Simplex programming logic is a specific protocol language and is not accessible to other manufacturers of fire alarm system. Additional (estimated) costs will be associated to establish a second fire alarm system on the installation.

A second system would be required on base to report to the base fire station and security forces control center. This additional cost would equate to an estimated $180,000. Further costs would be incurred to physically reconfigure both the fire station alarm room and security forces control center to make space for the second fire alarm head end. Costs associated to physically reconfigure the space amount to $14,000 (estimated). Lastly, training cost in the amount of $55,000 (estimated) would be required to send base maintenance staff to manufacturer specific training on maintenance and programming. These training costs would be avoided as maintenance staff are currently trained on the existing Simplex Fire Alarm system.
