, Sub-part E - Cost Principles applies to this program.

Visit the following link to obtain application information and instructions (<http://grants1.nih.gov/grants/funding/424/index.htm>).

Award Procedure:

All accepted applications are evaluated by an appropriate initial review group (study section). All grant applications receive a final secondary review by the National Heart, Lung, and Blood Advisory Council. Staff informs applicants of the results of the review. If support is contemplated, staff initiates preparations of awards for grants. All accepted SBIR/STTR applications are evaluated for scientific and technical merit by an appropriate scientific peer review panel and by a national advisory council or board. All applications receiving a priority score compete for available SBIR/STTR set-aside funds on the basis of scientific and technical merit and commercial potential of the proposed research, program relevance, and program balance among the areas of research.

93.840 Translation and Implementation Science Research for Heart, Lung, Blood Diseases, and Sleep Disorders

AUTHORIZATION:

Public Health Service Act, Section 301, 422 and 487, as amended, Public Laws 78-410 and 99-158, 42 U.S.C. 241, 42 U.S.C. 285, and 42 U.S.C. 288, as amended; Small Business Reauthorization Act of 2000, Public Law 106-554.,

OBJECTIVES:

The Center for Translation Research and Implementation Science (CTRIS) supports the conduct of pragmatic trials which identify the best strategies for ensuring successful integration of evidence-based interventions within clinical and public health settings, such as health centers, worksites, communities, and schools in the United States and abroad. Trials may use qualitative, quantitative, and/or mixed methods approaches. Mixed methods also known as multi-methods involve the integration of quantitative and qualitative data collection and analytical approaches into a single study or program of inquiry to generate new knowledge. It can include either concurrent or sequential use of these two classes of methods to follow a line of inquiry. Pragmatic trials constitute a cornerstone of late-stage T4 translation research process. They are unlike explanatory trials that confirm a physiological or clinical hypothesis and form the pillars of the earlier stages of the translational research spectrum. Rather, pragmatic trials are designed to generate the knowledge needed for the adoption of interventions, already proven to be effective in explanatory trials, into real-world clinical practice and community settings. This research helps to turn discoveries into improved health. Programs support the biomedical research workforce and career development and research dissemination including training of early-stage scientists and established investigators to conduct late-stage translation phase (T4) and implementation science research in heart, lung, and blood diseases and sleep disorders and research education. Small Business Innovation Research (SBIR) program: To stimulate technological innovation; use small business to meet Federal research and development needs; foster and encourage participation in innovation and entrepreneurship by socially and economically disadvantaged persons; and increase private-sector commercialization of innovations derived from Federal research and development funding related to late-stage translation phase (T4), including implementation science, research education, and research dissemination products, for both domestic and global health. Small Business Technology Transfer (STTR) program: To stimulate technological innovation; foster technology transfer through cooperative R&D between small businesses and research institutions, and increase private sector commercialization of innovations derived from federal R&D to late-stage translation phase (T4) research including implementation science, research education, and research dissemination products for both domestic and global health.

AUTHORIZATION:

Public Health Service Act, Section 301, 437, 487, Public Law 78-410, 42 USC Code 241.

OBJECTIVES:

The National Institute of Arthritis and Musculoskeletal and Skin Diseases (NIAMS) mission is to support research into the causes, treatment, and prevention of arthritis and musculoskeletal and skin diseases; training of basic and clinical scientists to carry out this research; and dissemination of information on research progress in these diseases. The Division of Extramural Research promotes and supports basic, translational, and clinical studies of Systemic Rheumatic and Autoimmune Diseases, Skin Biology and Diseases, Bone Biology and Diseases, Muscle Biology and Diseases, and Joint Biology and Diseases and Orthopaedics. NIAMS Systemic Rheumatic and Autoimmune Diseases programs address basic, translational, and clinical research, including clinical trials and observational and mechanistic studies, focused on immune-mediated arthritis and autoimmune-related acute and chronic disorders in adults and children. NIAMS Skin Biology and Diseases programs support basic, translational, and clinical research in skin, including both common and rare skin diseases. These programs include investigations of the basic molecular, cellular, and developmental biology of skin, as well as studies of skin as an immune, sensory, endocrine, and metabolic organ. NIAMS Bone Biology and Diseases programs support research on the control of bone formation, resorption, and mineralization as well as the effects of signaling molecules on bone cells. They support clinical studies of interventions to prevent fractures associated with osteoporosis and research into less common bone diseases. NIAMS Muscle Biology and Diseases programs encourage research on muscle developmental biology, growth, maintenance, and hypertrophy; physiology of contraction; structural biology of the contractile apparatus; disease mechanisms; biomarkers and outcome measures; and development and clinical testing of therapies for conditions including the muscular dystrophies. NIAMS Joint Biology, Diseases, and Orthopaedics programs support a broad spectrum of research centered on the interplay among the body's muscles, bones, and connective tissues. They encourage tissue engineering and regenerative medicine research, molecular biology, imaging, and clinical research, and the treatment and prevention of orthopaedic conditions. NIAMS participates in the Small Business Innovation Research (SBIR) and Small Business Technology Transfer (STTR) programs. The SBIR program is intended to increase private sector commercialization of innovations derived from Federal research and development; to increase small business participation in Federal research and development; and to foster and encourage participation of socially and economically disadvantaged small business concerns and women-owned small business concerns in technological innovation. TYPES OF ASSISTANCE:

Project Grants

USES AND USE RESTRICTIONS:

Project Grants provide funds for salaries, equipment, supplies, travel, and other expenses associated with scientific investigation relevant to program objectives. NRSA's are made directly to individuals for research training in specified biomedical shortage areas, or, to institutions to enable them to make NRSA's to individuals selected by them. Each individual who receives a NRSA is obligated upon termination of the award to comply with certain service and payback provisions. SBIR Phase I grants (of approximately 6-months duration) are to establish the technical merit and feasibility of a proposed research effort that may lead to a commercial product or process. Phase II grants are for the continuation of the research initiated in Phase I and that are likely to result in commercial products or processes. Only Phase I awardees are eligible to receive Phase II support. STTR Phase I grants (normally of 1-year duration) are to determine the scientific, technical, and commercial merit and feasibility of the proposed cooperative effort that has potential for commercial application. Phase II funding is based on results of research initiated in Phase I and scientific and technical merit and commercial potential of the Phase II application.

Researchers Develop First Functional, Lab-generated Islets That Evade Immune System Attack: Scientists have developed functional human islet-like organoids (HILOs) that can be shielded from immune system attack, an advance that allowed these HILOs to treat a mouse model of type 1 diabetes for weeks without immunosuppressive drugs. Pancreatic islet dysfunction can compromise the bodys ability to maintain healthy blood glucose (sugar) levels. In type 1 diabetes, the immune system plays a key role in this dysfunction, destroying insulin-producing (beta) cells in the islets. Transplanting healthy, insulin-producing islets into people with diabetes can help manage blood glucose levels without the need for insulin injections, but several major issues keep this procedure from being routinely used. One hurdle is that limited amounts of cadaveric islets of transplantable quality are available. Another issue is that immunosuppressant drugs that can cause serious side effects must be used to prevent transplant rejection. However, making human islet-like cell clusters in the lab that both mimic healthy islets and evade the immune system has proven to be challenging. Now, a group of scientists has identified physical and biological factors needed to produce functional, immune-evading HILOs. Building on previous research, they grew -like cells derived from human induced pluripotent stem cells in a gel-like, three-dimensional scaffold that more closely mimics the human pancreas. These growing conditions produced mature cell clusters that had many of the characteristics of healthy islets, including producing insulin in response to glucose and reducing blood glucose levels in a mouse model of type 1 diabetes. But how could these HILOs be protected from immune attack? Previous work had suggested that a protein called PD-L1 helps shield islets from the immune system. When the scientists treated HILOs to induce PD-L1 production, these HILOs were protected from immune attack when transplanted into a mouse model of type 1 diabetes. Even when transplanted into a mouse model engineered to have a human-like immune system, the HILOs provided steady blood glucose control for over 50 days without the need for immunosuppression. More research is needed to clarify how long the HILOs immune protection can last and how long they can remain functional when transplanted. These issues and others are key to determining whether HILOs can be used to manage blood glucose levels in people with diabetes. Overall, these findings give hope that it may one day be possible to protect transplanted islets in the human body from immune attack. Such advances could lead to improved treatments that free people with type 1 diabetes from the need for insulin injections without incurring the risks of immunosuppression.Spracklen CN, Horikoshi M, Kim YJ,Sim X. ASSISTANCE LISTINGS DESCRIPTIONS

Asian descent has yielded a wealth of new information about the disease that may one day help improve its treatment and prevention for people whether or not they have East Asian genetic heritage. Understanding genetic risk for type 2 diabetes has grown in importance in recent decades as lifestyle changes have interacted with genetic traits that might have been benign in prior generations, but now predispose a person to type 2 diabetes. This dynamic is helping fuel a worrisome rise in diabetes prevalence around the world, and East Asian countries are seeing some of the largest increases. Researchers have identified over 240 different genetic regions mostly within the last 15 years where variations appear to have a measurable influence on susceptibility to type 2 diabetes. Most of these advances came from genome-wide association (GWA) studies, in which scientists look for genetic features that are either more or less common in people with a disease than in people without it. By themselves, most of the known diabetes risk genes have only small effects on a person's likelihood of getting the disease, and early GWA studies often required genomic analysis of thousands of participants in order to detect them. As the field progressed, even larger studies were required to find genes with still smaller effects, or for which the variants of interest were rarer. Eventually, the only practical way to obtain a large enough sample size was to combine results from several previous studies so that hundreds of thousands of research participants were effectively included. The great majority of type 2 diabetes susceptibility genes found in this manner, however, were identified by combining GWA studies whose participants were primarily of European ancestry. As a result, less is known about unique genetic risk factors for the disease in people of East Asian and other non-White backgrounds. Researchers have now completed a pooled analysis of numerous previous GWA studies conducted in Japan, China, Korea, and other East Asian countries, yielding a cumulative total of 433,540 participants, 77,418 of whom had type 2 diabetes. In this way they identified 183 different parts of the genome where genetic features influence predisposition to type 2 diabetes in people with ancestry from this part of the world. Most of these genetic regions had been identified in previous studies as affecting the risk for type 2 diabetes, confirming and bolstering what was known about the relationship of those gene regions to the disease. However, a remarkably large number could be clearly distinguished from previously detected type 2 diabetes genetic risk factors, and were therefore new discoveries. Some of the gene regions newly linked to type 2 diabetes risk were notable for affecting susceptibility to the disease even in participants considered to have a healthy body weight. These findings may help explain an intriguing scientific mystery: although overweight and obesity are risk factors for type 2 diabetes throughout the world, people with East Asian ancestry are more likely than those from other backgrounds to develop type 2 diabetes at lower body weight. Increasing the number of known genetic risk factors for type 2 diabetes by about 25 percent, this study sheds light on aspects of type 2 diabetes genetics that are unique to those of East Asian descent and may someday make it possible to tailor diabetes prevention or care for a large fraction of the world's population. The findings have also reinforced and clarified previous discoveries in participants from other parts of the world and yielded information that could eventually lead to new therapeutic approaches with potential to benefit anyone with type 2 diabetes, regardless of where his or her ancestors come from. Single-cell analysis of Crohns disease lesions identifies a pathogenic cellular module associated with resistance to anti-TNF therapy. Cell 178: 1493-1508.e20, 2019. A Cellular Signature Reveals Why Current Crohns Disease Therapy Does Not Work for Some People: Scientists have identified a tell-tale combination of cells in people with Crohns disease who do not respond to one of its most effective treatments, shedding light on the nature of the disease and revealing potential new targets for therapy. Crohns disease, a form of inflammatory bowel disease characterized by chronic inflammation in parts of the small intestine, can cause debilitating flares of diarrhea and abdominal pain, leading to malnutrition and weight loss. Treating Crohns disease is challenging because the response to therapy varies greatly from person to person, and no single treatment works for everyone. Well-tolerated anti-inflammatory medications, for example, do not work in many people with Crohns disease. Stronger medications that block a major component of the inflammatory response called tumor necrosis factor (TNF) have been approved to treat Crohns disease and are effective for many whose health did not improve with the milder anti-inflammatory drugs. However, for unclear reasons, a substantial portion of people do not respond to TNF-blocking drugs and must eventually resort to more drastic approaches to control the inflammation, which usually means surgically removing the affected areas. In a recent study, scientists applied state-of-the-art technology to determine why some people do not benefit from certain Crohns disease treatments. They started by isolating and identifying single cells from intestinal lesions of 11 men and women with Crohns disease. Comparing these cells with cells from healthy intestinal tissue from the same patients, the researchers found a specific combination of cells including activated immune cells and cells that make up connective tissue in the lesions from several of the study participants. When the researchers looked for this cellular signature in a larger, well-characterized group of male and female children with Crohns disease, they found it was more likely present in those whose symptoms did not respond to anti-TNF therapy. Analysis of how the cells communicate with each other showed that this particular cellular combination does not rely solely upon TNF to maintain gut inflammation, which may explain why TNF-blocking drugs are ineffective. Importantly, this analysis also identified several other molecular targets for other potential therapies that, if used in combination with TNF-blocking drugs, might be able to prevent inflammation in people with Crohns disease who do not respond to anti-TNF medications alone. This study builds upon recent findings showing that there are probably at least several distinct types of Crohns disease, which could explain why treatment responses vary so widely from person to person. The results also show that the cellular makeup of the inflammatory lesions could affect how well different Crohns disease medications will work. Biological signatures such as this could help health care providers predict which therapies would be most effective, and they could provide the basis for new treatments for people with this disease. Todoric J, Di Caro G, Reibe S, Karin M. Fructose stimulated de novo lipogenesis is promoted by inflammation. Nat Metab 2: 1034-1045, 2020. How High Fructose Intake May Trigger Fatty Liver Disease: A team of researchers supported by the NIDDK, as well as other NIH Institutes, discovered that consuming high amounts of fructose may promote nonalcoholic fatty liver disease by damaging the intestinal barrier, which leads to inflammation and effects on the liver. Fructose is a common type of sugar in the American diet, including its processed form called high-fructose corn syrup that is used to sweeten a variety of foods. Studies have linked excessive consumption of high-fructose corn syrup and other added sugars to health problems like obesity, diabetes, heart disease, and nonalcoholic fatty liver disease (NAFLD), in which too much fat is stored in liver cells. Fatty liver disease can lead to liver inflammation and liver damage, resulting in a more aggressive disease called nonalcoholic steatohepatitis (NASH) that can progress to scarring of the liver (cirrhosis), liver cancer, and liver failure. Scientists have been unsure how high fructose consumption might contribute to NAFLD. A research team set out to explore fructose's role in NAFLD. The researchers gave male mice either a high-fructose diet or a control diet with equivalent calories from corn starch, which breaks down into glucose, the sugar cells use for energy. Within a few months, mice on the high-fructose diet developed fatty livers and had greater rates of liver tumors than mice on the control diet. Mice bred to be prone to develop NASH showed clinical signs of the disease on the high-fructose diet. The team found that mice fed the high-fructose diet for long periods showed not only liver inflammation, but also deterioration of their intestinal barrier, which normally prevents bacteria and toxins in the gut from leaking into the bloodstream. Mice fed a high-fructose diet also had higher circulating levels of endotoxins released from certain bacteria when they die. The team discovered that leaked endotoxins prompted immune cells in the liver called macrophages to react and increase the production of cell signaling proteins like tumor necrosis factor (TNF) that can cause inflammation. Further experiments showed that these signaling proteins boosted enzymes that convert fructose into fatty deposits in the liver. Restoring the mice's intestinal barrier prevented this fatty buildup in the liver. Using drugs and genetic manipulations, the team was able to stop the gut barrier deterioration from excessive fructose intake and prevent the onset of severe fatty liver disease and liver tumors. Experiments in human liver cells showed that a similar cellular process could take place in people: adding TNF to the human liver cells increased the conversion of fructose into fat. Overall, this study points to a pathway in which high fructose levels could trigger a breakdown in the intestinal barrier and leakage of gut microbial products into the liver, thereby exacerbating inflammation and boosting the conversion of fructose into fatty deposits. The findings from this study could lead to new ways to treat and prevent NAFLD, which affects an increasingly large percentage of the U.S. population. For example, future studies could test agents that restore the integrity of the intestinal barrier in people at risk for NAFLD. Sex and glomerular filtration rate trajectories in children. Clin J Am Soc Nephrol 15: 320-329, 2020. Identifying Children at Increased Risk of Chronic Kidney Disease Progression: A new study has described different trajectories of chronic kidney disease (CKD) progression in children that will aid in identifying those at high risk for progressive disease. The basic functional unit of the kidney is the nephron, which consists of various cells and structures that work together to filter waste products, remove excess fluid from the blood, and balance various body chemicals. Of these structures, the glomerulus is the fundamental filtering apparatus. A common kidney function measurement called the glomerular filtration rate (GFR) is an estimate of blood filtered per minute by all the nephrons within the kidneys. The ability to predict CKD progression, as measured by declining GFR, is a major challenge for nephrology (the medical specialty focused on the kidneys). Using publicly available Chronic Kidney Disease in Children (CKiD) study data through the NIDDK Central Repository, researchers employed a statistical modeling approach to establish GFR trajectories (i.e., changes in kidney function over time) in female and male participants with glomerular and nonglomerular diseases. CKiD is a multi-center study of children ages 1 to 16 years with mildly to moderately impaired kidney function. The CKiD researchers are monitoring the health of these children over time in several areas, including determining the risk factors for decline in kidney function, and defining how progressive decline in kidney function affects biomarkers of risk factors for cardiovascular disease, evaluating several brain functions (e.g., attention, perception, memory, language, and behavior), and assessing growth failure and its associated morbidity. Using data from CKiD, this study found two distinct GFR trajectories for glomerular disease while four distinct GFR trajectories were reported for nonglomerular disease. Glomerular and non-glomerular diseases displayed very different GFR trajectories among those with glomerular disease, a subset of female participants had a rapid GFR trajectory decline indicating rapid loss of kidney function, whereas no difference was observed between sexes in those with non-glomerular diseases. This valuable new information from a subset of girls with rapidly progressing glomerular disease will enable clinicians to better prepare their patients and their families for kidney transplantation or dialysis. Furthermore, girls have lower access to kidney transplantation in the United States than boys, and this study could help address this disparity. Ghanem MA, Maxwell AD, Wang Y-N, Bailey MR. Noninvasive acoustic manipulation of objects in a living body. Proc Natl Acad Sci USA 117: 16848-16855, 2020. Moving Objects with Ultrasound Beams Potential Application to Urinary Stone Disease: Researchers have developed a noninvasive technology using ultrasound beams to lift and reposition an object in a living animal an advance that could potentially be used to treat people with urinary stone disease. Urinary stones (also referred to as kidney stones) are one of the most common disorders of the urinary tract. Smaller stones may pass with little or no pain, while larger stones may get stuck along the lower urinary tract and block the flow of urine, causing severe pain and/or bleeding. Current treatments for urinary stones, such as lithotripsy that breaks stones into smaller pieces, may leave behind residual stone fragments. Most fragments will pass on their own, but others may grow larger, cause pain, and may require the need for additional treatment. Working to advance safe, effective, and more efficient ways to reposition and encourage the passage of urinary stones, researchers have developed a noninvasive strategy to essentially trap a stone in an ultrasound beam (i.e., acoustic trapping). Trapped within this beam, the stone can be moved or repositioned by either moving the device that generates the ultrasound waves (e.g., transducer) or electronically steering the ultrasound beam by altering the phase of the wave. The scientists first demonstrated that the ultrasound beam could trap, lift, and steer a 3-millimeter glass sphere under ideal conditions in a water tank. They moved the sphere a total distance of 6 millimeters vertically and 6 millimeters horizontally. The researchers further reported that this noninvasive acoustic trapping approach successfully moved glass spheres in the urinary bladders of three female pigs. To accomplish this, a single 3-millimeter glass sphere was placed in the bladder of each anesthetized animal using a tube with a camera-equipped scope and a device carrying the glass sphere. The camera monitored the sphere movement and was used to evaluate changes to the bladder wall after each acoustic trapping manipulation. Importantly, the technology did not cause detectable injury to the animals bladder wall. This study demonstrates the ability to manipulate objects in the pig bladder using acoustic trapping, with potential application to treating urinary stones as well as other medical uses. Future research will be needed to evaluate the safety and effectiveness of this approach with respect to variations in shape, structure, and composition of urinary stones along the entirety of the urinary system, as well as to determine if it could be used in people. The technology associated with this translational work has been licensed to a small business.

CRITERIA FOR SELECTING PROPOSALS:

The AHA has an ongoing data collection effort in place designed to capture information on the adoption and use of electronic health records, as well as users attitudes towards them in U.S. hospitals. Since 2008, ONC has supported the data collection and acquired the resulting data through a single-source cooperative agreement. The AHA Annual Survey of Hospitals collects data from more than 6,300 hospitals through the U.S. This data is a primary resource for government agencies and has been used by the Centers for Disease Control and Prevention, the U.S. Census Bureau, and CMS. The IT Supplement currently reaches more than 3,500 hospitals in the U.S. The IT Supplement is a separate collection effort from the AHAs general census tracking survey project that has been conducted continuously since 1946. Over this time span, the general census tracking survey has enjoyed an average response rate in excess of 75 percent. Such a high level of response is exceptional for a voluntary survey that includes both member and non-member hospitals. Building on the success of the general survey, the response rates for the IT Supplement have exceeded 60 percent each year since its inception, an exemplary response rate for a comparatively newer data collection effort. As the leading acute care hospital membership organization (approximately 80 percent of non-federal acute care hospitals are members), the AHA is uniquely suited to build on the response rate successes of prior years. Its credibility and reputation as a hospital advocacy and research center are unmatched by any other organization. In addition, the AHA has more than 60 years of experience in survey development and design and effective data collection through mail-based, and now Internet-based, efforts. In an effort to measure key components of interoperability, ONC has made it a priority to measure health care providers ability to electronically send, receive, find, and integrate information received from outside sources. Without funding to supplement the cost of data collection, the AHA would not conduct an IT survey of this scope. ONCs input on the survey instrument also allows the agency to track key performance measures regarding the interoperable exchange of health information by hospitals. The AHAs IT Supplement is the only known source that tracks key performance measures regarding the interoperable exchange of health information by hospitals. Our national progress on interoperability also has direct implications on the success of federal initiatives such as delivery system reform and achieving widespread interoperability as outlined in MACRA. Tracking and reporting on progress allows us to know where we are collectively starting from, how much progress we have made over time, and whether we have met important milestones. In addition, the AHAs IT Supplement has the capability to track specific functionalities included or under consideration for future inclusion in federal programs (such as meaningful use). ONCs ability to provide input on the content of the IT Supplement to measure interoperability and EHR functionalities is critical to informing and evaluating federal health IT policies and programs. This survey has served the public good in that it has been the foundation of important public research on EHR adoption, as well as examining the impact EHR use has on the quality and efficiency of care in inpatient settings. Examples of such studies include Holmgren et al. 2016, Lammers et al. 2016, Walker et al. 2016, and McLaughlin et al. 2015.

The purpose of the FOA is to fund an organization with extensive experience developing and supporting syndromic surveillance practice to develop, implement and maintain a community of practice for CDCs National Syndromic Surveillance Program.

TYPES OF ASSISTANCE:

Cooperative Agreements

USES AND USE RESTRICTIONS:

Syndromic surveillance emphasizes the use of near real-time pre-diagnostic data, and statistical tools to detect and characterize unusual activity for further public health investigation or response. In 2015, CDC issued CDC-RFA-OE15-1502: The National Syndromic Surveillance Program: Enhancing Syndromic Surveillance Capacity and Practice to fund about 25 health departments to elevate and strengthen the overall science and practice of syndromic surveillance. The purpose of NSSP is to strengthen the practice of syndromic surveillance at local and state public health agencies and to support the use of syndromic surveillance data for regional and national situation awareness. The purpose of this new FOA is to fund an organization to support the development, implementation, promotion, and ongoing maintenance of the NSSP Community of Practice (NSSP CoP). The purpose of the NSSP CoP is to promote the use and practice of syndromic surveillance among a broad range of public health practitioners and stakeholders interested in sharing knowledge to advance and improve syndromic surveillance use and practices. The NSSP CoP will focus on providing a peer-to-peer collaborative environment to foster and facilitate knowledge sharing and collaboration. Working together through the NSSP CoP will allow CDC to leverage the talents of a broad range of public health practitioners and stakeholders to enhance the nations electronic surveillance capacity.

TYPES OF ASSISTANCE:

Project Grants, Project Grants (Contracts)

USES AND USE RESTRICTIONS:

Research grants may be used to provide salaries, equipment, supplies, travel and other expenses for research. The grantee institution is obliged to expend grant funds prudently for the purposes stated in the application and award document. National Research Service Awards (NRSA) are made directly to individuals for research training in specified biomedical shortage areas, or to institutions, to enable them to make NRSA to individuals selected by them. Each individual who receives a NRSA may be obligated upon termination of the award to comply with service and payback provisions. Career Development Awards such as the Independent Scientist Awards (K02) provide support for newly independent scientists with health-related degrees who can demonstrate the need for a period of intensive research focus as a means of enhancing their research careers and facilitating their ability to obtain major NIH research awards. Mentored Clinical Research Scientist Development Awards (K08) provide support for clinically trained health professionals who need an additional period of sponsored research experience as a way to gain expertise in a research area new to the candidate or in an area that would demonstrably enhance the candidate's scientific career. The K01 and K22 Mentored Research Scientist Development Awards are used to promote diversity in neuroscience research and support an intensive supervised research career development experience for underrepresented, disabled or disadvantaged career neuroscientists. The Mentored Patient-Oriented Research Career Development Award (K23) provide support for a period of supervised study and research for clinically trained professionals who have the potential to develop into productive clinical investigators. SBIR and STTR Phase I grants (of approximately 6-months to 2 years in duration) are to establish the technical merit and feasibility of a proposed research effort that may lead to a commercial product or process. Phase II grants (of approximately 1 to 3 years in duration) are for the continuation of the research efforts initiated in Phase I that are likely to result in commercial products or processes. Phase II funding is based on results of research initiated in Phase I, scientific and technical merit, and commercial potential of Phase II application. Grant funds may be expended only for the purpose stated in the application and award document. The NINDS participates in the NIH SBIR/STTR "fast track" and Phase IIB initiatives.

Applicant Eligibility:

Interstate; Intrastate; State (includes District of Columbia, public institutions of higher education and hospitals); Local (includes State-designated Indian Tribes, excludes institutions of higher education and hospitals); Sponsored organization; Public nonprofit institution/organization (includes institutions of higher education and hospitals); Other public institution/organization; U.S. Territories and possessions; U.S. Territories and possessions (includes institutions of higher education and hospitals); Individual/Family; Minority group; Specialized group (e.g. health professionals, students, veterans); Small business (less than 500 employees); Profit organization; Private nonprofit institution/organization (includes institutions of higher education and hospitals); Other private institutions/organizations; State; Research Grants: Any public, private, nonprofit, or for-profit institution is eligible to apply. For-profit institutions are not eligible for Institutional National Research Service Awards but are eligible for Individual NRSA. All proposals are reviewed for scientific merit, for evaluation of the qualifications of the investigators, for adequacy of the research environment, and for significance of the problem. Approved proposals compete for available funds. All Career Development Program awardees, with the exception of awardees of the Pathway to Independence Award (K99/R00), must be citizens or have been admitted to the United States for permanent residence. Candidates must be nominated for the program by a nonfederal public or private nonprofit institution located in the United States, its possessions or territories. To be eligible, postdoctoral NRSA trainees or fellows must have a professional or scientific degree (M.D., Ph.D., D.D.S., D.O., D.V.M., Sc.D., D. Eng., or equivalent domestic or foreign degree). SBIR grants can be awarded only to domestic small businesses (entities that are independently owned and operated for profit, are not dominant in the field in which research is proposed, and have no more than 500 employees). Primary employment (more than one-half time) of the principal investigator must be with the small business at the time of award and during the conduct of the proposed project. In both Phase I and Phase II, the entire research must be performed in the United States. To be eligible for funding, a grant application must be approved for scientific merit and program relevance by a scientific review group and a national advisory council. STTR grants can be awarded only to domestic small business concerns (entities that are independently owned and operated for profit, are not dominant in the field in which research is proposed and have no more than 500 employees) which "partner" with a research institution in cooperative research and development. In accordance with 45 CFR 75, for-profit (commercial) organizations are subject to audit requirements for a non-Federal audit if, during its fiscal year, it expended $750,000 or more under HHS awards and at least one award is a HHS grant or subgrant. The regulation incorporates the thresholds and deadlines of 45 CFR 75, but provides for profit organizations with two options for the type of audit that will satisfy the audit requirement: 1. a financial related audit of the HHS awards in accordance with Government Auditing Standards, or 2. an audit that meets the requirements of 45 CFR 75. In accordance with NIH Grants Policy Statement, Foreign grantees are subject to the same audit requirements as for-profit (commercial) organizations.

Records:

Grantees generally must retain financial and programmatic records, supporting documents, statistical records, and all other records that are required by the terms of a grant, or may reasonably be considered pertinent to a grant, for a period of 3 years from the date the annual FSR is submitted. For awards under SNAP (other than those to foreign organizations and Federal institutions), the 3-year retention period will be calculated from the date the FSR for the entire competitive segment is submitted. Those grantees must retain the records pertinent to the entire competitive segment for 3 years from the date the FSR is submitted to NIH. Foreign organizations and Federal institutions must retain records for 3 years from the date of submission of the annual FSR to NIH. See 45 CFR 75 for exceptions and qualifications to the 3-year retention requirement (e.g., if any litigation, claim, financial management review, or audit is started before the expiration of the 3-year period, the records must be retained until all litigation, claims, or audit findings involving the records have been resolved and final action taken). Those sections also specify the retention period for other types of grant-related records, including F&A cost proposals and property records. See 45 CFR 75 for record retention and access requirements for contracts under grants. In accordance with 45 CFR 75 of Federal Regulations, the HHS Inspector General, the U.S. Comptroller General, or any of their duly authorized representatives have the right of timely and unrestricted access to any books, documents, papers, or other records of recipients that are pertinent to awards in order to make audits, examinations, excerpts, transcripts, and copies of such documents. This right also includes timely and reasonable access to a recipient's personnel records for the purpose of interview and discussion related to such documents. The rights of access are not limited to the required retention period, but shall last as long as records are retained.

NATIONAL INSTITUTES OF HEALTH, HEALTH AND HUMAN SERVICES,
DEPARTMENT OF

AUTHORIZATION:

Small Business Research and Development Enhancement Act of 1992, , Public Law 102-564, 42 USC Code 241. Public Health Service Act, Title IV, Section 301, Public Law 78-410

OBJECTIVES:

To assist public and private nonprofit institutions and individuals to establish, expand and improve biomedical research and research training in infectious diseases and related areas; to conduct developmental research, to produce and test research materials. To assist public, private and commercial institutions to conduct developmental research, to produce and test research materials, to provide research services as required by the agency for programs in infectious diseases, and controlling disease caused by infectious or parasitic agents, allergic and immunologic diseases and related areas. Projects range from studies of microbial physiology and antigenic structure to collaborative trials of experimental drugs and vaccines, mechanisms of resistance to antibiotics as well as research dealing with epidemiological observations in hospitalized patients or community populations and progress in allergic and immunologic diseases. Because of this dual focus, the program encompasses both basic research and clinical research. Small Business Innovation Research (SBIR) program expands and improves private sector participation in biomedical research. The SBIR Program intends to increase and facilitate private sector commercialization of innovations derived from Federal research and development; to increase small business participation in Federal research and development; and to foster and encourage participation of socially and economically disadvantaged small business concerns and women-owned small business concerns in technological innovation. The Small Business Technology Transfer (STTR) program stimulates and fosters scientific and technological innovation through cooperative research and development carried out between small business concerns and research institutions; to foster technology transfer between small business concerns and research institutions; to increase private sector commercialization of innovations derived from Federal research and development; and to foster and encourage participation of socially and economically disadvantaged small business concerns and women-owned small business concerns in technological innovation. Research Career Development Awards support the development of scientists during the formative stages of their careers. Individual National Research Service Awards (NRSA) are made directly to approve applicants for research training in specified biomedical shortage areas. In addition, Institutional National Research Service Awards are made to enable institutions to select and make awards to individuals to receive training under the aegis of their institutional program.

TYPES OF ASSISTANCE:

Project Grants

USES AND USE RESTRICTIONS:

Beginning with fiscal year 1998, the direct costs awarded in the first year to a research project grant resulting from a competing renewal application will be limited to no more than a 20 percent increase over the direct costs awarded in the last non-competing year of that grant. Research grants provide funds for salaries, equipment, supplies, and travel. They also afford the collateral benefits of enriching the training experience of research workers. Grantees are expected to be judicious in using these funds. The application for a research grant sets forth specific terms and conditions and requires the signatures of the principal investigator and an official authorized to sign for the institution. Scientists and institutions are under an obligation to expend grant funds prudently for the purposes stated in the application and award document. For Research Career Development Awards (RCDAs) the scientists must demonstrate an outstanding research potential for independent research in the sciences related to transplantation, immunology, allergies, and immunological diseases. For National Research Service Awards (NRSA), each individual who receives NRSA support is obligated upon termination of the award to comply with certain service and payback provisions. SBIR Phase I grants (of approximately 6-months' duration) are to establish the technical merit and feasibility of a proposed research effort that may lead to a commercial product or process. Phase II grants are for the continuation of the research initiated in Phase I and which are likely to result in commercial products or processes. Only Phase I awardees are eligible to receive Phase II support. STTR Phase I grants (normally of 1-year duration) are to determine the scientific, technical, and commercial merit and feasibility of proposed cooperative effort that has potential for commercial application. Phase II funding is based on results of research initiated in Phase I and scientific and technical merit and commercial potential of the Phase II application.

Applicant Eligibility:

State (includes District of Columbia, public institutions of higher education and hospitals); Local (includes State-designated Indian Tribes, excludes institutions of higher education and hospitals); Public nonprofit institution/organization (includes institutions of higher education and hospitals); Individual/Family; Private nonprofit institution/organization (includes institutions of higher education and hospitals); Universities, colleges, hospitals, laboratories, and other public or private nonprofit domestic institutions, including State and local units of government, and individuals are eligible to make application for grant support of research by a named principal investigator or a research career development candidate. For-profit organizations are also eligible, with the exception of NRSA. Individual NRSA awardees must be nominated and sponsored by a public or nonprofit private institution having staff and facilities appropriate to the proposed research training program. All NRSA awardees must be citizens or have been admitted to the United States for permanent residence. To be eligible, predoctoral candidates must have completed the baccalaureate degree, and postdoctoral awardees must have a professional or scientific degree (M.D., Ph.D., D.D.S., D.O., D.V.M., Sc.D., D.Eng., or equivalent domestic or foreign degree). SBIR grants can be awarded only to domestic small businesses (entities that are independently owned and operated for profit, are not dominant in the field in which research is being proposed and have no more than 500 employees). Primary employment (more than one-half time) of the principal investigator must be with the small business at the time of award and during the conduct of the proposed project. In both Phase I and Phase II, the research must be performed in the U.S. or its possessions. STTR grants can be awarded only to domestic small business concerns (entities that are independently owned and operated for profit, are not dominant in the field in which researches proposed and have no more than 500 employees) which "partner" with a research institution in cooperative research and development. At least 40 percent of the project is to be performed by the small business concern and at least 30 percent by the research institution. In both Phase I and Phase II, the research must be performed in the U.S. and its possessions. To be eligible for funding, a grant application must be approved for scientific merit and program relevance by a scientific review group and a national advisory council.

Beneficiary Eligibility:

Credentials/Documentation:

Research grant applicants must define the objectives, methodology, and facilities for the program, and must present the program director's competence and scientific interest. For SBIR and STTR grants, applicant organization (small business concern) must present in a research plan an idea that has potential for commercialization and furnish evidence that scientific competence, experimental methods, facilities, equipment, and funds requested are appropriate to carry out the plan. Grant forms PHS 6246-1 and PHS 6246-2 are used to apply for SBIR Phase I and Phase II, respectively. Grant forms PHS 6246-3 and PHS 6246-4 are used to apply for STTR Phase I and Phase II, respectively. Applicants for individual NRSA must include their academic record, research experience, citizenship, institute sponsorship, and the proposed area and plan of training in their applications. The applicant for an institution must specify the objectives, methodology, and resources for the research training program, the qualifications experience of directing staff, the criteria to be used in selecting individuals for award, and a detailed budget justification for the amount of grant funds requested. For-profit organizations' costs are determined in accordance with Subpart 31.2 of the Federal Acquisition Regulations. For other grantees, costs will be determined by HHS Regulations HHS has implemented 2 CFR 200s administrative requirements, cost principles, and audit requirements under 45 CFR 75. 2 CFR 200, Sub-part E - Cost Principles applies to this program.

NIGMS-funded scientists investigate how living systems work at a range of levels from molecules and cells to tissues and organs, in research organisms, humans, and populations. Additionally, to ensure the vitality and continued productivity of the research enterprise, NIGMS provides leadership in training the next generation of scientists, in enhancing the diversity of the scientific workforce, and in developing research capacity throughout the country.

TYPES OF ASSISTANCE:

Project Grants

USES AND USE RESTRICTIONS:

NIGMS is organized into divisions that support research, research training, and capacity building in a range of scientific fields. Division of Biophysics, Biomedical Technology, and Computational Biosciences: Facilitates advances in basic biomedical research by supporting the development of biophysical and computational methods and tools for understanding basic biological questions; physical and theoretical methodologies, bioinformatics tools, and sophisticated quantitative approaches to lay a foundation for advances in disease diagnosis, treatment, and prevention; and the creation of innovative tools and new technologies for the study of macromolecular, cellular, and organelle processes and function. The long-term goals of the division are to leverage data, methods, and technologies to answer fundamental biological questions, to develop a more robust computing infrastructure for the biomedical research community, and to promote and facilitate the development and use of new biophysical, computational, and experimental technologies in biomedical research. Division of Genetics and Molecular, Cellular, and Developmental Biology: Supports research to understand the structure and function of cells and cellular components, and the cellular and molecular mechanisms that underlie inheritance, gene expression, and development. In most cases, research whose overall goal is to gain knowledge about a specific organ or organ system or the pathophysiology, treatment, or cure of a specific disease or condition is not supported by this division. Division of Pharmacology, Physiology, and Biological Chemistry: Supports a broad spectrum of research aimed at improving the molecular-level understanding of fundamental biological processes and discovering approaches to their control. Research supported by the division takes a multifaceted approach to problems in pharmacology, physiology, biochemistry, and biological chemistry that are very basic in nature. Division for Research Capacity Building: Supports research, faculty development, research training, and research infrastructure improvements in states where levels of NIH research funding have historically been low through the Institutional Development Award (IDeA). It also supports research directed by and research capacity in Native American and Alaska Native tribal organizations through the Native American Research Centers for Health (NARCH) program, faculty development at institutions that primarily serve students from underrepresented groups in biomedical research through the Support of Competitive Research (SCORE) program, and science education through the Science Education Partnership Awards (SEPA) program. The division also oversees the STTR Regional Technology Transfer Accelerator Hubs for IDeA States. Division of Training, Workforce Development, and Diversity: Supports programs that foster research training and the development of a strong and diverse biomedical research workforce. The division funds research training, career development, and diversity-enhancing activities through a variety of programs at the undergraduate, graduate, postdoctoral, faculty, and institutional levels. In addition, it administers the NIH Common Fund initiative, Enhancing the Diversity of the NIH-Funded Workforce.

93.860 Emerging Infections Sentinel Networks

NA,

FEDERAL AGENCY:

CENTERS FOR DISEASE CONTROL AND PREVENTION, HEALTH AND HUMAN SERVICES, DEPARTMENT OF

AUTHORIZATION:

Public Health Service Act Sections 301(a)[42 U.S.C.241(a)], 317(k)(1)[42 U.S.C.247b(k)(1)], and 317(k)(2)[42 U.S.C.247b(k)(2)], as amended.,

OBJECTIVES:

In its 1994 monograph, Addressing Emerging Infectious Disease Threats A Prevention Strategy for the United States, the Centers for Disease Control and Prevention (CDC) called for the establishment of provider-based Emerging Infections Sentinel Networks (EISNs) to monitor and evaluate conditions that are not covered by health department surveillance and that are likely to be seen by specific kinds of health providers. There are currently three provider-based networks established through CDCs EISN cooperative agreement programs: 1) Surveillance network of infectious disease specialists, 2) Global surveillance network of travel medicine clinics, and 3) Emergency department-based network of academically affiliated emergency departments for research on emerging infectious diseases. The first two networks (infectious disease specialists and travel medicine clinics) are non-research programs, and the third network (academically affiliated EDs) is a research program. These networks contribute to surveillance for emerging infectious diseases, including drug resistant, foodborne and waterborne, and vaccine-preventable or potentially vaccine-preventable diseases, and enhance information exchange leading to early identification of and response to trends and outbreaks. Objectives for the provider-based sentinel networks include the following: -To support linked groups of participating individuals or organizations in monitoring a variety of infectious disease problems and enhancing communication and collaboration among network members and the public health community; -To serve as readily accessible mechanisms to address urgent public health infectious disease problems rapidly; and -To improve understanding of specific public health issues, including, but not limited to, international travel, and enhance preparedness to meet new infectious disease threats among domestic and globally mobile populations. Additional objectives for the "research" EISN include: -To focus studies on the most important issues to be addressed by participating hospital EDs and CDC; and -To estimate the community burden of diseases.

OBJECTIVES:

To conduct and support laboratory research, clinical trials, and studies with people that explore health processes. NICHD researchers examine growth and development, biologic and reproductive functions, behavior patterns, and population dynamics to protect and maintain the health of all people. To examine the impact of disabilities, diseases, and defects on the lives of individuals. With this information, the NICHD hopes to restore, increase, and maximize the capabilities of people affected by disease and injury. To sponsor training programs for scientists, doctors, and researchers to ensure that NICHD research can continue. By training these professionals in the latest research methods and technologies, the NICHD will be able to conduct its research and make health research progress until all children, adults, families, and populations enjoy good health. The mission of the NICHD is to ensure that every person is born healthy and wanted, that women suffer no harmful effects from reproductive processes, and that all children have the chance to achieve their full potential for healthy and productive lives, free from disease or disability, and to ensure the health, productivity, independence, and well-being of all people through optimal rehabilitation.

Grantee agrees to administer the grant in accordance with the regulations and policies governing the research grant programs of the Public Health Service as stated in the terms and conditions on the application for the grant. National Research Service Awards: Awarded to individuals for full-time research training in specified behavioral and biomedical shortage areas. Awardees may utilize some of their time in academic and clinical duties if such work is closely related to their research training. Awards may be made to institutions to enable them to make NRS awards to individuals selected by them. Each individual awardee is obligated upon termination of the award to comply with certain service and payback provisions. SBIR Phase I grants (of approximately 6-months' duration) are to establish the technical merit and feasibility of a proposed research effort that may lead to a commercial product or process. Phase II grants are for the continuation of the research initiated in Phase I and which are likely to result in commercial products or processes. STTR Phase I grants (normally of 1- year duration) are to determine the scientific, technical, and commercial merit and feasibility of the proposed cooperative effort that has potential for commercial application. Phase II funding is based on results of research initiated in Phase I and scientific and technical merit and commercial potential on Phase II application.

Applicant Eligibility:

Predoctoral research training grants to institutions are also supported. Proposed study must result in biomedical or behavioral research training in a specified shortage area and which may offer opportunity to research health scientists, research clinicians, etc., to broaden their scientific background or to extend their potential for research in health-related areas. Applicants must be citizens of the United States or be admitted to the United States for permanent residency; they also must be nominated and sponsored by a public or private institution having staff and facilities suitable to the proposed research training. Domestic nonprofit organizations may apply for the institutional NRS grant. SBIR: SBIR grants can be awarded only to domestic small businesses (entities that are independently owned and operated for profit, are not dominant in the field in which research is proposed, and have no more than 500 employees). Primary employment (more than one-half time) of the principal investigator must be with the small business at the time of award and during the conduct of the proposed project. In both Phase I and Phase II, the research must be performed in the U.S. or its possessions. To be eligible for funding, a grant application must be approved for scientific merit and program relevance by a scientific review group and a national advisory council. STTR grants can be awarded only to domestic small business concerns (entities that are independently owned and operated for profit, are not dominant in the field in which research is proposed and have no more than 500 employees) which "partner" with a research institution in cooperative research and development. For other grantees, costs will be determined by HHS Regulations, 45 CFR, Part 74, Subpart Q. For SBIR and STTR grants, applicant organization (small business concern) must present in a research plan an idea that has potential for commercialization and furnish evidence that scientific competence, experimental methods, facilities, equipment, and funds requested are appropriate to carry out the plan. 2 CFR 200, Sub-part E - Cost Principles applies to this program.

Preapplication Coordination:

Pre-application coordination is not applicable. Environmental impact information is not required for this program. This program is excluded from coverage under E.O. 12372.

Application Procedures:

2 CFR 200, Uniform Administrative Requirements, Cost Principles, and Audit Requirements for Federal Awards applies to this program. National Research Service Award: Prior to formal application, an individual must arrange for acceptance at a sponsoring institution by a sponsor who will supervise the training. Individuals must be sponsored by a domestic or foreign institution. SBIR/STTR: Same as for grants (above). Applications are submitted electronically via Grants.gov following the general guidance provided at: <http://grants.nih.gov/grants/forms.htm> and the specific instructions for the respective Funding Opportunities Announcement which may be found at: <https://grants.nih.gov/funding/index.htm>

Award Procedure:

Each application receives a dual scientific review by non-NIH scientists. Awards are issued by the Eunice Kennedy Shriver National Institute of Child Health and Human Development (NICHD). National Research Service Awards: Applications are reviewed for scientific merit by an appropriate study section committee or by an institute review committee. If recommended for approval and a decision is made to make an award, a formal award notice will be sent to the applicant and sponsor. Institutional Awards are issued by the Eunice Kenney Shriver National Institute of Child Health and Human Development (NICHD). All accepted SBIR/STTR applications are evaluated for scientific and technical merit by an appropriate scientific peer review panel and by a national advisory council or board. All applications receiving a priority score compete for the available SBIR/STTR set-aside funds on the basis of scientific and technical merit and the commercial potential of the proposed research, program relevance, and program balance among the areas of research. Contact the headquarters or regional office, as appropriate, for application deadlines, or consult the specific Funding Opportunity Announcement listed in the NIH Guide for Grants and Contracts at: <https://grants.nih.gov/funding/searchGuide/nih-guide-to-grants-and-contracts.cfm>. Reports:

NIH requires that grantees periodically submit financial and progress reports. Other required reports may include annual invention utilization reports, lobbying disclosures, conflict of interest reports, audit reports, reports to the appropriate payment points (in accordance with instructions received from the payment office), and specialized programmatic reports. Grantees also are expected to publish the results of research in peer-reviewed journals and to provide information to the public on the objectives, methodology, and findings of their NIH-supported research activities, as specified in Administrative Requirements Availability of Research Results: Publications, Intellectual Property Rights, and Sharing Research Resources. The GMO is the official receipt point for most required reports. However, NIH has centralized the submission of annual progress reports; details are provided below. In addition, electronic submission through the eRA Commons is required for some annual progress reports and available for all closeout documents (final grant progress reports, final invention statements and certifications, and final financial status reports). When a paper non-competing continuation progress report is submitted, only a signed original is required; no copies are required. Submission of these reports to an address other than the centralized one may result in delays in processing of the non-competing continuation award or the submission being considered delinquent. FFRs must be electronically submitted to OFM (see Financial Reports below) through the eRA Commons eFFR feature unless otherwise indicated in the awards terms and conditions. Grantees are allowed a specified period of time to submit required financial and final progress reports (see 45 CFR parts 74.51 and 74.52, 92.40 and 92.41, and the discussion in this subsection). Failure to submit complete, accurate, and timely reports may indicate the need for closer monitoring by NIH or may result in possible award delays or enforcement actions, including withholding, removal of certain NIH Standard Terms of Award, or conversion to a reimbursement payment method (also see Administrative Requirements Enforcement Actions). The schedule for submission of the non-competing continuation progress report is discussed in the next subsection. The FFR has a dedicated section to report Federal cash receipts and disbursements. For domestic grantees this information is submitted quarterly directly to the PMS using the web-based tool. Quarterly reports are due 30 days following the end of each calendar quarter. The reporting period for this report continues to be based on the calendar quarter. Questions concerning the requirements for this quarterly financial report should be directed to the PMS. For awards issued to foreign institutions after October 1, 2012, even though payment is now through PMS, the requirement for quarterly cash reporting does not apply. These awards are now administered in PMS using subaccounts and payments will be specific to each grant at the time the grantee draws funds. Progress reports usually are required annually as part of the non-competing continuation award process. NIH may require these reports more frequently. The Non-Competing Continuation Progress Report (PHS 2590) or equivalent documentation (e.g., Research Performance Progress Report [RPPR]) must be submitted to, and approved by, NIH to non-competitively fund each additional budget period within a previously approved project period (competitive segment). Except for awards subject to SNAP, the progress report includes an updated budget in addition to other required information. NIH continues to transition to using the RPPR for progress reporting. The RPPR is a federal wide format for the submission of required annual or other interim performance reporting on grant and cooperative agreement awards. The transition to RPPR will be implemented in phases through a module in the eRA Commons. The RPPR is now required for all SNAP and fellowship awards. The PHS 2590 non-competing continuation progress report is currently required for all other NIH awards; however, the RPPR will eventually replace the PHS 2590 paper progress report. Reports of expenditures are required as documentation of the financial status of grants according to the official accounting records of the grantee organization. NIH requires all financial expenditure reports to be submitted using the Federal Financial Report (FFR) system located in the eRA Commons. This includes all initial FFRs being prepared for submission and any revised FSR/FFRs being submitted or re-submitted to NIH. The eRA Commons Federal Financial Report (FFR) system allows participants to view information on currently due and late expenditure reports and to submit these reports electronically to NIH. Paper expenditure reports are not accepted. Expenditure data submitted to NIH is initially reviewed and accepted by OFM. NIH IC grants management staff also review these expenditure reports. Except for awards under SNAP and awards that require more frequent reporting, the FFR is required on an annual basis. An annual FFR is required for awards to foreign organizations made prior to October 1, 2012 and Federal institutions made prior to October 1, 2013, whether or not they are under SNAP. When required on an annual basis, the report must be submitted for each budget period no later than 90 days after the end of the calendar quarter in which the budget period ended. The reporting period for an annual FFR will be that of the budget period for the particular grant; however, the actual submission date is based on the calendar quarter. Failure to submit timely reports may affect future funding. The report also must cover any authorized extension in time of the budget period. If more frequent reporting is required, the NoA will specify both the frequency and due date. In lieu of the annual FFR expenditure data, NIH will monitor the financial aspects of grants under SNAP by using the information submitted directly to PMS. The GMO may review the report for patterns of cash expenditures, including accelerated or delayed drawdowns, and to assess whether performance or financial management problems exist. For these SNAP awards, FFR expenditure data is required only at the end of a competitive segment. It must be submitted within 90 days after the end of the competitive segment and must report on the cumulative support awarded for the entire segment. An FFR must be submitted at this time whether or not a competing continuation award is made. If no further award is made, this report will serve as the final FFR. The grantee institution is required to submit a progress report on an annual basis for each grant award, which includes monitoring of performance.

Audits:

In accordance with the provisions of 2 CFR 200, Subpart F - Audit Requirements, nonfederal entities that expend financial assistance of $750,000 or more in Federal awards will have a single or a program-specific audit conducted for that year. Non-Federal entities that expend less than $750,000 a year in Federal awards are exempt from Federal audit requirements for that year, except as noted in 2 CFR 200.503. In addition, grants and cooperative agreements are subject to inspection and audits by DHHS and other Federal officials.

Records:

Expenditures and other financial records must be retained for 3 years from the day on which the grantee submits the last expenditure report for the report period.

EXAMPLES OF FUNDED PROJECTS:

2020 Reproductive Health, Pregnancy, and Perinatology: The NICHD program in reproductive health, pregnancy, and perinatology supports basic, clinical, and translational research on gynecologic and andrologic disorders; contraception; fertility and infertility; pregnancy; and newborn care. NICHD manages a broad research portfolio to understand, treat, and prevent common, painful, and costly gynecologic health conditions, including endometriosis, uterine fibroids, chronic pelvic pain, and pelvic floor disorders. A recent genome-wide study of fibroid subtypes discovered multiple mutations that alter the expression of three genes. This research calls into doubt the long-standing characterization of fibroids as a single condition; instead, uterine fibroids may be more similar to breast cancers a group of similar conditions that arise in a variety of ways. Such basic biology insights may lead to more targeted and more effective treatments. The new NICHD-supported centers of excellence in endometriosis research will also focus on understanding the basic biology of endometriosis to help scientists develop non-invasive diagnostics, improved treatment, and ultimately, a cure for this painful condition that affects 10 percent of women. Millions of couples across the United States have difficulty conceiving and establishing a healthy pregnancy, yet only limited information is available to understand the causes of infertility, minimize risk factors, and improve treatment options. Scientists recently discovered a key protein, SKP1, that drives a crucial step in the sperm production process. The discovery may inform strategies to treat certain forms of male infertility. As NIHs leader in pregnancy research, NICHD supports scientific studies on clinical treatments to reduce the risk of pregnancy complications for both pregnant women and their offspring. For example, scientists found that negative pressure wound therapy placing a low-pressure pump over a closed surgical wound to create negative air pressure did not appear to lower the risk of infection for women with obesity after cesarean delivery. Scientists are also working on basic and translational studies to understand, and ultimately prevent, adverse pregnancy outcomes. For example, researchers recently found that high concentrations of platelet factor 4a chemical released by small cell fragments in blood that start the first stage of chemical blood clotting could serve as a predictor of risk of placenta-mediated pregnancy complications. NICHD led the Congressionally-mandated Task Force on Research Specific to Pregnant Women and Lactating Women (PRGLAC), which sought to address gaps in understanding how to guide treatment decisions during pregnancy and breastfeeding. In September 2020, PRGLAC submitted its Implementation Plan to the HHS Secretary with pragmatic steps for carrying out the Task Forces earlier recommendations. NICHD is emphasizing obstetric pharmacology studies; in 2020-2021 NICHD is launching a new effort to provide more researchers with obstetric and pediatric pharmacology expertise, basic science research, and technology platforms to advance clinical research with pregnant and lactating women and children at all stages of development. Perinatal research supported by NICHD continues to yield important advances, including early detection of and protection against disorders that threaten the survival and development of newborns. Scientists showed that in children born between 22-26 weeks of gestation, a combination of antenatal treatment with both corticosteroids and magnesium sulfate was associated with lower rates of severe neurodevelopmental impairment or death compared with antenatal corticosteroids alone. Researchers recently developed a new imaging system, Electromyometrial Imaging (EMMI), to model fetal kicks, contractions, and fetal/maternal movements in utero. The system uses individualized body-uterus geometry mapped by Magnetic Resonance Imaging (MRI), a large number of electrodes placed around the abdomen, and specialized software for 3D mapping of electrical activation signals across the entire surface of the uterus during labor. Child Health: Research on child health explores basic biological processes that control healthy or atypical development, translational research from the bench to the bedside, behavioral and social science research, and clinical studies in pediatric pharmacology, infectious diseases, nutrition, endocrinology, trauma and critical illness, and other aspects of pediatric medicine. As described above, children infected with the SARS-CoV-2 virus are vulnerable to serious complications like MIS-C. NICHDs longstanding expertise in pediatric critical care and pediatric pharmacology has positioned the Institute to lead efforts to accelerate understanding of how COVID-19 affects children. Additional funds in the FY 2022 budget request will facilitate expansion of these efforts. Moreover, the COVID-19 pandemic affects many aspects of child health and development for children who remain uninfected. One of the greatest upheavals caused by the COVID-19 pandemic was the sudden shutdown of elementary, middle, and high schools to prevent the spread of the virus. Across the country, as many as three-quarters of large school districts were employing a fully-online learning model over some period. The move to online learning raised concerns about access to computers and the internet, potential increases in food insecurity for children who received free or reduced-price lunches, changes in physical activity, and lack of social interactions with peers. Suspension of classroom time disproportionately affects children with intellectual and developmental disabilities, who often require special educational services, increased teacher-student ratios, and specialized interventions, many of which need to be administered in person by skilled professionals. Beyond educational changes, children have been affected by pandemic-related changes in family and social interaction (e.g., less time with peers and grandparents), nutrition, and other changes. NICHD-supported researchers are assessing the impact of these changes on child development. For example, one group of scientists is researching the impact of prolonged school closures from COVID-19 on health, nutrition and weight of low-income children, and determining the effects of emergency food programs. NICHDs basic research portfolio on developmental biology has led to a better understanding of normal embryonic development, as well as mechanisms that underlie causes of structural and functional birth defects. For example, scientists have long suggested that neural tube defects like spina bifida can be associated with multiple developmental signaling pathways, genetically controlled processes in cell interactions that lead to organ formation. However, mutations in such pathways have been identified in few cases of neural tube defects, leaving the underlying causes unclear. Scientists recently identified eight rare genetic variants associated with spina bifida and are exploring ways to enhance the functions that are critical for normal neural tube closure. Pediatric clinical researchers recognize that children are not small adults often, children react differently than adults do to both disease and to treatment. For example, childrens growing bodies and changing metabolism affect how the body processes and reacts to medications. Ongoing activities under the Best Pharmaceuticals Act for Children (BPCA) include identifying off-patent drugs in need of further study of dosing, safety, and efficacy for pediatric indications, prioritizing needs in pediatric therapeutics, and sponsoring clinical studies of prioritized drugs, with a goal of the U.S. Food and Drug Administration (FDA) labeling for use in children. Recent FDA label changes supported by this research provide clinicians with evidence-based prescribing information on the antibiotics doxycycline and clindamycin to treat serious infections in children. The NICHD-supported Pediatric Trials Network (PTN) quickly began collecting data on COVID-19 drugs that clinicians at approximately 40 PTN sites are using to treat infants, children, and adolescents, including a group of children with Down syndrome. Intellectual and Developmental Disabilities: Intellectual and developmental disabilities (IDDs) were once thought to be permanent and untreatable, but new science discoveries have challenged this belief, inspiring renewed efforts to improve the lives of individuals with IDDs. NICHDs program on IDDs supports research and research training aimed at preventing and ameliorating both common and rare disorders, such as Down syndrome (DS), Fragile X syndrome (FXS), Rett syndrome, and muscular dystrophy; inborn errors of metabolism; autism spectrum disorders (ASD); congenital conditions currently or potentially detectable through newborn screening; and IDDs that have no identified cause or are not associated with a specific syndrome. NICHDs IDD portfolio includes a broad array of investigator-initiated research and also incorporates key programs that support larger-scale innovative projects. For example, the trans-NIH Autism Centers of Excellence supports large-scale multidisciplinary studies on ASDs, with the goal of determining the disorders' causes and potential treatments. The Centers for Collaborative Research on Fragile X will study FMR1-associated conditions, as well as the FMR1 gene, the role of the gene in development and progression of these conditions, and other aspects of the NIH Strategic Plan for Research on FMR1-Associated Conditions. NICHDs Eunice Kennedy Shriver Intellectual and Developmental Disabilities Research Centers offer a wide range of research services to scientists, including informatics and biostatistics; genomic, proteomic, and metabolomics facilities; cellular neuroimaging and optogenetic services; neuroimaging; and animal and human behavioral testing. The INCLUDE program, to be transferred from the NIH OD to NICHD, is designed to support targeted, high-risk, high-reward basic science and clinical studies to address the needs of individuals with DS. In FY 2022, INCLUDE will continue to support promising research and will update the INCLUDE Research Plan, integrating it with the NIH Research Plan on Down Syndrome (for release in 2021), signifying INCLUDEs important role in continuing a trans-NIH approach to DS. A priority for NICHD is advancing the inclusion of individuals with IDDs in clinical research from which they typically are excluded, even though their developmental disability may co-exist with cardiovascular, metabolic, and other disorders and health risks of the general population. For example, a recent NICHD grant supports research on the most effective way to optimize weekly COVID-19 testing of students with IDDs and staff. Prompted by challenges in recruiting an adequate research cohort of infants and toddlers with tuberous sclerosis complex (TSC), researchers developed a remote model for research participation. A rare, multi-system genetic disease, TSC affects the central nervous system, resulting in combinations of symptoms including ASD, seizures, impaired intellectual development, behavioral issues, and physical symptoms. Working with TSC childrens caregivers, researchers modified their experimental intervention so that caregivers could provide the intervention to children at home, alongside weekly videoconferences with researchers. Within a year, study enrollment increased tenfold and the cohort of affected infants was more diverse and clinically representative. Through the INCLUDE program and NICHDs Down Syndrome Registry (DS-Connect), expanded opportunities for individuals with Down syndrome to participate in research are now available. Lessons from the success of these programs can be applied to other IDD conditions. Demography and Behavior: The program in demography and behavior incorporates NICHD's strong portfolio on behavioral and social influences on health. For example, one NICHD-funded study assessed whether stricter state standards for school nutritional programs were associated with improved eating habits and obesity in more than 2,000 adolescents. Teens in states with strong farm-to-school laws to increase the amount of fresh produce in schools consumed more whole fruits, fewer snacks, and less soda than those in states with weak or no such laws. A key priority for child development and behavior research at the NICHD is to investigate the impact of the digital age on child development. When researchers studied children's screen time behavior at one to three years of age and at eight years of age, the scientists found that the amount of screen time greatly exceeded levels recommended by the American Academy of Pediatrics. The research results also showed that patterns of screen time behavior developed at early ages, often as early as infancy. Over 85 percent of the children in the study had higher screen use than recommended for their age, and the average time the children spent in front of screens increased as they grew, from nearly 1 hour per day at 12 months to nearly 2 hours a day at 3 years. This study was conducted prior to the COVID-19 pandemic, and child use of digital media has increased significantly during the past year. NICHD also supports behavioral research related to reproductive health. For example, in response to Delaware reporting the highest rate of unintended pregnancies in the United States, NICHD-funded researchers assessed the impact of a public-private partnership initiative to increase women's use of contraceptives. The program was designed to ensure free, same-day access for all women to all contraceptive options and address provider inexperience in inserting and removing long-acting reversible contraceptives. The program was associated with a 40 percent increase in the use of recommended, long-acting contraception. Rehabilitation: The NICHD's National Center for Medical Rehabilitation Research (NCMRR) fosters research and research training to enhance the health, productivity, independence, and quality of life of people with physical disabilities. With its leadership role in trans-NIH and broader medical rehabilitation research collaborations, NCMRR takes a collaborative approach to advance a broad range of research and research training, including efforts to understand the underlying biology of injury and disability and the body's own mechanisms of recovery and adaptation. Bioelectronic devices that can modulate nervous system functioning have shown promise in treating neurological disorders. However, the use of these devices in children has been limited, because of the need to adapt devices as children grow. Recently, NCMRR-supported scientists designed and implanted a morphing bioelectronic device, MorphE, under the sciatic nerve of experimental rats in their most rapid period of growth, adolescence. A series of tests indicated that MorphE was capable of actively adapting to the animals' tissue growth. Further evaluation over longer duration of implantation of the new technology could pave the way to better efficacy and reduced complications of implantable bioelectronic devices for young patients. Through basic, translational, and clinical research, NCMRR aims to foster development of scientific knowledge needed to create and refine real-world interventions. The Medical Rehabilitation Research Resource (MR3) Network is funded through NCMRR with support from NICHD and five other NIH ICs. The MR3 Network builds research infrastructure in medical rehabilitation by providing researchers with access to expertise, technologies, and resources to foster clinical and translational research in medical rehabilitation. The network focuses on several key areas, including pediatric rehabilitation, technology to improve real-world outcomes, regenerative rehabilitation promoting tissue engineering and function, stimulation of nerve activity to restore function and relieve pain, and translational/dissemination. 2021 Directors Overview On January 20, 2020 the first U.S. case was diagnosed with coronavirus disease 2019 (COVID-19), and the disease swept swiftly across the country. In less than a year, over half a million Americans died. The biomedical research community mobilized rapidly in response to the pandemic. Within weeks, scientists developed new protocols to analyze clinical data and pivoted existing experiments to contribute to the growing understanding of how the severe acute respiratory syndrome coronavirus 2 (SARS-CoV-2) works and how best to slow its spread. The biomedical research infrastructure, built steadily over many years, facilitated this extraordinary response. Research networks, registries, data analysis methods, scientific collaborations, and a deep knowledge base in basic and clinical sciences are employed to meet this public health crisis. This robust infrastructure also supports the continuing research response to other longstanding and persistent public health issues. The Eunice Kennedy Shriver National Institute of Child Health and Human Development (NICHD) is the leading Federal agency for biomedical research focused on the health needs of women, children, and individuals with disabilities.

NICHD's mission is to lead research and training to understand human development, improve reproductive health, enhance the lives of children and adolescents, and optimize abilities for all. NICHD's expertise and research infrastructure help to ensure that children, pregnant women, and people with disabilities are fully included in the rapid response to public health emergencies. NICHD is using its clinical network infrastructure to rapidly initiate research projects to respond to the COVID-19 crisis. Scientists at NICHD's long-standing Maternal-Fetal Medicine Units (MFMU) Network, established to support clinical trials in maternal-fetal medicine and obstetrics, are analyzing the medical records of up to 24,500 women to assess pregnancy outcomes related to COVID-19. Results indicate that pregnant women who were severely ill with COVID-19 had a higher incidence of cesarean delivery, postpartum hemorrhage, preeclampsia, and preterm birth. Network scientists also found that transmission of SARS-CoV-2 from mother to child was rare, with one percent of newborns testing positive for the virus.² At eight sites within the NICHD-funded Global Network for Womens and Childrens Health Research, researchers developed a study to estimate the prevalence of SARS-CoV-2 infection during pregnancy. Using antibody testing at delivery, the scientists will compare the maternal, fetal, and neonatal outcomes of infected women to those of non-infected women. NICHD's Perinatology Research Branch is studying the effects of COVID-19 on pregnant women who give birth at the Detroit Medical Center. They showed that placental cells lack the cellular receptor that is necessary for SARS-CoV-2 to enter a cell, which may explain why there are few cases of pregnant women transmitting COVID-19 to their fetuses. We do not yet fully understand how COVID-19 affects children. For some children, exposure to the SARS-CoV-2 virus leads to Multisystem Inflammatory Syndrome in Children (MIS-C), a severe and sometimes fatal inflammation of organs and tissues. NICHD and two other National Institutes of Health (NIH) Institute partners are supporting the Collaboration to Assess Risk and Identify loNG-term outcomes for Children with COVID (CARING for Children with COVID), which will assess both short- and long-term effects of MIS-C and other severe illness related to COVID-19 in children, including cardiovascular and neurodevelopmental complications. In addition, with support through NIH's Rapid Acceleration of Diagnostics Radical (RADxSM-rad) initiative, research studies are underway to identify predictive biomarkers to indicate which children may be at risk for later developing MIS-C. At the outset of the pandemic, researchers in NICHD's Pediatric Trials Network (PTN) (supported through the Best Pharmaceuticals for Children Act) quickly began researching the dosing and safety of drugs being used to treat children with COVID-19. Because many of these drugs were never previously tested in children, PTN investigators are collecting information on side effects and patient outcomes, as well as analyzing blood samples from routine medical procedures to understand how children of all ages metabolize these medications. The budget request includes funds for research on MIS-C and the spectrum of SARS-CoV-2 risks in children, which could augment current studies to enable increased enrollment, long-term follow up, and streamlined data sharing. NICHD is working through the NIH-wide RADxSM-Underserved Populations (RADxSM-UP) initiative to understand the factors associated with disparities in COVID-19 morbidity and mortality. These efforts focus in part on increasing access to and use of testing among underserved populations, including individuals with intellectual and developmental disabilities (IDD). Funding from RADx-UP is supporting a team of NICHD researchers to help determine best practices for prevention, testing, and contact tracing for individuals with IDD in regional school systems. In addition, NICHD is leading a program through RADx-UP that will support researchers to develop and evaluate COVID-19 diagnostic testing approaches for children and staff in underserved and vulnerable communities, facilitating a safe return to in-person schooling. In April 2021, $33 million in awards were made for this program, with additional awards anticipated in Summer 2021. While the COVID-19 crisis moved to the forefront of scientific research efforts, pregnant women, children, and people with disabilities continue to face other persistent public health concerns. Maternal mortality is higher in the United States than in other industrialized nations, and many of these deaths may be preventable. Maternal death and severe maternal morbidity are significantly more likely to occur among women in racial and ethnic minority groups and women in rural areas. NICHD is co-leading a new trans-NIH initiative entitled Implementing a Maternal health and PRegnancy Outcomes Vision for Everyone (IMPROVE). IMPROVE is using an integrated approach to understand biological, behavioral, sociocultural, and structural factors contributing to maternal morbidity and mortality by building an evidence base for improved care and outcomes in specific populations and regions of the country. In September 2020, NIH made awards to institutions across the country to carry out the first phase of this multipronged, innovative research initiative. The Presidents Budget requests additional funds to expand the IMPROVE initiative to support research to mitigate preventable maternal mortality, decrease severe maternal morbidity, and promote health equity. Methodological innovation by scientists at the NICHD-funded Population Health Centers yielded early warnings of rising U.S. maternal mortality, including disparate impacts among some groups. Researchers mobilized NICHDs clinical research infrastructure to hasten the development of strategies to prevent placental complications, preeclampsia, thromboembolism, postpartum hemorrhage, and other serious conditions. For example, NICHDs MFMU network is conducting a clinical trial of tranexamic acid, a drug used against hemorrhage in trauma and high-risk surgery patients, to prevent hemorrhage after cesarean delivery. In addition, NICHDs new Maternal and Pediatric Precision in Therapeutics (MPRINT) Hub program will augment the research infrastructure by providing expertise, basic science research, and technology platforms for scientists conducting pharmacology research in pregnant women, lactating women, and children. NICHD-funded scientists are examining how key features of the context in which people live such as income inequality, community violence, and geographic distribution increase health risks and contribute to health disparities. One team of NICHD-supported researchers showed that a quality improvement initiative at 99 California hospitals was effective in reducing deaths (or complications) from obstetric hemorrhage by implementing evidence-based clinical practice recommendations. NICHD-funded researchers are also looking at the consequences of racial segregation and inequality in neonatal intensive care units. A recent cohort study of very low-birthweight and very preterm infants found that Neonatal Intensive Care Units (NICUs) (even in the same geographic area) varied widely in the proportions of minority families they served. Moreover, compared with White infants, Black infants were concentrated at NICUs with poorer health outcomes. NICHD is also supporting several efforts to increase the diversity of the extramural workforce in the research community and to increase the scientific evidence needed to address health disparities. The Institute continues to support young scientists via the F31 predoctoral diversity fellowship and the diversity supplement program. NICHD routinely monitors the outcomes of diversity supplement recipients (e.g., subsequent application and receipt of NIH grants). The Institute uses a wide range of communications platforms to highlight the diversity of researchers and actively participates in outreach efforts to engage with diverse audiences. 2022 NICHDs and NIHs foundational research is critical to understanding the typical neurocognitive, psychological, behavioral, physical, and social-emotional development of infants, children, and adolescents. Understanding typical development is essential to describing the differences seen in children with intellectual, developmental, and physical disabilities. For example, the NIH Toolbox Cognition Battery, a group of brief memory, executive function, processing speed, and language tests, was designed for use in the general population. Researchers tested this cognitive portion of the NIH Toolbox in children with intellectual disability and found that all the tests were feasible and reliable for a high percentage of individuals with intellectual disability, although adaptation may be required for younger children and children with lower cognitive functioning. NICHD also co-leads the trans-NIH Investigation of Co-occurring conditions across the Lifespan to Understand Down syndrome (INCLUDE) Project. In FY 2022, management of the INCLUDE program will move from the Office of the NIH Director to NICHD, with continued commitment to addressing critical health and quality-of-life needs for individuals with Down syndrome. NICHD is poised to respond effectively to public health challenges because of previous investments and scientific advances in basic, translational, and clinical sciences. For example, newborn screening tests can detect potentially dangerous disorders soon after a baby is born. Advances in newborn screening technology, such as the application of rapid whole-genome sequencing, automated phenotyping and interpretation, and data analysis with machine learning have allowed for faster diagnosis, improved accuracy, and reduced false positives. Recently, NICHD has supported research leading to new newborn screening tests and devices for spinal muscular atrophy, cystic fibrosis, Niemann-Pick Type C, Prader-Willi Syndrome, and lysosomal disorders. Understanding the effects of environmental exposures on child health and development is also consistent with NICHDs mission and is the primary aim of NIHs Environmental Influences on Child Health Outcomes (ECHO) program. In FY 2022, the ECHO program will move from the Office of the NIH Director to NICHD. ECHO will continue to focus on using pediatric cohort studies to discover developmental origins of health and disease and identify the effects of environmental exposures on child health. ECHO also will maintain support for the IDeA States Pediatric Clinical Trials Network (ISPCTN), which includes children and infants from rural areas in research while building pediatric research capacity through professional development and infrastructure support. The ECHO ISPCTN and NICHD currently collaborate on two Advancing Clinical Trials in Neonatal Opioid Withdrawal (ACT NOW) trials as part of NIHs Helping to End Addiction Long-term (HEAL) InitiativeSM. These trials will build evidence for best practices to care for newborns with opioid withdrawal syndrome. ISPCTN also supports trials to understand vitamin D pharmacokinetics and telehealth treatment of children with obesity. Although NICHD is making significant strides to advance its mission, the potential for additional advances and the need for future investments remains enormous. Over the past year, the Institute worked diligently to implement the NICHD Strategic Plan that was released in September 2019. Over the next five years, NICHD plans to expand efforts to develop new tools for studying embryonic development and structural birth defects. The Institute will lead efforts to delineate the many factors underlying gynecologic and andrologic disorders. NICHD is committed to advancing understanding of typical and atypical child development in contemporary cohorts, with an emphasis on identifying sensitive time periods when prevention and treatment strategies will have the greatest impact. NICHD will also lead efforts to develop, test, and evaluate new and existing therapeutics and devices to find safe and effective solutions to meet the unique needs of pregnant and lactating women, children, and people with intellectual and physical disabilities.

TYPES OF ASSISTANCE:

Project Grants, Project Grants (Capacity Building and Complaint Processing, Training)

USES AND USE RESTRICTIONS:

Research grants are intended to support the direct costs of a project in accordance with an approved budget, plus an appropriate amount for facilities and administrative costs. Grantees must agree to administer the grant in accordance with the regulations and policies governing the research grants program of the Public Health Service. National Research Service Awards (NRSA) (Individual) are made directly to approved applicants for research training in specified biomedical shortage areas. In addition, National Research Service Awards (Institutional) may be made to institutions to enable them to make NRSA's to individuals selected by them. Regulations are published in the Code of Federal Regulations and 42 CFR, Part 66. SBIR Phase I grants (of approximately 6 months' duration) are to establish the technical merit and feasibility of a proposed research effort that may lead to a commercial product or process. SBIR Phase II grants are for the continuation of the research initiated in Phase I and that are likely to result in commercial products or processes. Only Phase I awardees are eligible to apply for Phase II support. STTR Phase I grants (normally of 1- year duration) are to determine the scientific, technical, and commercial merit and feasibility of the proposed cooperative effort that has potential for commercial application. Phase II funding is based on results of research initiated in Phase I and scientific and technical merit and commercial potential on Phase II application.

Individual awards require reports upon award expiration to determine compliance with the service and payback provisions.

Audits:

In accordance with the provisions of 2 CFR 200, Subpart F - Audit Requirements, nonfederal entities that expend financial assistance of $750,000 or more in Federal awards will have a single or a program-specific audit conducted for that year. Non-Federal entities that expend less than $750,000 a year in Federal awards are exempt from Federal audit requirements for that year, except as noted in 2 CFR 200.503 Records must be available for review or audit by appropriate officials of the Federal agency, pass-through entity, and Government Accountability Office (GAO). In accordance with 45 Code of Federal Regulations, Part 74.26, for-profit (commercial) organizations are subject to audit requirements for a non-Federal audit if, during its fiscal year, it expended $500,000 or more under HHS awards and at least one award is a HHS grant or subgrant. The regulation incorporates the thresholds and deadlines of OMB Circular No. A-133, but provides for profit organizations with two options for the type of audit that will satisfy the audit requirement: 1. a financial related audit of the HHS awards in accordance with Government Auditing Standards, or 2. an audit that meets the requirements of OMB Circular No. A-133. In accordance with NIH grants policy, Foreign grantees are subject to the same audit requirements as for-profit (commercial) organizations.

Records:

Grantees generally must retain financial and programmatic records, supporting documents, statistical records, and all other records that are required by the terms of a grant, or may reasonably be considered pertinent to a grant, for a period of 3 years from the date the annual FSR is submitted. For awards under SNAP (other than those to foreign organizations and Federal institutions), the 3-year retention period will be calculated from the date the FSR for the entire competitive segment is submitted. Those grantees must retain the records pertinent to the entire competitive segment for 3 years from the date the FSR is submitted to NIH. Foreign organizations and Federal institutions must retain records for 3 years from the date of submission of the annual FSR to NIH. See 45 CFR 74.53 and 92.42 for exceptions and qualifications to the 3-year retention requirement (e.g., if any litigation, claim, financial management review, or audit is started before the expiration of the 3-year period, the records must be retained until all litigation, claims, or audit findings involving the records have been resolved and final action taken). Those sections also specify the retention period for other types of grant-related records, including F&A cost proposals and property records. See 45 CFR 74.48 and 92.36 for record retention and access requirements for contracts under grants. In accordance with 45 Code of Federal Regulations, Part 74.53(e), the HHS Inspector General, the U.S. Comptroller General, or any of their duly authorized representatives have the right of timely and unrestricted access to any books, documents, papers, or other records of recipients that are pertinent to awards in order to make audits, examinations, excerpts, transcripts, and copies of such documents. This right also includes timely and reasonable access to a recipients personnel records for the purpose of interview and discussion related to such documents. The rights of access are not limited to the required retention period, but shall last as long as records are retained.

The Small Business Innovation grants: SBIRs can be awarded only to domestic small businesses (entities that are independently owned and operated for profit, are not dominant in the field in which research is proposed, and have not more than 500 employees). Primary employment (more than one-half time) of the Principal Investigator must be with the small business at the time of the award and during the conduct of the proposed project. The research during both Phase I and Phase II must be performed in the U.S. or its possessions. STTR grants can be awarded only to domestic small business concerns (entities that are independently owned and operated for profit, are not dominant in the field in which research is proposed and have no more than 500 employees) which "partner" with a research institution in cooperative research and development. At least 40 percent of the project is to be performed by the small business concern and at least 30 percent by the research institution. In both Phase I and Phase II, the research must be performed in the U.S. and its possessions. Individuals applying for the NIH Loan Repayment Programs must be engaged in patient oriented research and be trained in a medical subspecialty as defined under Section 206 of Public Law 106-505. CRITERIA FOR SELECTING PROPOSALS:

The major elements in the initial scientific and technical review of most applications include an assessment of significance, approach, innovation, investigator training and experience, and the scientific environment. In addition to these criteria, in accordance with NIH policy, all applications will also be reviewed with respect to the following: the adequacy of plans to include both genders, minorities, and their subgroups as appropriate for the scientific goals of the research; the reasonableness of the proposed budget and duration in relation to the proposed research; and, the adequacy of the proposed protection for humans, animals or the environment, to the extent they may be adversely affected by the project proposed in the application. A second level review of the programmatic relevance of most applications is provided by the National Advisory Eye Council. The following criteria will be used in considering the scientific and technical merit of SBIR/STTR Phase I grant applications: (1) The soundness and technical merit of the proposed approach; (2) the qualifications of the proposed principal investigator, supporting staff, and consultants; (3) the technological innovation of the proposed research; (4) the potential of the proposed research for commercial application; (5) the appropriateness of the budget requested; (6) the environment; and (7) where applicable, the adequacy of assurances detailing the proposed means for (a) safeguarding human or animal subjects, and/or (b) protecting against or minimizing any adverse effect on the environment. Phase II grant applications will be reviewed based upon the following criteria: (1) The degree to which the Phase I objectives were met and feasibility demonstrated; (2) the scientific and technical merit of the proposed approach for achieving the Phase II objectives; (3) the qualifications of the proposed principal investigator, supporting staff, and consultants; (4) the technological innovation, originality, or societal importance of the proposed research; (5) the potential of the proposed research for commercial application; (6) the reasonableness of the budget requested for the work proposed; (7) the adequacy and suitability of the facilities and research environment; and (8) where applicable, the adequacy of assurances detailing the proposed means for (a) safeguarding

93.870 Maternal, Infant and Early Childhood Home Visiting Grant

MIECHV Program,

FEDERAL AGENCY:

HEALTH RESOURCES AND SERVICES ADMINISTRATION, HEALTH AND HUMAN SERVICES, DEPARTMENT OF

AUTHORIZATION:

Social Security Act, Title V, 511(c) (42 U.S.C. 711(c)), as amended by the Bipartisan Budget Act of 2018 (P.L.115-123), Title VI, Subtitle A.,

OBJECTIVES:

The goals of the Maternal, Infant, and Early Childhood Home Visiting Program (MIECHV Program) are to: (1) strengthen and improve the programs and activities carried out under Title V of the Social Security Act; (2) improve coordination of services for at-risk communities; and (3) identify and provide comprehensive services to improve outcomes for eligible families who reside in at-risk communities. The MIECHV Program was created to support voluntary, evidence-based home visiting services for at-risk pregnant women and parents with young children up to kindergarten entry. The MIECHV Program builds upon decades of scientific research that shows home visits conducted by a nurse, social worker, early childhood educator, or other trained professional during pregnancy and in the first years of a child's life improves the lives of children and families. Home visiting helps prevent child abuse and neglect, supports positive parenting, improves maternal and child health, and promotes child development and school readiness. The investment provides coordinated and comprehensive high-quality voluntary, evidence-based home visiting services with a national reach. The MIECHV Program plays a crucial role in building high-quality, comprehensive statewide early childhood systems to support pregnant women, parents and caregivers, and children from birth to kindergarten entry and ultimately, to improve health and development outcomes.

TYPES OF ASSISTANCE:

Cooperative Agreements, Formula Grants

USES AND USE RESTRICTIONS:

Authorizing legislation reserves the majority of funding for the delivery of services through implementation of one or more evidence-based home visiting service delivery models that meet the HHS criteria of evidence of effectiveness with fidelity to the model selected. Per legislation, recipients may expend no more than 25% of the grant awarded for a fiscal year for conducting and evaluating a program using a service delivery model that qualifies as a promising approach. Recipients must not submit an application with a budget request exceeding the recipient's specified total grant award ceiling. Awards to support projects will be contingent upon Congressional appropriation, satisfactory progress in meeting the projects objectives, and a determination that continued funding would be in the best interest of the Federal Government. No more than 10% of the award amount may be spent on expenditures related to administering the grant. Section 511(i)(2)(C) of the Social Security Act requires that section 504(d) (relating to a limitation on administrative expenditures) shall apply to a grant made under this section to the same extent and in the same manner as such provisions apply to allotments made under section 502(c). No more than 25% of the MIECHV grant award may be expended to support recipient-level infrastructure expenditures. Funds made available to recipients under this guidance must be used to support the delivery of home visiting services under the MIECHV Program. Recipients may coordinate with and refer to direct medical, dental, mental health or legal services and providers covered by other sources of funding, for which non-MIECHV sources of funding may provide reimbursement. The MIECHV Program generally does not fund the delivery or costs of direct medical, dental, mental health, or legal services; however, some limited direct services may be provided (typically by the home visitor) to the extent required in fidelity to an evidence-based model approved for use under the MIECHV Program. Section 511(j)(2)(B) also provides a 3 percent set-aside in funding for research and evaluation activities to be conducted under Section 511 (h)(3). Since FY 2018, two cooperative agreement programs are funded under this authority through FY 2022, including the Home Visiting Research and Development Platform (HV R&D Platform) and the Home Visiting Collaborative Improvement and Innovation Network (HV CoIIN). The HV R&D Platform supports a transdisciplinary research network for scientific collaboration and infrastructure building for innovative home visiting research. The HV CoIIN facilitates the delivery and accelerates the improvement of home visiting and early childhood services provided by MIECHV Program recipients. The Bipartisan Budget Act of 2018 provides authority for recipients to use a MIECHV grant for a pay for outcomes initiative. As a part of a Pay for Outcomes initiative, recipients are able to use up to 25 percent of the grant for outcomes or success payments related to a pay for outcomes initiative that will not result in a reduction of funding for home visiting services. Funds made available for this specific purpose will be available for expenditure for not more than 10 years after the funds are made available.

Applicant Eligibility:

U.S. Territories and possessions (includes institutions of higher education and hospitals); State; Eligible entities include those currently funded under the MIECHV Program: 47 states, 3 nonprofit organizations serving Florida, North Dakota, and Wyoming, and 6 territories and jurisdictions serving District of Columbia, Puerto Rico, Guam, the U.S. Virgin Islands, the Commonwealth of the Northern Mariana Islands, and American Samoa. Beneficiary Eligibility:

Public nonprofit institution/organization; As directed in statute, awardees must give priority in providing services under the MIECHV program to the following: Eligible families who reside in communities in need of such services, as identified in the statewide needs assessment required under subsection 511(b)(1)(A); Low-income eligible families; Eligible families with pregnant women who have not attained age 21; Eligible families that have a history of child abuse or neglect or have had interactions with child welfare services; Eligible families that have a history of substance abuse or need substance abuse treatment; Eligible families that have users of tobacco products in the home; Eligible families that are or have children with low student achievement; Eligible families with children with developmental delays or disabilities; and Eligible families that include individuals who are serving or formerly served in the Armed Forces, including such families that have members of the Armed Forces who have had multiple deployments outside of the United States.

Formula and Matching Requirements:

Statutory Formula: Title , Chapter , Part , Subpart ,Public Law .Matching requirements are not applicable to this assistance listing. This program has MOE requirements, see funding agency for further details. Additional Information: This program has maintenance of effort (MOE) requirements. Per Social Security Act, Title V, 511(f), awardees must supplement, and not supplant, funds from other sources for early childhood home visitation programs or initiatives. Awardees may demonstrate compliance by maintaining non-federal funding (state general funds) for evidence-based home visiting and home visiting initiatives, expended for activities proposed in application submissions, at a level which is not less than expenditures for such activities as of the most recently completed state fiscal year. Nonprofit awardees must agree to take all steps reasonably available for this purpose and should provide appropriate documentation from the state supporting its accomplishment of the maintenance of effort/non-supplantation requirement. The baseline for maintenance of effort is the state fiscal year prior to the fiscal year during which an application is submitted. For purposes of maintenance of effort/non-supplantation in the MIECHV Program, home visiting is defined as an evidence-based program implemented in response to findings from the most current statewide needs assessment that includes home visiting as a primary service delivery strategy, and is offered on a voluntary basis to pregnant women or caregivers of children birth to kindergarten entry. Awardees may NOT consider any Title V funding used for evidence-based home visiting as part of the maintenance of effort demonstration..

Length and Time Phasing of Assistance:

Funds awarded to a recipient for a federal fiscal year shall remain available for expenditure by the recipient through the end of the second succeeding federal fiscal year after award. FY 2020 funds must be obligated prior to September 30, 2022, and liquidated by December 31, 2022. See the following for information on how assistance is awarded/released: Applicant organizations must obtain a valid DUNS number and provide that number in their application. Each applicant must also register with the System for Award Management (SAM) and continue to maintain active SAM registration with current information at all times during which it has an active federal award or an application or plan under consideration by an agency (unless the applicant is an individual or federal agency that is exempted from those requirements under 2 CFR 25.110(b) or (c), or has an exception approved by the agency under 2 CFR 25.110(d)).HRSA may not make an award to an applicant until the applicant has complied with all applicable DUNS and SAM requirements and, if an applicant has not fully complied with the requirements by the time HRSA is ready to make an award, HRSA may determine that the applicant is not qualified to receive an award and use that determination as the basis for making an award to another applicant. ADMINISTRATION FOR CHILDREN AND FAMILIES, HEALTH AND HUMAN SERVICES, DEPARTMENT OF

AUTHORIZATION:

The Social Security Act, Title V, 511 (42 U.S.C. 711(j)(1)(H)), as funded and extended by the Bipartisan Budget Act of 2018 (Pub.L. 115-123), , 2021 American Rescue Plan Act (ARPA), , Public Law 117-2

OBJECTIVES:

The Tribal Maternal, Infant, and Early Childhood Home Visiting Program (Tribal MIECHV) is administered by The Administration for Children and Families (ACF) Office of Child Care (OCC), in collaboration with the Health Resources and Services Administration (HRSA). Assistance is available to eligible Tribes (or consortia of Tribes), Tribal Organizations, and Urban Indian Organizations, to strengthen and improve maternal and child health programs, improve service coordination for at-risk communities, and identify and provide comprehensive evidence-based home visiting services to families who reside in at-risk communities. The goals of the Tribal MIECHV program are to: support the development of happy, healthy, and successful American Indian and Alaska Native (AIAN) children and families through a coordinated home visiting strategy that addresses critical maternal and child health, development, early learning, family support, and child abuse and neglect prevention needs; implement high-quality, culturally-relevant, evidence-based home visiting programs in AIAN communities; expand the evidence base around home visiting interventions with Native populations; and support and strengthen cooperation and coordination and promote linkages among various early childhood programs, resulting in coordinated, comprehensive early childhood systems. The ACF, Office of Planning, Research and Evaluation (OPRE), is administering Tribal Research Center for Early Childhood Development and Systems (TRECS). The TRECS will provide leadership and collaboration to promote excellence in community-based participatory research and evaluation of ACF early childhood initiatives that serve tribal communities. The 2021 American Rescue Plan Act (ARPA) (P.L. 117-2)

dedicated funds for entities that are conducting a MIECHV program as of the date of enactment of the legislation and can be used for provision of home visiting services (including virtual visits), and training staff in conducting virtual home visits, and increase the number of at-risk families receiving home visiting services during the pandemic and ensure that current and additional families are able to obtain basic necessities.

93.876 Antimicrobial Resistance Surveillance in Retail Food Specimens

NARMS Retail Food Surveillance,

FEDERAL AGENCY:

FOOD AND DRUG ADMINISTRATION, HEALTH AND HUMAN SERVICES, DEPARTMENT OF

AUTHORIZATION:

Section 1702(a) [42 U.S.C. 300u-1(a)] and Section 1703(a) and (c) [42 U.S.C. 300u-2(a) and (c)] of the Public Health Service Act, as amended,

OBJECTIVES:

The National Antimicrobial Resistance Monitoring System (NARMS) is a U.S. public health surveillance system that tracks antibiotic resistance in enteric bacteria from humans, retail meats, and food animals. When antimicrobial drugs are used in food-producing animals, they can enrich for populations of resistant strains that reach humans via the food supply. The chief goal of the NARMS retail food surveillance program is to improve the detection of and surveillance for antimicrobial resistance among enteric bacteria in raw retail food commodities, particularly fresh retail meat. The NARMS program is looking to collaborate with institutions or organizations to enhance and strengthen antibiotic resistance surveillance in retail food specimens. Partnering with the NARMS retail food surveillance program will enable the collection of critical data for FDA policy and regulatory actions including but not limited to pre-approval safety evaluation of new animal antibiotics, determining parameters for the antimicrobial use in veterinary medicine, and the ability to provide information to promote interventions to reduce resistance among foodborne bacteria. This collaboration will address NARMS programmatic needs to implement effective surveillance and response for antibiotic resistance as recommended in the National Strategy for Combating Antibiotic-Resistant Bacteria (CARB).

TYPES OF ASSISTANCE:

Cooperative Agreements

USES AND USE RESTRICTIONS:

The assistance can be applied to supplies, equipment, personnel, job training, and/or travel needed to conduct retail food surveillance activities as defined in the cooperative agreement and referenced in the NARMS retail food surveillance protocol. Assistance can be applied to improving the way antibiotic resistance surveillance samples are collected and processed, improve microbiological testing standards, improve quality assurance practices, improve collaboration and coordination of surveillance activities with the FDA, improve the exchange of relevant and complete surveillance data with the FDA, improve the use of data to inform program and policy development, improve data for education on current and emerging hazards, improve awareness of antimicrobial resistance among the public, improve the identification of foodborne illness outbreaks and coordinate outbreak investigations with the FDA, improve the way surveillance data are collected and analyzed, and for conducting ad hoc pilot studies as needed for consensus definitions.

NATIONAL INSTITUTES OF HEALTH, HEALTH AND HUMAN SERVICES,
DEPARTMENT OF

AUTHORIZATION:

Public Health Service Act, Title IV, Part D, Subpart 2, Section 472-476, Public Health Service Act, Title III, Part A, Section 301

OBJECTIVES:

To meet a growing need for investigators trained in biomedical informatics research and data science by training qualified pre- and post-doctoral candidates; to conduct research in biomedical informatics, bioinformatics and related computer, information and data sciences; to facilitate management of electronic health records and clinical research data; to prepare scholarly works in biomedicine and health; to advance biocomputing and bioinformatics through participation in Federal initiatives relating to biomedical informatics, bioinformatics and biomedical computing; and to stimulate and foster scientific and technological innovation through cooperative research development carried out between small business concerns and research institutions, through Small Business Innovation Research (SBIR) and Small Business Technology Transfer (STTR) grants.

TYPES OF ASSISTANCE:

Project Grants

USES AND USE RESTRICTIONS:

RESEARCH GRANT PROGRAMS: Research Grants are available for fundamental and applied research in biomedical informatics and data science. Areas of research interest include: representation, organization and retrieval of biomedical and biological knowledge, data and images; enhancement of human intellectual capacities through virtual reality, dynamic modeling, artificial intelligence, and machine learning; medical decision-making; linguistic analyses for natural language processing and understanding; informatics topics relevant to public health, consumer information and disaster information management. Research Project Grants (R01) are available for rigorous scientific research studies and experiments. From time to time, NLM issues Requests for Applications and Notices of Special Interest for innovative informatics and data science research in special priority areas. Exploratory/Developmental Grants (R21) support early, conceptual work and feasibility tests. Other research grants include Informatics Conference Grants (R13) and several NIH-wide grant programs on high priority topics such as health literacy, behavioral research, health disparity, climate change, and detection of gene environment interactions for complex human diseases. Further information on research grants is available at <http://www.nlm.nih.gov/ep/Grants.html#research>. TRAINING GRANT PROGRAMS: NLM's University-based Biomedical Informatics Research Training Programs (T15) promote the training of talented individuals who seek research careers in biomedical informatics, translational bioinformatics, clinical research informatics, public health informatics and data science. A competition for these institution-based training grants is announced every five years. The most recent competition was held in 2016. University-based training support may be at the pre- or post-doctoral level. Training sites recruit and choose their trainees, and are expected to have well-established computing resources, strong informatics research and education programs, experienced faculty and staff committed to research in the field of biomedical informatics and/or biomedical computing, and available courses or experience in biomedical informatics, information science, and cognitive sciences. Institutional training grants provide trainee stipends, tuition and fees, travel, and certain institutional support costs. Further information on training grants is available at <http://www.nlm.nih.gov/ep/Grants.html#training>. CAREER DEVELOPMENT GRANT PROGRAMS: NLM offers NIH Pathway to Independence awards (K99/R00) that are reserved for investigators who are making the transition to their first research positions. These grants can last up to five years. They include a mentored period, followed by an unmentored period, and provide both salary and research support. Further information on career development grants is available at <http://www.nlm.nih.gov/ep/Grants.html#career>. DIVERSITY and RE-ENTRY SUPPLEMENTS: Research supplement awards are offered to promote diversity in health-related informatics and data science research, and to promote re-entry into informatics and data science careers. Diversity and re-entry awards are issued as supplements to existing research grants funded by NLM. RESOURCE GRANT PROGRAMS: NLM funds cooperative agreements (UG4) to support Regional Medical Libraries (RMLs) as an integral component of the Network of the National Library of Medicine (NNLM). The goal of the NNLM is to advance the progress of medicine and improve public health by providing U.S. health professionals with equal access to biomedical information, and to improve individuals access to information to enable them to make informed decisions about their health. The RMLs coordinate the operation of the network of libraries and other organizations that make up the NNLM. NLM Information Resource Grants to Reduce Health Disparities (G08) support implementation projects that bring useful, usable health information to health disparity populations and their health care providers. NLM offers Grants for Scholarly Works (G13) to support preparation of books in the history and philosophy of biomedicine, bioethics, and public policy areas of importance to health professionals and biomedical scientists. The purpose, requirements, funding periods and award limits vary for these grant programs and are described in the funding opportunity announcements (FOAs). Further information on resource grants is available at <http://www.nlm.nih.gov/ep/Grants.html#resource>. SMALL BUSINESS RESEARCH & DEVELOPMENT GRANT PROGRAMS: Small Business Innovation Research (SBIR) and Small Business Technology Transfer (STTR) grants are made to U.S. small businesses that seek to undertake informatics and data science research and development leading to commercialization. The STTR program requires a small business applicant organization to formally collaborate with a research institution in Phase I and Phase II. SBIR Phase I grants are to establish the technical merit and feasibility of a proposed research effort that may lead to a commercial product or process. Phase II grants are for the continuation of the research initiated in Phase I and that are likely to result in commercial products or processes. STTR Phase I grants are to determine the scientific, technical, and commercial merit and feasibility of the proposed cooperative effort that has potential for commercial application. Phase II funding is based on results of research initiated in Phase I, and scientific and technical merit and commercial potential of the proposed project in Phase II application. Further information on SBIR/STTR grants is available at <http://www.nlm.nih.gov/ep/Grants.html#small>.

Generally, electronic applications are accepted for Research & Training Grants, SBIR and STTR grants, Resource Grants as well as Fellowship awards. Electronic grant submission of the SF424 (R&R) form is via <http://www.grants.gov>. For instructions on submitting grants electronically, see <http://era.nih.gov/ElectronicReceipt/>. These programs are subject to the provisions of 45 CFR Part 75 as applicable. Updates on NLM application deadlines and links to available forms can also be found at <http://www.nlm.nih.gov/ep/>.

Award Procedure:

Research, training, career development and resource applications are evaluated for merit by a committee of scientific experts and for program relevance by the Board of Regents (BOR) of the National Library of Medicine (NLM). If favorably recommended, the applications are considered for funding. An award notice is prepared when it is determined that a grant is to be paid. All accepted SBIR/STTR applications are evaluated for scientific and technical merit by an appropriate scientific peer review panel and by Board of Regents (BOR). All applications receiving a priority score compete for available SBIR/STTR set-aside funds based on scientific and technical merit and commercial potential of the proposed research, program relevance, and portfolio balance among the areas of research.

Deadlines:

Contact the headquarters or regional location, as appropriate for application deadlines.

Range of Approval/Disapproval Time:

CRITERIA FOR SELECTING PROPOSALS:

The standard NIH review criteria, significance, investigator, innovation, approach and environment are used as the basis of merit review. Considerations for final award decisions include level of innovation, program priority, portfolio balance, and availability of funds. For NLM resource grants, review criteria include considerations as to relevance to program objectives, impact on the management and transmission of biomedical knowledge, institutional readiness and resources available to project, expertise of project director and key personnel, scientific or technical merit of project, sustainability of what is deployed, and appropriateness of budget. For Career awards, review criteria include issues pertaining to the suitability of the candidates and their career development plan, research plan, mentors/consultants/collaborators, as well as the environment and institutional commitment to the candidates. For Training awards, review criteria include evidence of soundness in the areas of: Training Program and Environment, Training Program Principal Investigator(s), Preceptors and Mentors, Trainees, and Training Record. Comparative priorities on the above criteria are based on collective judgment of peer reviewers. The following criteria are used in considering the scientific and technical merit of SBIR/STTR Phase I grant applications: (1) The soundness and technical merit of the proposed approach; (2) the qualifications of the proposed principal investigator, supporting staff, and consultants; (3) the scientific, technical, or technological innovation of the proposed research; (4) the potential of the proposed research for commercial application; (5) the appropriateness of the budget requested; (6) the adequacy and suitability of the facilities and research environment; and (7) where applicable, the adequacy of assurances detailing the proposed means for (a) safeguarding human or animal subjects, and/or (b) protecting against or minimizing any adverse effect on the environment. Phase II grant applications are reviewed based upon similar criteria, and on the degree to which the Phase I objectives were met and feasibility demonstrated.

The Health Insurance Enforcement and Consumer Protections grants was awarded in 2016 and provided a funding source to assist states in implementing and planning several of the federal market reforms and consumer protections under Part A of Title XXVII of the Public Health Service Act (PHS Act). OBJECTIVES:

The Delta Region Community Health Systems Development Program aims to enhance health care delivery in the Delta Region through intensive technical assistance to providers in select rural communities, including Critical Access Hospitals, small rural hospitals, Rural Health Clinics, and other healthcare organizations. The Delta States Rural Development Network Program funds organizations located in the eight Delta States, which include Alabama, Illinois, Kentucky, Tennessee, Arkansas, Louisiana, Mississippi and Missouri. Awardees in these areas aim to promote population health, through the planning, implementation, and the development of integrated health care networks. In addition, eligible entities participate in the networks to achieve efficiencies, expand access to care, as well as to coordinate, and improve the quality of essential health care services. The Delta Region Rural Health Workforce Training Program aims to address the ongoing need in healthcare facilities for trained administrative support or business operations professionals in rural communities through the development of Strategic Networks that support recruitment, formal training, certification, and placement of students. The Rural Health Network Development Program aims to support mature, integrated rural health care networks that have combined the functions of the entities participating in the network in order to address the health care needs of the targeted rural community. Awardees will combine the functions of the entities participating in the network to address the following statutory charges: (i) achieve efficiencies; (ii) expand access, coordinate, and improve the quality of essential health care services; and (iii) strengthen the rural health care system as a whole. The Rural Health Network Development Planning Program assists in the development of an integrated health care network, specifically for entities that do not have a history of formal collaborative efforts.

Health care networks can be an effective strategy to help smaller rural health care providers and health care service organizations align resources and strategies, achieve economies of scale and efficiency, and address challenges more effectively as a group than as single providers. The Rural Health Care Coordination Program aims to support rural health consortiums/networks aiming to achieving the overall goals of improving access, delivery, and quality of care through the application of care coordination strategies in rural communities. In order to achieve the goal of the Care Coordination Program, applicants are required to coordinate the health care delivery services in rural communities through the following four focus areas: Collaboration, Leadership and Workforce, Improved Outcomes, and Sustainability. The Rural Maternity and Obstetrics Management Strategies Program aims to improve access to and continuity of maternal and obstetrics care in rural communities. Rural Maternal Health Networks will develop and test strategies concerning rural regional approaches to risk appropriate care, a network approach to coordinating a continuum of care, leveraging telehealth and specialty care, and financial sustainability. Networks include rural or critical access hospitals, health centers (FQHC), Level III (Subspecialty Care) or Level IV (Regional Perinatal Health Care Centers) facilities, local social services (such as state Home Visiting and Healthy Start programs), and the state Medicaid agency, as partners. The Rural Health Care Services Outreach Program provides support to rural communities to expand and enhance the delivery of health care services through a strong consortium of partners. Outreach projects utilize evidence-based or promising practice models to implement innovative approaches that address community identified health needs, improve population health, demonstrate health outcomes and sustainability. For this time, the program also includes the Healthy Rural Hometown Initiative (HRHI) to address the underlying factors that are driving growing rural health disparities related to the five leading causes of avoidable death (heart disease, cancer, unintentional injury/substance use disorder, chronic lower respiratory disease, and stroke). The Rural Northern Border Region Planning Program assists in the planning and identifying of key rural health issues in the rural Northern Border Regional Commission (NBRC) service area. The grant program supports planning activities to identify key rural health issues, assess rural health challenges, and engage in strategic planning activities to inform rural health plans across the northern border region. The ultimate goal of the program is to help underserved rural communities identify and better address their health care needs. The Rural Communities Opioid Response Program- Planning, supports treatment for and prevention of substance use disorder, including opioid use disorder, in rural counties at the highest risk for substance use disorder. The Rural Communities Opioid Response Program- Implementation aims to reduce the morbidity and mortality from substance abuse disorder (SUD), including opioid use disorder (OUD), by strengthening and expanding prevention, treatment, and recovery support services in high-risk rural communities. The program focuses on expanding treatment options and enhancing treatment and recovery capacity in rural communities. By expanding the options for treatment across the care spectrum, this initiative will help rural residents access treatment and move towards recovery. The Rural Communities Opioid Response Program- Medication Assisted Treatment (MAT) Expansion advances RCORPs overall goal by establishing and/or expanding MAT in eligible hospitals, health clinics, or tribal organizations in high-risk rural communities. RCORP-MAT Expansion aims to increase the number of access points where individuals living in rural communities with OUD can receive evidence-based treatment. The Rural Communities Opioid Response Program- Technical Assistance provides technical assistance (TA) support for rural communities engaging in activities to combat opioid use disorder (OUD). The TA efforts will enhance the organizational and infrastructural capacity of multi-sector consortiums at the community, county, state, and/or regional levels. The overall goal is the reduction of morbidity and mortality associated with opioid overdoses in high-risk rural communities. The Rural Communities Opioid Response Program-Psychostimulant Support aims to strengthen and expand prevention, treatment, and recovery services for rural individuals who misuse psychostimulants to enhance their ability to access treatment and move towards recovery. Over the course of a three-year period of performance, RCORP-PS award recipients will implement a set of core psychostimulant use disorder prevention, treatment, and recovery activities. The Small Health Care Provider Quality Improvement Program aims to provide support to rural primary care providers for the planning and implementation of quality improvement activities. The ultimate goal of the program is to improve the quality and delivery of rural health care services through promoting the development of evidence-based approaches to the quality and delivery of coordinated care in the primary care setting. Additional objectives of the program include: improved health outcomes for patients; enhanced chronic disease management; and better engagement of patients and their caregivers. The purpose of the RCORP- Neonatal Abstinence Syndrome project is to advance RCORPs overall goal and reduce the incidence and impact of Neonatal Abstinence Syndrome (NAS) in rural communities by improving systems of care, family supports, and social determinants of health. Rural Behavioral Health Workforce Centers Northern Border Region aims to create a collaborative approach to provide career and workforce training activities in the NBRC region, in order to assist individuals affected by a substance use disorder. The Rural Tribal COVID-19 Response Program is an initiative focused on coronavirus disease (COVID-19) by the Health Resources and Services Administration (HRSA). The purpose of the Rural Tribal COVID-19 Response Program is to provide maximum flexibility in this funding to assist tribes, tribal organizations, urban Indian health organizations, or health service providers to tribes to prevent, prepare for, and respond to the evolving needs of the novel coronavirus disease (COVID-19) in rural communities. The Rural Health Clinic Vaccine Confidence Program is an initiative by the Health Resources and Services Administration focused on COVID-19 and other infectious diseases. The purpose of this program is to address COVID-19 related health equity gaps and improve health care in rural areas by engaging Rural Health Clinics (RHCs) to improve vaccine confidence and counter vaccine hesitancy in rural communities.

PROGRAM ACCOMPLISHMENTS:

Fiscal Year 2020: Delta Region Community Health Systems Development Program: The program has supported 32 rural communities across the eight Delta Region states, providing comprehensive and individual technical assistance to participating rural hospitals and clinics. Outcomes from technical assistance services include greater collaboration and communication among providers and leaders, improved revenue cycle processes and enhanced reimbursement, and greater adoption of best practices improving operational efficiency. Rural Communities Opioid Response: Programs under the Rural Communities Opioid Response Program (RCORP) Initiative have served more than 1420 rural counties across 46 states and two territories since 2018. Early performance data collected from RCORP grantees shows that more than 450,000 individuals have been screened for substance use disorder and more than 23,000 individuals have received medication-assisted treatment services as a result of RCORP funding. Rural Tribal COVID-19 Response: Key accomplishments among grantees of the Rural Tribal COVID-19 Response program include increased engagement in outreach and education related to COVID-19 within tribal communities; increased utilization and investment in technology and equipment; establishment and use of COVID-19 testing sites; improvements in staffing levels to better allow the tribal communities to respond to COVID-19; and enhanced vaccine preparation activities.

93.918 Grants to Provide Outpatient Early Intervention Services with Respect to HIV Disease

Ryan White HIV/AIDS Program (RWHAP) Part C Early Intervention Services (EIS),

FEDERAL AGENCY:

ASSISTANCE LISTINGS DESCRIPTIONS

HEALTH RESOURCES AND SERVICES ADMINISTRATION, HEALTH AND HUMAN SERVICES, DEPARTMENT OF

AUTHORIZATION:

42 U.S.C. 300ff-51 300ff-67, and 300ff-121., Title , Part , Section

OBJECTIVES:

The purpose of the RWHAP Part C Early Intervention Services Program funding is to provide comprehensive HIV primary care and support services in an outpatient setting for low income, uninsured, and underserved people with HIV. This includes: 1) counseling for individuals with respect to HIV; 2) targeted HIV testing; 3) periodic medical evaluations of individuals with HIV and other clinical and diagnostic services regarding HIV; 4) therapeutic measures for preventing and treating the deterioration of the immune system, and for preventing and treating conditions arising from HIV; and 5) referrals for people with HIV to appropriate providers of health and support services. These services are to be provided directly or through referrals, contracts, or memoranda of understanding. The purpose of the RWHAP Part C Capacity Development Program is to strengthen organizational capacity to respond to the changing health care landscape and to increase capacity to develop, enhance, or expand access to high quality HIV primary health care services for low income, uninsured, and underserved people with HIV.

TYPES OF ASSISTANCE:

Project Grants

USES AND USE RESTRICTIONS:

Part C recipients are expected to develop comprehensive and coordinated systems of HIV services which are available to people with HIV in the local service area, especially those populations who are the hardest to reach, have the greatest unmet need, and/or the greatest gaps in HIV primary care services. These HIV service systems should ensure the progress of the target populations along the HIV care continuum with the goal of optimizing health outcomes demonstrated by retention in medical care, viral load reduction, and decreases in new HIV infections in the community. For the Part C program, no more than 10 percent of total grant funds may be expended for administrative expenses, including planning and evaluation. At least 50 percent of total grant funds must be expended for Early Intervention Services (except counseling). At least 75 percent of total grant funds, after reserving funds for clinical quality management, planning/evaluation, and administration must be expended for core medical services. For the Capacity Development Program, no more than 10 percent of the total grant funds may be expended for administrative expenses, including planning and evaluation, and excluding costs of a clinical quality management program. Administrative costs are those direct and indirect costs associated with the administration of the RWHAP Part C Capacity Development grant. For Part C and Part C Capacity Development Programs, all funds must be expended solely for carrying out the approved project in accordance with the notice of funding opportunity, the terms and conditions of the award, and the applicable cost principles. Funds may not be used for purchase, construction, or major alterations or renovations on any building or other facility; purchase or improvement of land; payments for clinical research; payments for nursing home care; cash payments to intended recipients of RWHAP services; research; foreign travel; or for any item or service to the extent that payment has been made, or reasonably can be expected to be made, with respect to that item or service under any State compensation program, insurance policy, Federal or State health benefits program or by an entity that provides health services on a prepaid basis (except for a program administered by or providing the services of the Indian Health Services). Funds may also not be used towards pre-exposure prophylaxis (PrEP) or non-occupational post-exposure prophylaxis (nPEP) medications or medical services. As outlined in the June 22, 2016 RWHAP and PrEP program letter, the RWHAP legislation provides grant funds to be used for the care and treatment of people with HIV, thus prohibiting the use of RWHAP funds for PrEP medications or related medical services, such as physician visits and laboratory costs. However, RWHAP Parts C recipients and subrecipients may provide prevention counseling and information, which should be part of a comprehensive PrEP program. Additionally, the purchase of sterile needles or syringes for the purposes of hypodermic injection of any illegal drug is not allowable. Some aspects of Syringe Services Programs are allowable with HRSA's prior approval and in compliance with HHS and HRSA policy (see: <https://www.hiv.gov/federal-response/policies-issues/syringe-services-programs>).

Applicant Eligibility:

Public nonprofit institution/organization (includes institutions of higher education and hospitals); Other public institution/organization; Federally Recognized Indian Tribal Governments; Private nonprofit institution/organization (includes institutions of higher education and hospitals); Native American Organizations (includes Indian groups, cooperatives, corporations, partnerships, associations); Public and nonprofit private entities that are: a) Federally qualified health centers under section 1905(1)(2)(B) of the Social Security Act; b) Grant recipients under section 1001 (regarding family planning) other than States; c) Comprehensive hemophilia diagnostic and treatment centers; d) Rural health clinics; e) Health facilities operated by or pursuant to a contract with the Indian Health Service; f) Community-based organizations, clinics, hospitals, and other health facilities that provide early intervention services to people who contracted HIV through intravenous drug use; or g) Nonprofit private entities that provide comprehensive primary care services to populations at risk of HIV, including faith-based and community-based organizations. Eligible applicants for the Capacity Development Program include public and nonprofit private entities, including faith-based and community-based organizations, and Tribes and tribal organizations.

93.926 Healthy Start Initiative

Healthy Start,

FEDERAL AGENCY:

HEALTH RESOURCES AND SERVICES ADMINISTRATION, HEALTH AND HUMAN SERVICES, DEPARTMENT OF

AUTHORIZATION:

Title III, Part D, Section 330H of the Public Health Service Act, (42 U.S.C.254c-8),

OBJECTIVES:

The purpose of this grant program is to improve perinatal health outcomes and reduce racial and ethnic disparities in perinatal health outcomes by using community-based approaches to service delivery, and to facilitate access to comprehensive health and social services for women, infants, and their families. HS grants are provided to communities with rates of infant mortality at least 1 times the U.S. national average and high rates for other adverse perinatal outcomes (e.g., low birthweight, preterm birth, maternal morbidity and mortality) in order to address the needs of high-risk women and their families before, during, and after pregnancy.

TYPES OF ASSISTANCE:

Cooperative Agreements, Project Grants

USES AND USE RESTRICTIONS:

The Healthy Start (HS) program aims to reduce disparities in infant mortality and adverse perinatal outcomes by: 1) improving women's health, 2) improving family health and wellness, 3) promoting systems change, 4) assuring impact and effectiveness. Healthy Start grantees continue to reduce high infant mortality rates (IMR) by assuring access to culturally competent, family-centered, and comprehensive health and social services to women, infants, and their families through a community-based participatory approach. Additionally, HS grantees foster systems integration, coordination, and collaboration to advance community change. HS grantees also coordinate and align with State Title V Maternal and Child Health Block Grant programs to promote cooperation, integration, and dissemination of information with statewide systems and with other community services funded under Title V. Funds may not be used to supplant currently funded activities/services.

Applicant Eligibility:

State (includes District of Columbia, public institutions of higher education and hospitals); Local (includes State-designated Indian Tribes, excludes institutions of higher education and hospitals); Public nonprofit institution/organization (includes institutions of higher education and hospitals); Federally Recognized Indian Tribal Governments; U.S. Territories and possessions (includes institutions of higher education and hospitals); Private nonprofit institution/organization (includes institutions of higher education and hospitals); Quasi-public nonprofit institution/organization; Native American Organizations (includes Indian groups, cooperatives, corporations, partnerships, associations); Eligible Project Area: All applicants applying for funding under this grant notice must identify themselves as serving an urban, rural, or other project area. Project area is defined as a geographic community in which the proposed services are to be implemented. A project area must represent a reasonable and logical catchment area, but the defined areas do not have to be contiguous. A map of the proposed project area must be included in the application. Urban Territory, population, and housing units located within an urbanized area (UA) or an urban cluster (UC), which has: a population density of at least 1,000 people per square mile; and surrounding census blocks with an overall density of at least 500 people per square mile. Rural To determine whether the Census tract or County for your proposed project area is defined as a rural area (RA), visit the webpage Rural Health Grants Eligibility Analyzer: (<http://datawarehouse.hrsa.gov/RuralAdvisor/ruralhealthadvisor.aspx?ruralByAddr=1>) and enter the project area address. Other - A project area that does not fit either the urban or rural definitions. Eligible Target Population: The target population is the population that the applicant will serve within their geographic project area and will determine their eligibility. The target population should be the population with the highest infant mortality rate (IMR) within the project area. The majority of the HS program services and resources should be focused on the target population. The project area for which the applicant is applying and the proposed target population within that project area must be clearly identified to confirm eligibility. Eligibility Factors Demonstrating Need: HRSA/MCHB must be able to verify submitted data with the appropriate state/local government agency responsible for vital statistics. "Other" community applicants that cannot provide this verifiable data may use the other indicators specified in the second section below. Project data for the eligibility factors for all applicants must be included in the applications transmittal letter and in the needs assessment section of the submitted application. The existing racial/ethnic disparities in these or other perinatal indicators should also be described in the needs assessment section of the application. Applications that do not provide this information, in the manner described within this notice of funding opportunity (NOFO), will be considered ineligible and the application will be returned without review. An applicant's target population within their proposed project area must meet the following verifiable criteria using the smallest statistical level of verifiable data available -- not to be any larger than a combination of counties (e.g. a city project should not report county-level data). HRSA-19-049, Urban and Rural Communities Using verifiable three-year average data for calendar years 2013 through 2015, the proposed project area for communities which meet the urban or rural community definition must meet the following indicators from the list below. The 2013-2015 combined three-year infant mortality rate (IMR, infant deaths per 1,000 live births over three years) must be equal to or more than 8.8 deaths per 1,000 live births (1.5 times the national average) AND there must be 20 or more infant deaths over the three years for the targeted population. If the combined 2013-2015 number of infant deaths are less than (<)20, then to be eligible the following must be met: The 2013-2015 three-year average low birthweight (LBW) is equal to or more than 12.1% (1.5 times the national average) AND there must be 100 or more LBW births in the targeted population for the three-year period, 2013 to 2015 OR The 2013-2015 preterm births (PTB) is equal to or more than 14.4% (1.5 times the national average) AND there must be 100 or more PTB births in the targeted population for the period, 2013 to 2015. Other Communities Using verifiable data for 2016. The proposed target population for project areas which meet the Other community definition (i.e., A project area that does not fit either the urban or rural definitions above) must have at least 1,000 births for the one year period and meet at least three (3) indicators from the list below. If vital statistics are not available from state/local government agencies, border community applicants can use other verifiable data. -Percentage of pregnant women with diabetes is 10.2 percent or more, -Percentage of pregnant women who are obese is 39.2 percent or more, -Percentage of pregnant women entering prenatal care in the first trimester is less than 38.6 percent, - Percentage of births to women who had no prenatal care is 4 percent or more, and -Percentage of births to women who used tobacco during pregnancy is 10.8 percent or more.

Fiscal Year 2020: The Strengthening Systems of Care for People with HIV and Opioid Use Disorder initiative funds two grant recipients to enhance the capacity of HIV and OUD providers to ensure that people with HIV and OUD have access to behavioral health care, treatment, and recovery services. This initiative is being implemented in 14 states to strengthen system-level coordination and networks of care between RWHAP recipients and other federal, state and local entities. To date, the recipients have collaborated with the 14 states to develop and disseminate resources, guides and toolkits to help other jurisdictions replicate similar models. Using multiple strategies, which include peer support groups, individual counseling, case management sessions and facilitated relationships between behavioral health and clinical care teams, demonstration sites in the Implementation of Evidence-Informed Behavioral Health Models to Improve HIV Health Outcomes for Black Men Who Have Sex with Men initiative have served 809 clients. The Using Evidence-Informed Interventions to Improve Outcomes among People Living with HIV initiative grant recipient has completed the pilot implementation period for 11 evidence-informed interventions at 25 pilot implementation sites.
